Grid Disasters Strike Auburn Oklahoma, SMU

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Stark disaster struck down Oklahoma and Auburn, two of the three top football teams in the nation, Saturday.

Oklahoma still jittery from a case of food poisoning that laid low a dozen of its players Thursday, fell before Northwestern 45-13, while Auburn, unbeaten in its last 24 games, was the victim of Tennessee 3-0.

Louisiana State, the nation's No. 1 team in the weekly Associated Press poll, emerged with a 10-0 victory over tough Texas Christian in a night game at Baton Rouge.

For complete scores and game reports turn to the sports section beginning on page 6-B.

As if the defeats of Oklahoma and Auburn, ranked 2 and 3 behind LSU, weren't enough, Southern Methodist, a power of the Southwest Conference, and No. 6 in the country, took it on the chin from unheralded Georgia Tech 16-12.

Oklahoma's defeat was the Sooners' worst in the past 19 years. Back in 1945, Oklahoma A&M clobbered the Sooners 47-0. The shellacking likewise was the worst ever absorbed by an Oklahoma team under Bud Wilkinson.

Dick Thornton's passing and quarterbacking and Ron Burton's running, were Northwestern's main marks of victory.

While Oklahoma was going down, two other Big Eight teams were scoring fine triumphs over once-proud Big 10 clubs. Missouri trounced Michigan 20-15 and Nebraska upended Minnesota 32-12. So a new era could be dawning in the Big Eight which Oklahoma has ruled with an iron fist for the past 11 years.

Auburn always has specialized in defense and things were no different against Tennessee. The Tigers didn't permit the Vols to penetrate their goal line. But they permitted Cotton Letner to kick a 20-yard field goal in the second period and that ended college football's longest unbeaten streak.

Another streak remained intact and another was smashed.

Squall Line Slices U.S., One Killed

Three Highway Deaths Blamed On Turbulence

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A squall line spawning tornadoes and severe thunderstorms cut across the nation's midlands Saturday. Ominous clouds threatened St. Louis.

The line extended from the north Arkansas border across Missouri, southeastern Iowa, into Illinois and the Weather Bureau warned it would reach into Michigan.

At least one person was killed as storms struck a number of communities.

A tornadic windstorm raked Monmouth, in northwestern Illinois, killing one man and smashing store fronts, utility lines and trees.

About 50 miles northeast of Monmouth a tornado slashed through the edge of Bradford, destroying several farm buildings. Power and telephone lines were knocked out.

DEATHS

Three highway deaths were attributed to turbulent weather.

A massive tornado with a base a quarter-mile wide splintered the little town of Grovespring in southwest Missouri shortly before 3 p.m.

The 145 residents of Grovespring watched the funnel approach for five minutes and were able to take cover. No one was hurt.

Ten minutes later roaring winds ripped a six-block-wide strip through Mexico, Mo., about 150 miles north of Grovespring. No funnel was sighted but large trees

U.S. Airmen Winners In New Policy

McElroy Gives Key Position To Air Force

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Air Force, whose doom has been predicted by missile enthusiasts, has come up on top with the grand prize of military missions — conquest of space with manned and unmanned vehicles.

Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy, in a far-reaching policy decision, gave official sanction this week to the long disputed claim of airmen that today's air force should be tomorrow's space force.

Full implications of the decision, affecting ambitious but still distant military space operations, can't be gauged now. But it was clear enough to shake the Army and much of the Navy, both of which had high aspirations in the space field and now must play relatively minor roles.

RULING

McElroy's ruling swept aside the Army position, voiced by ex-Chief of Staff Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, that "no single service has any special claim on the milkyway."

And "obsolete" seemed the best way to describe the verdict of a top admiral who once told newsmen off-the-record that the air force was "obsolete."

McElroy and his advisers appeared to have accepted the Air Force position and that there is no dividing line between air and space and no major distinction between air and space missions.

As announced by the Defense Department and elaborated at a news conference by Dr. Herbert York, director of defense research

TOKYO (UPI)—Typhoon Vera, one of the biggest in the history of Japan, lashed the islands for more than 12 hours Saturday night and Sunday, leaving more than 900 persons dead or missing.

Unofficial compilations of police reports Sunday listed 364 dead and 557 missing in 38 of the country's 46 prefectures and casualty figures were expected to mount as government organizations began restoring communications with stricken areas.

The strom split into two parts Sunday over northern Japan and, graded down to a tropical storm, moved northward toward the northernmost Japanese island of Hokkaido.

BIGGEST

The central meterological observatory said Vera's 450-mile front made it the biggest storm in the history of the observatory. Vera's maximum wind clockings of 120 miles an hour at Maizureu, 107.5 at Nagoya and 82.35 m.p.h. in Tokyo set records for these cities.

Many of the casualties—133 dead and 99 missing—were in the Nagoya area where Vera's screaming winds blew down houses and its rains caused floods in the delta area of the Nagra and Kiso Rivers.

An estimated 1,300 houses in Nagoya were flooded to the roofs and 11,300 persons were driven out of their homes in the villages of Nagashima and Kisonomisaki by overflowing rivers.

Only known casualty among U.S military personnel was an airman at Misawa Air Base in northern Japan, who suffered a broken leg from flying debris.

A total of 41,700 houses were wrecked or washed away by the storm, which carried winds clocked at a top of 115 miles an hour at Maisuru. Another 204,200 homes were flooded.

There was no immediate estimate as to the number of refugees.

Train service on the Tokaido line connecting Tokyo and Osaka was still paralyzed in the wake of the storm as sunny skies returned to the heavily populated mid-section of Japan.

Ike, Khrush In Deadlock; Stand Firm

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower and Premier Nikita Khrushchev were reported deadlocked Saturday night after spending most of the day concentrating on the Berlin issue and related German problems — the core of their cold war disagreements.

While Eisenhower was understood to have budged not an inch from the American position, Khrushchev was reported standing equally firm on the Soviet side. But they did agree to go into the delicate, dangerous issue of Berlin and Germany at their final working session Sunday before they wind up a weekend on a Maryland mountain top and Khrushchev heads for home.

In spite of the deadlock at this point, there was a possibility that Eisenhower and Khrushchev might come out of the probing of each other's positions with some sort of formula for a new session of the British, French, Soviet and

Navy Takes Wraps Off Zuni Rocket

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Navy, taking the wraps off the new Zuni rocket, acclaimed it Sunday as a triple-threat weapon costing only $400.

The Zuni, developed at the Naval Ordnance Test Station, China Lake, Calif., is a heavy-slugging rocket 110 inches long, 5 inches in diameter, and weighing 107 pounds.

Although nonnuclear, the Zuni carries a secret warhead regarded by its developers as second only to an atomic blast in destructive effect. It is unguided and is designed for air-to-air and air-to-ground attack.

ENGINEER

Syd Shefler, civilian engineer on the Zuni project, told a news conference that the rockets are being built for only $400 each. He said four of them are 50 per cent more effective at long range and 100 per cent more effective at short range than a $9,000 guided missile like the Bullpup.

A general purpose warhead can be used to defeat targets by blast or by penetration and exploding inside, he added. Another warhead can penetrate the thickets known tank armor. A third is particularly effective against aircraft in flight and can destroy the fastest fighter planes or the largest supersonic jet bombers.

Missile Men Puzzle Over Rocket Flops

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Missile men here are shaking their heads over a rash of rocket failures during Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's visit to the United States.

They can't remember when so many things have gone haywire in a short period. And no one has a ready explanation.

"You'd think that Khrushchev's shadow had fallen across the Cape jinxing the place," an official commented.

There have been some successes, too. But they seem lost among the series of fizzles. Some of the nation's most reliable missiles were among the victims.

The Biggest shock came Thursday when an Atlas-Able rocket being groomed to level the lunar score with the Soviet Union blew up during a ground test of its engines.

ATTEMPTS

The Atlas-Able was to attempt to hurl a 375-pound satellite around the moon early in October. The shot has been postponed indefinitely. U.S. scientists believe orbiting the moon would be a greater achievement than ramming a rocket into it as the Russians did before Khrushchev came to this country.

As a result of the moon rocket explosion, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is making a careful study of other space shots scheduled this fall.

Other failures in the last two weeks:

1. A Jupiter missile carrying mice and frogs flew off course

ON TEEN-AGE VIOLENCE

Hoover Demands All-Out Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recent teen-age violence in New York and other cities brought a demand from FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover Saturday for a stern and "all-out counterattack against vicious young thugs."

He called the problem of youthful crime a monster of frightening proportions.

In an editorial in the October issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, Hoover advocated the fingerprinting and public naming of youthful "punks" who defy the law. He said parents who inflict vicious offspring on their fellow men "deserve to feel the sting of public indignation and to face legal and financial responsibility for the criminal acts of their children."

ALLY

"A valuable ally in the fight against crime, the news media of the nation can afford public service in focusing the spotlight of public opinion on those members of the judiciary who, in the face of the present crisis, persist in endangering the public by unleashing young terrorists apprehended at great risk by law enforcement officers," he added.

Hoover said the general public,

Red Rebels Make Deep Laos Drive

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Communist rebel bands have penetrated deep into the heart of Laos to spread "intense propaganda" among the residents and skirmish with government troops, the government said Saturday.

A communique reported there were no important engagements in the north, seat of the Pathet Lao Communist revolt.

But in firefights in the southern provinces, hitherto the safest in the country, five Reds were wounded and two were captured, the communique said.

It said elements of a communist battalion had penetrated into Champassak and Thankhek provinces and had engaged in "intense propaganda activity" around the towns of Ban Dontalat and Ban Von Mohn.

To the north, the government said there were "no important" actions.

Mild Days Seen In Monroe Area

Considerable cloudiness and continued mild temperatures are expected today and tomorrow for Monroe area residents. The slight warming trend of the past few days is expected to continue.

Yesterday's high was 91, low was 72, as compared to Friday's readings of 90 and 67.

Similar weather is forecast for the state, with widely scattered thundershowers in the east and south portions through tonight.

Arkansas residents may look for scattered showers through tomorrow, mainly in the extreme east portions. A slight cooling trend is expected to begin in the northwest and travel down to include most of the state.

Surviving Robber Awaits Sentence

FAYETTE, Miss. (UPI) — The 21-year-old survivor of a trio of would-be bank robbers who shot it out with Natchez police Saturday awaited sentencing on one of two charges for which he could get the death penalty.

A jury returned a guilty verdict against red-haired Melford Lewis Eslick of San Antonio, Tex., shortly before midnight Friday for the armed robbery of $2 and a suit of clothes. Sentencing was expected sometime during the coming week.

The maximum punishment for armed robbery in Mississippi is death. A kidnaping charge, also punishable by death, is still pending against Eslick along with a charge of assaulting an officer with intent to kill.

The trial was held in Jefferson County after Eslick's attorneys obtained a change of venue on grounds feeling against Eslick was running too high in Natchez for the trial to be held in Warren County.

Eslick testified he did not know what he was doing when he entered the home of Mrs. Ike Foster in Natchez last November. He said he did not remember what happened in the Foster home.

Mrs. Foster testified that Eslick held her and her twin baby daughters at gunpoint and forced her to hand over the $2—all she had in the house—and provide him with a change of her husband's clothes.

The young mother told the court Eslick then forced her and

Civil War Vet Perks Up Again

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Walter W. Williams, last surviving veteran of the Civil War, was listening to hillbilly music again Saturday.

"He's eating good and listening to his music," Mrs. Bowles said.

Williams will be 117 Nov. 14.

Freak Mishap Fatal To Baby

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Infant Mark Edwards burned to death and his sister, Cindy Lee, 3, suffered critical burns in a parked car on a grocery parking lot Saturday.

Their mother, Mrs. Johnnie Edwards, suffered shock when she saw what had happened.

L. A. Bowser said he was about 100 yards away when he saw flames pouring from the car.

He said one girl got out, her clothing aflame, and fell after running about 10 feet.

The dead child was found on the back seat.

A third Edwards' child, Debbie, 4, who escaped, told her father she was playing with matches. One fell under the front seat, she said, and the car filled with flames.

Jailbird Attempts Masquerade Stunt

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—Gerald Wilson came home Friday and handed his family a jolt. His 5-year-old son not only didn't recognize him; he felt he should cry out "mama."

For daddy was dolled up fancier than Charley's aunt. He wore a frilly gray dress, spiky-heeled shoes, a black babushka, and a heap of make-up.

Wilson hadn't been home for a while. He had been in jail, serving up to six months for burglary and larceny.

Thursday was a kind of milestone for him. It was his fifteenth day in the pokey. He felt he'd had enough. Sometime before dawn he left. He had managed to get a supply of wooden benches from the women's recreation room. These be put end to end, making an improvised ladder. Thus did he scale a 25-foot wall.

For 24 hours he hid in a park. That was no good. So first thing Friday he went to a rummage sale and bought himself an outfit. Then he got some cheap cosmetics.

He wandered about city streets all day. Seemingly, no one took much notice of him except a truck driver whose perplexity grew the more he pondered. Finally, the trucker just had to go to the police.

"Funny thing," he said. "That woman's legs were so hairy. Hefty, too. Not like a dame's at all."

Missile Men Puzzle Over Rocket Flops

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Missile men here are shaking their heads over a rash of rocket failures during Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's visit to the United States.

They can't remember when so many things have gone haywire in a short period. And no one has a ready explanation.

"You'd think that Khrushchev's shadow had fallen across the Cape jinxing the place," an official commented.

There have been some successes, too. But they seem lost among the series of fizzles. Some of the nation's most reliable missiles were among the victims.

The Biggest shock came Thursday when an Atlas-Able rocket being groomed to level the lunar score with the Soviet Union blew up during a ground test of its engines.

ATTEMPTS

The Atlas-Able was to attempt to hurl a 375-pound satellite around the moon early in October. The shot has been postponed indefinitely. U.S. scientists believe orbiting the moon would be a greater achievement than ramming a rocket into it as the Russians did before Khrushchev came to this country.

As a result of the moon rocket explosion, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is making a careful study of other space shots scheduled this fall.

Freak Mishap Fatal To Baby

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Infant Mark Edwards burned to death and his sister, Cindy Lee, 3, suffered critical burns in a parked car on a grocery parking lot Saturday.

Their mother, Mrs. Johnnie Edwards, suffered shock when she saw what had happened.

L. A. Bowser said he was about 100 yards away when he saw flames pouring from the car.

He said one girl got out, her clothing aflame, and fell after running about 10 feet.

The dead child was found on the back seat.

A third Edwards' child, Debbie, 4, who escaped, told her father she was playing with matches. One fell under the front seat, she said, and the car filled with flames.

ON TEEN-AGE VIOLENCE

Hoover Demands All-Out Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recent teen-age violence in New York and other cities brought a demand from FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover Saturday for a stern and "all-out counterattack against vicious young thugs."

He called the problem of youthful crime a monster of frightening proportions.

In an editorial in the October issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, Hoover advocated the fingerprinting and public naming of youthful "punks" who defy the law. He said parents who inflict vicious offspring on their fellow men "deserve to feel the sting of public indignation and to face legal and financial responsibility for the criminal acts of their children."

ALLY

"A valuable ally in the fight against crime, the news media of the nation can afford public service in focusing the spotlight of public opinion on those members of the judiciary who, in the face of the present crisis, persist in endangering the public by unleashing young terrorists apprehended at great risk by law enforcement officers," he added.

Hoover said the general public,

Red Rebels Make Deep Laos Drive

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Communist rebel bands have penetrated deep into the heart of Laos to spread "intense propaganda" among the residents and skirmish with government troops, the government said Saturday.

A communique reported there were no important engagements in the north, seat of the Pathet Lao Communist revolt.

But in firefights in the southern provinces, hitherto the safest in the country, five Reds were wounded and two were captured, the communique said.

It said elements of a communist battalion had penetrated into Champassak and Thankhek provinces and had engaged in "intense propaganda activity" around the towns of Ban Dontalat and Ban Von Mohn.

To the north, the government said there were "no important" actions.

FINALLY GIVES UP

Jailbird Attempts Masquerade Stunt

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—Gerald Wilson came home Friday and handed his family a jolt. His 5-year-old son not only didn't recognize him; he felt he should cry out "mama."

For daddy was dolled up fancier than Charley's aunt. He wore a frilly gray dress, spiky-heeled shoes, a black babushka, and a heap of make-up.

Wilson hadn't been home for a while. He had been in jail, serving up to six months for burglary and larceny.

Thursday was a kind of milestone for him. It was his fifteenth day in the pokey. He felt he'd had enough. Sometime before dawn he left. He had managed to get a supply of wooden benches from the women's recreation room. These he put end to end, making an improvised ladder. Thus did he scale a 25-foot wall.

For 24 hours he hid in a park. That was no good. So first thing Friday he went to a rummage sale and bought himself an outfit. Then he got some cheap cosmetics.

He wandered about city streets all day. Seemingly, no one took much notice of him except a truck driver whose perplexity grew the more he pondered. Finally, the trucker just had to go to the police.

"Funny thing," he said. "That woman's legs were so hairy. Hefty, too. Not like a dame's at all."

TOKYO (UPI)—Typhoon Vera, one of the biggest in the history of Japan, lashed the islands for more than 12 hours Saturday night and Sunday, leaving more than 900 persons dead or missing.

Unofficial compilations of police reports Sunday listed 364 dead and 557 missing in 38 of the country's 46 prefectures and casualty figures were expected to mount as government organizations began restoring communications with stricken areas.

The strom split into two parts Sunday over northern Japan and, graded down to a tropical storm, moved northward toward the northernmost Japanese island of Hokkaido.

BIGGEST

The central meterological observatory said Vera's 450-mile front made it the biggest storm in the history of the observatory. Vera's maximum wind clockings of 120 miles an hour at Maizureu, 107.5 at Nagoya and 82.35 m.p.h. in Tokyo set records for these cities.

Many of the casualties—133 dead and 99 missing—were in the Nagoya area where Vera's screaming winds blew down houses and its rains caused floods in the delta area of the Nagra and Kiso Rivers.

An estimated 1,800 houses in Nagoya were flooded to the roofs and 11,300 persons were driven out of their homes in the villages of Nagashima and Kisonomisaki by overflowing rivers.

Only known casualty among U.S military personnel was an airman at Misawa Air Base in northern Japan, who suffered a broken leg from flying debris.

A total of 41,700 houses were wrecked or washed away by the storm, which carried winds clocked at a top of 115 miles an hour at Maisuru. Another 204,200 homes were flooded.

There was no immediate estimate as to the number of refugees.

Train service on the Tokaido line connecting Tokyo and Osaka was still paralyzed in the wake of the storm as sunny skies returned to the heavily populated mid-section of Japan.

Jan Garber's Band Selected Tops In Poll

Officials conducting a poll for Downbeat magazine reported that the Jan Garber Band which has appeared in Monroe, has gathered enough votes to beat out the nearest rival, Guy Lombardo's Band, for the publication's choice as the best dance band in America at the National Band of America conference in Los Angeles.

Garber, of Shreveport, had enough votes to discount any possibility of his losing the poll, officials said before the balloting ended.

DAUGHTER CHOSEN

Officials said Garber's daughter, Janis, was chosen as number one singer in America.

Garber returns to Louisiona next week to prepare for an annual tour of the southern states.

The Garber band will open its traditional winter stand at the Blue Room of the Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans on Christmas Eve.

He was a band leader in North Carolina 43 years ago when the Garber - Davis band was formed. Shortly after he formed his own band. Although rated near the top, this is the first time that his band has won the Downbeat popularity poll.

KHRUSHCHEV

Fat Little Man Colorful Leader

WASHINGTON (AP)—Well, now that the circus is over, what have we learned of the personality of Nikita Khrushchev?

One thing is clear: This fat little man with the bald head and soft pudgy hands and big medals on his chest is easily the most colorful world leader around and, by modern standards, probably the most uninhibited since Henry VIII.

He has the high wit of Adlai Stevenson, the low comedy of Berle and the campaign talents of a guitar-playing candidate from the Texas Panhandle.

He is intelligent, shrewd, quick as a flashing fly rod, spectacularly logical when it pleases him to be and stubbornly illogical in the face of an embarrassing question. He can be evasive but also startlingly spontaneous. He is a roaring extrovert, who hugged babies, tickled turkeys, wore a white golfer's cap and swapped his watch for a cigar, but yet, at times, he is capable of a quiet, touching dignity.

He is proud, he is intensely competitive and will not be topped even in small talk. But his self-assurance, his feeling of being at home everywhere, was greater than that of most of the Americans dealing with him.

You had the feeling that this master of the Kremlin had no right looking so much at home in America. Didn't he know that Americans regard him as the arch enemy? Didn't he know he symbolized for us the nightmarish fears of atomic war, that he and his country are the reason our sons are still in the army and our taxes are so high?

If he realized any of this, his manner rarly indicate it. It was as if a neighbor with whom you have been bitterly feuding suddenly invites himself into your home without even noticing your embarrassment.

He walks into the living room, shakes hands all around, accepts a drink, helps himself to hors d'oeuvres, acts like an old friend of the family, puts his feet up, lights a cigar, pinches the kids' cheeks, makes jokes and blandly suggests we ought to have more of these neighborhood get-togethers.

Khrushchev also showed a folksy charm, disarming insight and surprising openness. While Stalin secluded himself behind the walls of the Kremlin and let mystery build up around him, Khrushchev seems to leap into your lap. He may be just as ruthless as Stalin, but, let's face it, this fat little man didn't look it.

"You probably invited me because you wondered what Khrushchev was like," he said at a New York luncheon. And then, spreading his arms, he added, "Well, here I am."

He even kidded Communist rigidity.

Khrushchev in San Francisco: "This is a beautiful city."

City official: "I'll sell you a house lot."

Khrushchev: "If I bought one I'd probably be expelled from the Communist party and you'd probably be electrocuted."

He showed, it seems to me, personal bravery on tour in this country. Several times, he was mobbed by reporters and spectators, by strangers in a strange hostile land. Despite the security, any one of them was close enough to put a knife in his back.

Khrushchev never looked frightened. In fact, he seemed to enjoy it. At a whistle-stop in California, he and U.N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge were swept along by a screeching, pushing mob. As Khrushchev finally reached the steps of his car, he turned and yelled: "Save Lodge!"

Freud said that a man's humor and small talk often reflect basic personality needs. In Khrushchchev's banter, there were two recurring patterns. He felt a need to try to top even casual talk. And he repeatedly made jokes about the cost of things, about money, about the question of ownership.

A host in Iowa: "We have wonderful weather today."

Khrushchev: "Well, don't start bragging. It's not entirely your responsibility. Maybe we Russians had something to do with it."

At the IBM plant in San Jose, Calif., he joked about what the company might charge him for the lunch, about whether he would get a rebate for leaving some potatoes on the plate. At a Des Moines factory, he cracked that he must return the protective glasses supplied him — "I don't want to take anything that doesn't belong to me." In Pittsburgh, he grinned at Lodge, and said, "Capitalist, look! I have a free Coca-Cola."

There were many other cracks in the same vein. Do they mean anything?

Could it be that the poor shepherd boy, who grew up to become the all-powerful boss of a powerful Communist country, is still impressed by money and property? Is it conceivable that the world's No. 1 Communist is a frustrated capitalist?

And that constantly competitive small talk, both national and personal — what could that mean? Could it be that the world's most powerful single individual actually suffers from an inferiority feeling?

Could it be that this physically unimposing premier, this funny little fat man, with the wagging finger and big medals on his chest, continually needs to remind himself and everyone else that he is at least as good and probably better than the rest of us?

Could it be that both Khrushchev and Russia still feel new and unwelcome in the neighborhood, that their furniture and clothes and social connections may be completely unstylish, but they're going to get a country club membership anyway?

LSU Board Okays Swap Of Property

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Louisiana State University Board Saturday approved a swap of property in New Orleans that will give the Medical School 25,000 square feet of land for dromitories.

Dr. William W. Frye, LSU vice president and dean of the Medical School, told the Board he was in full accord with the land trade with Jung Realty Co.

The value of each piece of land was placed at $103,000 by separate independence real estate appraisers.

Both pieces of land are located near the LSU Medical School in New Orleans. The university gave up land on Villere Street for properties on Perdido Street.

The Jung Hotel wanted to expand but adjoining land was too small. Dr. Don Borth, executive vice president of the University, explained.

Dr. Borth, executive vice president of the University, told the Board the University was getting more land out of the deal.

An LSU spokesman said the Jung Hotel wanted to expand on property owned by LSU. The University agreed to consider the swap because the property was too small for dormitories needed.

Attorney James R. Fuller told the board the Jung is paying $112,000 for property to swap for the land next to the hotel owned by LSU.

Dean Frye told a newsman. "We never had dormitories or any housing facilities for any of our medical students." The swap, he said, will make such facilities possible.

"This will give us housing for single male, single female, and married students. It also will give us housing for nurses."

The Board followed up the swap with a resolution enabling it to acquire additional property near that traded for, to bring the property total to 55,000 square feet.

OF SOVIET LEADER

All Words Etch Some Impression

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The words of Nikita Khrushchev flow easily, sometimes suavely, sometimes sharply, sometimes amusingly. In one way or another, all are important in etching impressions of the man.

Here are some of the outstanding examples of what he said in his travels around the country—either in public or as quoted by those who heard him:

Washington—We have come to you with an open heart and good intentions.

The fact the Russian rocket was launched to the moon on the eve of my departure for the United States was a simple, but pleasant, I would say, coincidence.

The question of Hungary has stuck in some people's throats as a dead rat. They feel it unpleasant, yet cannot spit it out.

It would be sheer madness to allow a new world war to come to a head.

Either the latest achievements of scientific and technical thought—the discovery of the secret of the atom, the development of rockets and the penetration of outer space—will be placed in the service of a peaceful future and prosperity of mankind or they will be used for the purpose of destruction and annihilation and, as a result, the earth will be covered with ashes and graves.

The Soviet people have long made their choice for peace. We are convinced that the American people also are for peace. As for the Soviet Union, it is prepared to consider any proposal which might help toward the establishment of good neighbor relations between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S. naturally, efforts are required on both sides or, as you say, it is necessary for each side to meet the other half way.

Beltsville, Md.—If we don't give a capitalist turkey and a Communist turkey a passport, no one can tell the difference.

United Nations—The essence of our proposals is that over a period of four years all states should effect complete disarmament and should no longer have any means of waging war.

New York—I'm an old sparrow, so to say, and you can't muddle me with your cries. You might not listen to me if you don't want to, but surely you must show enough hospitality not to interrupt. If you have no desire to listen to what I have to say, I will go.

The question of what our public listens to or reads should be decided not by any outside government or influence, but by our own people and government. If the voice with which you broadcast to our country will be a friendly voice, we shall not jam it.

The question of trade is one of profit. If you do not find it profitable to buy our goods or sell your goods to us, do what you consider necessary. It sometimes happens that too choosy a bride will wait too long and find herself an old maid.

I can't offer guarantees or recipes for the preservation of the capitalist system.

To a group of business and industrial leaders: You rule America. You are the ruling circle. I don't believe in any other view. You are clever. You stay in the shadows and have your representatives. Men without capital, who figure on the stage.

A new system has emerged (in Russia), a system which is treading on your heels, and if at any time you lag behind, we certainly shall surpass you.

I am convinced you do not want war, either with our country or any country of the world.

Los Angeles—You know that the First Commandment of the Christian religion says, "Thou shalt not kill." (Actually this is the Fifth Commandment in the Roman Catholic Decalogue, while in the King James Version of the Bible it is the sixth).

The meetings I have had convinced me that the American people value and love peace.

If the eyes buy what they have seen, they must eat it even if the eyes pop out of the head.

Prize Winning Recipe Mixup Is Corrected

Here's the corrected recipe for the $25,000 prize winning cake from the Pillsbury's grand national bake-off.

The recipe, which ran in the Thursday paper, was sent by AP. Somehow, ingredients got partially scrambled in the sending, so the recipe you read wasn't the one which won $25,000.

If you haven't tried it yet, give this recipe a try. It's guaranteed we hope.) The recipe for filling and frosting was right the first time.

Two-thirds cup butterscotch morsels.
¼ cup water.
2¼ cups sifted flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon soda.
½ teaspoon double-acting baking powder.
1 cup sugar.
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar.
½ cup shortening.
3 unbeaten eggs.
1 cup buttermilk or sour milk.

Melt butterscotch morsels in water in saucepan. Cool. Sift flour with salt, soda and baking powder; set aside. Add sugar and brown sugar gradually to shortening, creaming well. Blend in eggs, beating well after each. Add butterscotch morsels; mix well. Add dry ingredients alternately with buttermilk, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Blend well after each addition. With mixer use a low speed. Turn into two 9-inch round layer pans, well greased and lightly floured on the bottom.

Bake at 375 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes. Cool, spread filling between layers and on top. Frost sides and top edge with sea-foam frosting or whipped cream. Makes two 9-inch layers.

New Bureau On Crime Is Planned

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Officials are planning to set up the nation's first crime census bureau to combat steadily increasing violence and thievery in the nation's capital.

Robert E. McLaughlin, a member of the District of Columbia commission, announced the plan. He also reported that Washington's crime rate has been on the rise all year, and that in August there were 22 per cent more serious crimes than during the same month last year.

Throughout the summer there have been almost daily reports of muggings, rapes and rape attempts, holdups and other deeds of violence.

Acid was thrown at a congressman. The widow of a sub-cabinet officer was knocked down during a robbery attempt in one of the city's most fashionable sections.

More than 100 policemen have been attacked by thugs so far this year.

One man was knocked down and robbed by two hoodlums at one of the city's busiest intersections—in broad daylight, and with a number of persons looking on.

Every big city is plagued with this sort of thing nowadays. But Washington is the showplace of national prestige, so the problem is of particular concern here.

Police Chief Robert V. Murray asked Congress recently to provide funds for 500 more policemen. Congress appropriated enough for 100.

But within a matter of hours after McLaughlin issued his crime report, the district budget office slashed allocations for the police department, which could restrict Murray's efforts to beef up his force.

The juvenile problem is particularly acute. Authorities are rather hamstrung in coping with it, too, because Congress has refused to authorize additional juvenile court judges.

Last year, police brought 2,116 juvenile cases into court. More than 900 were dropped because the district's single judge just couldn't get around to them.

During the first six months of this year, the overall crime rate increased 15 per cent, the juvenile rate 25 per cent.

The most outspoken opponent of creating extra judgeships is Rep. James C. Davis (D-Ga.), chairman of the House District Committee. He has repeatedly tied up the proposal when it came before his group.

Davis, a segregationist, is reported to fear that a Negro would be chosen to fill any new position on the bench.

Ike Expresses Shock At Death

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — President Eisenhower expressed shock Saturday at the assassination of Prime Minister Solomon Bandaranaike of Ceylon and said "the world has lost a true friend of peace."

Eisenhower sent a message to the governor-general of Ceylon, Sir Oliver Ernest Goonetilleke.

"I was deeply shocked to hear of the passing of prime minister Bandaranaike," it said. "The world has lost a true friend of peace. Please extend my deepest sympathies to Mrs. Bandaranaike and to the people of Ceylon."

RADIATION

LONDON (AP)—Britain's first plant using radiation for commercial purposes will open late this year. Operation will be around the clock under the Atomic Energy Authority. It will fully utilize continuous radiation from atomic isotopes in sterilizing medical equipment, disinfecting packaged goods and other uss.

'Maggie' Awards Will Be Made To Publications

The movie industry has its "Oscar" and television has the "Emmy," and now the magazine industry has developed the "Maggie" award.

Over 200 magazines, paperbound books, children's books and comics, representing the outstanding work of American publishing have been nominated for the 1959 Maggie awards, according to Joseph T. Murray, of Monroe, a member of the Council for Independent Distribution.

Murray said that Americans prominent in the fields of education, literature, science, sociol science, education and welfare, have been selected to judge the nominations for awards this year.

Winners in the various catagories will be selected for excellence in public service, national interest and editorial content.

LSU Board Okays Swap Of Property

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Louisiana State University Board Saturday approved a swap of property in New Orleans that will give the Medical School 25,000 square feet of land for dromitories.

Dr. William W. Frye, LSU vice president and dean of the Medical School, told the Board he was in full accord with the land trade with Jung Realty Co.

The value of each piece of land was placed at $103,000 by separate independence real estate appraisers.

Both pieces of land are located near the LSU Medical School in New Orleans. The university gave up land on Villere Street for properties on Perdido Street.

The Jung Hotel wanted to expand but adjoining land was too small, Dr. Don Borth, executive vice president of the University, explained.

Dr. Borth, executive vice president of the University, told the Board the University was getting more land out of the deal.

An LSU spokesman said the Jung Hotel wanted to expand on property owned by LSU. The University agreed to consider the swap because the property was too small for dormitories needed.

Attorney James R. Fuller told the board the Jung is paying $112,000 for property to swap for the land next to the hotel owned by LSU.

Dean Frye told a newsman, "We never had dormitories or any housing facilities for any of our medical students." The swap, he said, will make such facilities possible.

"This will give us housing for single male, single female, and married students. It also will give us housing for nurses."

The Board followed up the swap with a resolution enabling it to acquire additional property near that traded for, to bring the property total to 55,000 square feet.

All Words Etch Some Impression

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The words of Nikita Khrushchev flow easily, sometimes suavely, sometimes sharply, sometimes amusingly. In one way or another, all are important in etching impressions of the man.

Here are some of the outstanding examples of what he said in his travels around the country—either in public or as quoted by those who heard him:

Washington—We have come to you with an open heart and good intentions.

The fact the Russian rocket was launched to the moon on the eve of my departure for the United States was a simple, but pleasant, I would say, coincidence.

The question of Hungary has stuck in some people's throats as a dead rat. They feel it unpleasant, yet cannot spit it out.

It would be sheer madness to allow a new world war to come to a head.

Either the latest achievements of scientific and technical thought —the discovery of the secret of the atom, the development of rockets and the penetration of outer space—will be placed in the service of a peaceful future and prosperity of mankind or they will be used for the purpose of destruction and annihilation and, as a result, the earth will be covered with ashes and graves.

The Soviet people have long made their choice for peace. We are convinced that the American people also are for peace. As for the Soviet Union, it is prepared to consider any proposal which might help toward the establishment of good neighbor relations between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S. naturally, efforts are required on both sides or, as you say, it is necessary for each side to meet the other half way.

Beltsville, Md.—If we don't give a capitalist turkey and a Communist turkey a passport, no one can tell the difference.

United Nations—The essence of our proposals is that over a period of four years all states should effect complete disarmament and should no longer have any means of waging war.

New York—I'm an old sparrow, so to say, and you can't muddle me with your cries. You might not listen to me if you don't want to, but surely you must show enough hospitality not to interrupt. If you have no desire to listen to what I have to say, I will go.

The question of what our public listens to or reads should be decided not by any outside government or influence, but by our own people and government. If the voice with which you broadcast to our country will be a friendly voice, we shall not jam it.

The question of trade is one of profit. If you do not find it profitable to buy our goods or sell your goods to us, do what you consider necessary. It sometimes happens that too choosy a bride will wait too long and find herself an old maid.

I can't offer guarantees or recipes for the preservation of the capitalist system.

To a group of business and industrial leaders: You rule America. You are the ruling circle. I don't believe in any other view. You are clever. You stay in the shadows and have your representatives. Men without capital, who figure on the stage.

A new system has emerged (in Russia), a system which is treading on your heels, and if at any time you lag behind, we certainly shall surpass you.

I am convinced you do not want war, either with our country or any country of the world.

Los Angeles—You know that the First Commandment of the Christian religion says, "Thou shalt not kill." (Actually this is the Fifth Commandment in the Roman Catholic Decalogue, while in the King James Version of the Bible it is the sixth).

The meetings I have had convinced me that the American people value and love peace.

If the eyes buy what they have seen, they must eat it even if the eyes pop out of the head.

Prize Winning Recipe Mixup Is Corrected

Here's the corrected recipe for the $25,000 prize winning cake from the Pillsbury's grand national bake-off.

The recipe, which ran in the Thursday paper, was sent by AP. Somehow, ingredients got partially scrambled in the sending, so the recipe you read wasn't the one which won $25,000.

If you haven't tried it yet, give this recipe a try. It's guaranteed we hope.) The recipe for filling and frosting was right the first time.

Two-thirds cup butterscotch morsels.
¼ cup water.
2¼ cups sifted flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon soda.
½ teaspoon double-acting baking powder.
1 cup sugar.
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar.
½ cup shortening.
3 unbeaten eggs.
1 cup buttermilk or sour milk.

Melt butterscotch morsels in water in saucepan. Cool. Sift flour with salt, soda and baking powder; set aside. Add sugar and brown sugar gradually to shortening, creaming well. Blend in eggs, beating well after each. Add butterscotch morsels; mix well. Add dry ingredients alternately with buttermilk, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Blend well after each addition. With mixer use a low speed. Turn into two 9-inch round layer pans, well greased and lightly floured on the bottom.

Bake at 375 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes. Cool, spread filling between layers and on top. Frost sides and top edge with sea-foam frosting or whipped cream. Makes two 9-inch layers.

New Bureau On Crime Is Planned

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Officials are planning to set up the nation's first crime census bureau to combat steadily increasing violence and thievery in the nation's capital.

Robert E. McLaughlin, a member of the District of Columbia commission, announced the plan. He also reported that Washington's crime rate has been on the rise all year, and that in August there were 22 per cent more serious crimes than during the same month last year.

Throughout the summer there have been almost daily reports of muggings, rapes and rape attempts, holdups and other deeds of violence.

Acid was thrown at a congressman. The widow of a sub-cabinet officer was knocked down during a robbery attempt in one of the city's most fashionable sections.

More than 100 policemen have been attacked by thugs so far this year.

One man was knocked down and robbed by two hoodlums at one of the city's busiest intersections —in broad daylight, and with a number of persons looking on.

Every big city is plagued with this sort of thing nowadays. But Washington is the showplace of national prestige, so the problem is of particular concern here.

Police Chief Robert V. Murray asked Congress recently to provide funds for 500 more policemen. Congress appropriated enough for 100.

But within a matter of hours after McLaughlin issued his crime report, the district budget office slashed allocations for the police department, which could restrict Murray's efforts to beef up his force.

The juvenile problem is particularly acute. Authorities are rather hamstrung in coping with it, too, because Congress has refused to authorize additional juvenile court judges.

Last year, police brought 2,116 juvenile cases into court. More than 900 were dropped because the district's single judge just couldn't get around to them.

During the first six months of this year, the overall crime rate increased 15 per cent, the juvenile rate 25 per cent.

The most outspoken opponent of creating extra judgeships is Rep. James C. Davis (D-Ga.), chairman of the House District Committee. He has repeatedly tied up the proposal when it came before his group.

Davis, a segregationist, is reported to fear that a Negro would be chosen to fill any new position on the bench.

'Maggie' Awards Will Be Made To Publications

The movie industry has its "Oscar" and television has the "Emmy," and now the magazine industry has developed the "Maggie" award.

Over 200 magazines, paperbound books, children's books and comics, representing the outstanding work of American publishing have been nominated for the 1959 Maggie awards, according to Joseph T. Murray, of Monroe, a member of the Council for Independent Distribution.

Murray said that Americans prominent in the fields of education, literature, science, sociol science, education and welfare, have been selected to judge the nominations for awards this year.

Winners in the various catagories will be selected for excellence in public service, national interest and editorial content.

Ike Expresses Shock At Death

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — President Eisenhower expressed shock Saturday at the assassination of Prime Minister Solomon Bandaranaike of Ceylon and said "the world has lost a true friend of peace."

Eisenhower sent a message to the governor-general of Ceylon, Sir Oliver Ernest Goonetilleke.

"I was deeply shocked to hear of the passing of prime minister Bandaranaike," it said. "The world has lost a true friend of peace. Please extend my deepest sympathies to Mrs. Bandaranaike and to the people of Ceylon."

RADIATION

LONDON (AP)—Britain's first plant using radiation for commercial purposes will open late this year. Operation will be around the clock under the Atomic Energy Authority. It will fully utilize continuous radiation from atomic isotopes in sterilizing medical equipment, disinfecting packaged goods and other uss.

NIXON'S AMBITIONS

Political Lynching Gets Postponement

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A political lynching which seemed inevitable only a few months ago has been postponed by now and, likely, abandoned.

To be lynched were Vice President Richard M. Nixon's presidential ambitions. Not with a rope over a tree limb, you understand, but by equally deadly means.

The method would have been to implant deep and widely in the United States the idea that Nixon can't win. This is a method with a brightly successful past as in 1952 when it hashed the late Robert A. Taft's final bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

There were contributing factors to the political destruction of Taft such as the holy war waged against him by a holy man. This holy man was Sherman Adams, who came to know in time the destructive impact of a holy war which was waged against him. The holy war against Adams cost him his job whereas Adams' holy war against Taft merely helped bar the senator from a job he wanted.

However that may be, the most deadly of the shots fired at Taft in 1952 were three little words: Taft Can't Win! Republicans, especially the fat cat Republicans, the stuffed shirt party big shots, began repeating that phrase among themselves and to themselves until they believed it. That was the end of Taft.

Something like that was in the works for Nixon. Harold E. Stassen began it in 1955-56 when he tried to prevent Nixon's renomination for vice president. Stassen has performed several political Belly whoppers of which the stop-Nixon effort of 1955-56 was the gaudiest and splashiest to date.

Stassen's effort could have some carry-over effect into 1960, and it is far too soon in this September of 1959 to say that it will not carry over at all. The anti-Nixon politicos have a bright new face going for them now and into 1960 just as the Taft lynching party had a bright new face going for them in 1951-52. That face, of course, belonged to Dwight D. Eisenhower. The bright new face now is the smiling trade mark of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

Rockefeller did not stick to his mid-summer plans of accepting the verdict of the pollsters this November in deciding whether to run next year. If he had stuck to that plan, his smile would be fading now and fast. The polls are doing a job for Nixon right now which he, least of all, could do for himself.

The polls are refuting the Nixon can't win idea. They plug the idea that Nixon can win. There is nothing dearer to the heart of a party fat cat, stuffed shirt or plain politico than a winner.

All of this is pleasing to Nixon's friends and advisers. Friends and advisers, however, often are a nervous lot. They are counting their blessings as the polls come in, but they have their worries, too. Their principal worry is that it may not last, that something may happen before convention time to put volume into a chorus of "Dick's a fine fella, of course, but he can't win."

Tool Box Fatal To Car Driver

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A new station wagon crashed into a freeway light pole here Saturday.

The driver, police, said, could have survived the impact. But an 80-pound tool box in the rear of the car was hurled forward. The box broke 54-year-old Anthony Gasper's neck, killing him.

Two-Week Rest Prescribed For Marshall Brown

Marshall Brown, gubernatorial candidate who was hospitalized Thursday in the Garnier Clinic in Bastrop after suffering a stomach illness, was told by physicians yesterday that all active political campaigning must be cancelled during the next two weeks.

Dr. V. B. Garnier of the Bastrop clinic said he was not certain when Brown could be released from the hospital.

Preliminary diagnosis indicated kidney stones and other kidney damage. After release from the hospital, Brown is slated to return to campaign headquarters in New Orleans, where he will direct his political campaign.

The rest of the Brown ticket is scheduled to continue the campaign, led by Frank Kees, Natchitoches mayor and Brown's candidate for Lieutenant Governo

SHAKES HANDS ALL 'ROUND

Mrs. Khrushchev Admires Suburbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Nina Khrushchev showed great interest Saturday in washable wallpaper, admired the built-in closets of a suburban home, and shook hands with several dozen excited children.

The wife of the Soviet Premier and their daughter, Julia, . who said she designs homes and rooms in the Soviet Union, finally fulfilled one of the aims of their U.S. trip—an inside glimpse of how an American family lives.

It was an impromptu idea of John Armitage, a State Department Soviet affairs officer who has been traveling with the Khrushchevs on their U.S. tour.

En route back from looking over a dry-cleaning research institute in Silver Spring, Md., which Mrs. Khrushchev acknowledged didn't much interest her, they went to Armitage's home in suburban Chevy Chase, Md.

A white brick, six-room two-bathroom house in a neighborhood of old and new style dwellings, it is furnished in American provincial style. There are several Russian knickknacks collected during a two-year period when the Armitages were stationed in the Soviet Union.

Mrs. Khrushchev's arrival brought out neighbors, children, even dogs. Women wearing aprons gathered across the street. Teen-age and younger children thronged around, wearing typical play clothes and riding bicycles.

About 30 of them lined up, including the Armitages' two sons, John, 5, and Leighton, 7. Reminding herself aloud that "American boys like to shake hands," Mrs. Khrushchev shook hands with most of them.

One neighbor, Eddie Lyerly, 18, rushed up with a newspaper photo of the Soviet first lady, and she autographed it for him. "In Russian," she noted.

Daughter Julia invited those around her to visit Moscow.

She told Mrs. Armitage it was a lovely home. Mrs. Khrushchev spoke in English with a bit of help from her interpreter.

"We like it very much," she said. "It's a very pleasant, nice little home with very convenient planning. I'm glad that Mr. and Mrs. Armitage have invited us."

Armitage said the home is in the $25,000-$28,000 class, adding: "It has a typical mortgage."

"To me," his wife said, "It's an average American home—not pretentious and not big." In one respect, it isn't exactly typical. The Armitages have a maid who lives in.

Mrs. Armitage said the Khrushchevs were interested in everything, commenting on the spacious back yard and the porch converted into a dining room, with jalousied windows.

Mrs. Khrushchev noted the gray and black synthetic tile the Armitages had installed on the dining room floor was the same pattern she had seen in a store in San Francisco.

Rockefeller Still Says Undecided

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller reiterated Saturday he has not yet decided whether to seek the GOP presidential nomination and then joined a happy group of 1930 classmates at Dartmouth's opening football game against Holy Cross.

Amid speculation that he had come to take soundings on his possible entry in next March's New Hampshire primary—first in the nation—he stressed repeatedly his visit to the Granite State was not political.

When he arrived by plane at Manchester he was greeted with political placards urging his candidacy. "Draft Rockefeller" headquarters already have been set up on the main street at the state capital in Concord.

After a brief State House visit with Republican Gov. Wesley Powell—where only mutual state problems were discussed—Rockefeller sat down with newsmen and repeated his stand.

He made it clear he is still concerned with doing his job as governor of New York. He said one of his prime interests is job security.

He said the New Hampshire primary was not discussed directly with any of the people he met Saturday including Sen. Styles Bridges (R-NH).

Rockefeller drove by car from Concord to Hanover. His route bypassed a group of Dartmouth students bearing signs reading: "Dartmouth man for president" and "Rocky's our man."

He drove directly to picnic grounds where he met other members of the class. They gathered to plan their 30th class reunion next year.

Rockefeller and his wife sat at table with John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth. They partook of barbequed chicken, potato chips, pickles and coffee.

The group, led by the Rockefellers and Dickey, then strolled across the campus to Memorial Field to watch the football game.

Before flying back to New York Sunday Rockefeller will be a dinner and overnight guest at the Dickey home. Several prominent New Hampshire Republicans were expected to attend.

Sunday morning he will go to Woodstock, Vt., about nine miles from Hanover, for a breakfast with his classmates.

Rockefeller said "I wouldn't know" when asked whether he would be a candidate if his name were entered in the New Hampshire primary. To a question as to whether he was discouraging any activity in his behalf in New Hampshire the governor smilingly replied:

"I haven't had much to do with it one way or the other."

Fund Shortage Found By Audit Of Negro School

WETUMPKA, Ala. (UPI)—Elmore County Education Supt. Ross McQueen revealed Saturday a shortage of $1,100 had been discovered by an audit of last year's accounts of the Elmore County Training School, a Negro high school.

McQueen said former Principal, L. L. Brewer will be held responsible for the missing funds.

McQueen had requested a grand jury investigation of the account in August, but Circuit Solicitor Glen Curlee said a preliminjry investigation did not show sufficent evidence to warrant a full investigation.

The audit, released Saturday, revealed "the school accounts show a shortage of $1,100.62 and this amount should be recovered and deposited to the general fund account."

Depending on the use for which it is planned, concrete may vary in weight from 30 to 250 pounds per cubic foot.

He made it clear he is still concerned with doing his job as governor of New York. He said one of his prime interests is job security.

He said the New Hampshire primary was not discussed directly with any of the people he met Saturday including Sen. Styles Bridges (R-NH).

Rockefeller drove by car from Concord to Hanover. His route bypassed a group of Dartmouth students bearing signs reading: "Dartmouth man for president" and "Rocky's our man."

He drove directly to picnic grounds where he met other members of the class. They gathered to plan their 30th class reunion next year.

Rockefeller and his wife sat at table with John Sloan Dickey, president of Dartmouth. They partook of barbequed chicken, potato chips, pickles and coffee.

The group, led by the Rockefellers and Dickey, then strolled across the campus to Memorial Field to watch the football game.

Before flying back to New York Sunday Rockefeller will be a dinner and overnight guest at the Dickey home. Several prominent New Hampshire Republicans were expected to attend.

Sunday morning he will go to Woodstock, Vt., about nine miles from Hanover, for a breakfast with his classmates.

Rockefeller said "I wouldn't know" when asked whether he would be a candidate if his name were entered in the New Hampshire primary. To a question as to whether he was discouraging any activity in his behalf in New Hampshire the governor smilingly replied:

"I haven't had much to do with it one way or the other."

Fund Shortage Found By Audit Of Negro School

WETUMPKA, Ala. (UPI)—Elmore County Education Supt. Ross McQueen revealed Saturday a shortage of $1,100 had been discovered by an audit of last year's accounts of the Elmore County Training School, a Negro high school.

McQueen said former Principal, L. L. Brewer will be held responsible for the missing funds.

McQueen had requested a grand jury investigation of the account in August, but Circuit Solicitor Glen Curlee said a preliminjry investigation did not show sufficent evidence to warrant a full investigation.

The audit, released Saturday, revealed "the school accounts show a shortage of $1,100.62 and this amount should be recovered and deposited to the general fund account."

Depending on the use for which it is planned, concrete may vary in weight from 30 to 250 pounds per cubic foot.

12TH ANNUAL SHOW

Forest Festival Near At Winn

WINNFIELD (Special) —Louisiana Forest Festival officials have whipped up a giant show this year by mixing everything from Paul Bunyan to politics for their 12th annual display of the woodman's arts.

There's a lineup of forestry, beauty queens, lumberjacks, and governor candidates on tap for a four - day run beginning Sept. 30.

Flanked by thousands of acres of the nation's best yellow pine, the affair will include every sidelight obtainable to add zip to the atmosphere including a wild west rodeo to run three nights, and a unique battle between champion tobacco juice squirters scheduled the last day in a wide open arena to provide plenty of chawing room.

Manufacturers of the latest in equipment will add some of the ultimate in modern techniques while the best lumberjacks toss brawn against brawn with the double bit ax and cross cut saw.

ADDED TOUCH

Soft spoken southern belles from across the state will add a touch of romaticism when they vie in formal attire for the coveted title of Queen of the Forest Festival.

A mile long parade is lined up for opening day and will feature a group of queens from big beauty shows.

Nearly $2,000 in prizes will go to winners of the many contests set up for this year's show.

Festival officials have already had to expand their exhibit room to take in the heavy activity from schools, organizations, and industrial companies who've asked for display space.

Donations for the Forest Festival Fund are fast replacing state funds which got chopped off in governmental activity in Baton Rouge.

Of the $3,500 goal $2,954 have already poured into the festival purse.

Most all of the old features of the event have been retained and several new ones added.

In the exhibit field there'll be firestry, livestock, agriculture, education, industry, and home living themes expressed.

Farmer Friend Of Khrushchev Receives Funds

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Roswell Garst, fiery - tempered farmer friend of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, was paid $23,227 in soil bank payments during 1957-58.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office in Carroll said the Coon Rapids farmer also was given $81,938 in corn-sealing payments during the same period.

Garst operates a modern, sprawling farm in wstern central Iowa which Khrushchev visited earlier this week. Garst refuses to say just how much land he farms. He specialized in the production of hybrid corn.

Six People Killed In Ark. Car Accidents

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Six persons died in auto accidents near Camden and Osceola, Ark., Friday night and early Saturday. Four were killed in one crash.

State police headquarters in Little Rock identified the victims of the Osceola collision as Frederick Richardson, 23, Negro, of Blytheville, Ark.; Fred Pugh, 17, Negro, of Osceola; Gordon Bright, 19, Mulberry, Ark., and Betty Jean Roark, 16, no home town given.

Killed in the wreck near Camden were Jerry Powell, 18, and Ronnie Wayne Taylor, 21, both of Camden.

Trooper Thomas H. Crye said Richardson and Pugh were in a southbound car which collided headon with the northbound auto driven by White. Miss Roark was in White's car. The accident occurred shortly after midnight.

Powell and Taylor were returning from Gurdon, where they had attended a high school football game. Two other youths in Powell's car, Bobby Bonner and Larry Bryant, were injured. They were reported in satisfactory condition in a Camden hospital.

Police said Powell's car collided with a car driven by Joe Louis Fox, a Negro. Fox was injured but three other Negroes in his car were reported to have escaped injury.

Truck Driver Relaxes And Police Hunt

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Truck driver James Beatty followed the advice of his boss: he just "ate a raw 'tater and waited."

(Back home in Okolona, Miss., that means he didn't get excited.)

It worked. Officers found his stolen truck — an 18-ton, fire-engine red tractor-trailer. It was resting against the side of a dwelling near Lancaster, S. C.

Beatty, a driver for the Super Sagless Springs Co., was involved in a traffic accident near here Wednesday. He was held in jail for three hours while awaiting $50 from his boss, for bond. He left the truck, keys in the switch, parked by the roadside.

Witnesses said a slightly tipsy man climbed into the cab and took of.

"He had enough fuel to go 400 miles. I 'spect he's in Florida by now," drawled Beatty, when he learned his truck was gone.

Not so. The truck got just four miles north of Lancaster and there it slammed into the side of Olin Wilson's house, knocking the dwelling from its foundations.

"The guy just rammed it into the side of my house," Wilson said. "Nobody was at home but my oldest daughter and it scared the daylights out of her.

"After he hit my house, the driver got out and started cussing and walking around. I've got a brother-in-law named "Strick" and the driver hollered to him: "How about backing this truck out of here for me.'

Strick told him he couldn't back that thing. He couldn't even make it go frontwards.

"So the driver got back in there and tore up my trees, my ground and my house."

Chief deputy sheriff Adams said, "He spent 30 minutes trying to back that thing out of there. It took us three hours to get it out."

The driver departed before officers arrived.

"I guess he hitched a ride out of town," Adams said. "I hope he didn't steal another truck."

The truck is being held.

Beatty left for Mississippi with the comment. "I hope I can hold onto my truck next time I come through here. I guess that's the biggest thing you folks ever had stolen around here."

Leaders Leave Camp For Tour Of Ike's Farm

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower and Premier Nikita Khrushchev slipped away from Camp David by helicopter Saturday for a 40-minute tour of the President's farm.

It was done without advance announcement. Two helicopters brought the two leaders to the big farm, which Eisenhower delights in showing to visitors.

The two had lunched late and had been scheduled to reconvene their historic conversations at 4:15.

Apparently they remained in session until about 4:30. Then the weather began to clear. As the mist lifted, Marine helicopters flew in to take the two leaders to the farm, about 25 miles away from the camp.

While there was no announcement, watchers at the farm saw two helicopters land, and then saw Eisenhower and his guest emerge from one of them.

It was the second break in a long day of talks between the two. The first came when, earlier in the day, they took a mile and a half walk around the Camp David area.

The Premier and the President left in the helicopters again at 6:03 p.m. to return to Camp David.

Riding with the President in one helicopter were Khrushchev; the President's son, Maj. John Eisenhower; Khrushchev's interpreter, Oleg Troyanovsky; and Capt. E. Aurand, the President's naval aide.

Security men traveled in another.

Premier Gets Look At U.S. Bowling Alley

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev finally got his chance Saturday to see an American bowling alley —with automatic pin setters.

He watched as an American sailor, Yeoman 2C John Halferty of Fennimore, Wis. racked up a solid 218 score in a demonstration game Khrushchev reportedly seemed more fascinated by the automatic pin setter, though, than by Halferty's strikes and spares.

Khrushchev saw the bowling alley in action on the grounds of the heavily guarded Camp David where he is discussing world problems with President Eisenhower. Word of the incident was relayed to reporters here by White House press secretary James C. Hagerty.

Eisenhower sat beside the Premier in the theater-type seats reserved for spectators in the camp's recreation hall.

Bowling is unknown in the Soviet Union. For some reason, the Soviet leader had expressed a desire to visit a modern bowling alley during his U.S. tour and take a look at the sport that attracts millions of Americans.

The bowling alleys at Camp David are set aside for Navy and Marine personnel who staff the camp.

They found Halferty, spic and span, waiting for his big moment. Halferty, who manages the bowling alleys, got off to a nervous start. But he settled down and bowled five straight strikes and a spare before he missed on a 7-10 split.

Afterward he shook hands with the President and Khrushchev, and they autographed his score sheet.

Woman Slashed By Man With Hunting Knife

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) —A man with a hunting knife slashed 31 wounds on the face, neck and scalp of Estelle Virginia Hamilton, 35, in her home Saturday.

Doctors at Palo Alto Hospital took 230 stitches to close the wounds. They said the woman's condition was fair.

The attack occurred before dawn. Mrs. Hamilton, a divorcee, was home with her two daughters, Victoria, 6, and Ashleigh, 4.

She told officers she was awakened by a man she could not see. When she cried out he slashed at her repeatedly until the screams of Victoria caused him to flee.

William Makepeace Thackeray, author of "Esmond," "Vanity Fair" and other noted novels, was also an artist. He illustrated many of his own writings.

Gov. Coleman Joins Others In Attack

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Gov. J. P. Coleman Saturday joined other state Democratic leaders in attacking the "invasion" of a Republican into Democratic Mississippi's November general election.

Coleman charged Jackson Republican Club President W. W. (Bill) Westbrook Jr. with "subterfuge" in announcing his candidacy as an "independent" for the state Senate seat of long-time Democrat lawmaker Hayden Campbell.

Westbrook answered that Coleman didn't know the law which the Republican cited as requiring all persons seeking election by petition to be listed as independent candidates. Westbrook called the governor's charges "reckless" and "old fashioned machine politics."

Westbrook said his candidacy was a threat to "the rubber stamp general election which Coleman and others seek so desperately to perpetuate."

Democratic leaders including Atty. Gen. Joe Patterson have worriedly opposed in public the candidacy of Westbrook in this virtually all - Democrat state. Patterson has intimated official opposition in court would be forthcoming to Westbrook's election bid.

"About the only one of the partisan heirarchy remaining to be heard is Paul Butler," said Westbrook referring to the national Democratic chairman. "It's reasonable to assume that he won't like the idea either."

Coleman's statement came as the small state GOP organization announced the first appointments of more than 1,000 patronage jobs it has been assigned to hand out for the 1959 federal agricultural census.

The state GOP has recently had its greatest resurgence "since Little Rock." It has set up early headquarters here and moved past the $20,000 mark in a campaign fund - raising drive. Its actions were met by vote purges of Republican in the August Democratic primaries.

Coleman asserted he was "deeply concerned by the recent effort of a Republican candidate to invade the general election ballot in Hinds County while posing as an independent."

Rain Foils Try To Escape From Penitentiary

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) —Rain threw cold water on Bobby Lee Gunther's attemp to escape from Missouri Penitentiary Saturday.

The 24-year-old Negro managed to slip a hack saw blade into his cell. He cut a bar from the window and lowered himself to the prison yard. About that time, 2:30 a.m., it started to rain.

Drenched and dispirited, Gunther walked the few yards to the prison control center and gave himself up.

Gunther is serving a five-year sentence for robbery.

Large Number Of Grants At LSU Accepted

BATON ROUGE (Special) — A record number of grants - in - aid and gifts totaling almost a million dollars was accepted and approved by the LSU Board of Supervisors.

The 84 new grants, continuations, amendments and renewals of existing grants-in-aid amounted to $993,194, which is close to 50 per cent of the figure for the entire calender year of 1958. The figure does not include $168,484 recently received for the National Defense Student Loan Program. Last year's total was $2,085,254. The gifts and grants are given to the University for research, teaching and scholarships.

INCREASE

Executive Vice President Daniel Borth attributed the increase this year to two reasons: (1) The increasing interest of the National Institute of Health in the LSU School of Medicine's research program and (2) the increasing number of gifts to the University for scholarships, particularly graduate fellowships.

The LSU School of Medicine received $704,561 including a $91,606 grant from the International Cooperation Administration to render technical advice and assistance in the development of a school of medicine in Costa Rica.

Another important grant of $39,382 was given by the Atomic Energy Commission to the College of Engineering. It will be used under the direction of Dean Fred H. Fenn for the purchase of equipment for nuclear engineering training program. Other large grants included $29,656 to the College of Agriculture for fundamental and applied studies of anaplasmosis in cattle and $53,662 to the School of Social Welfare to promote its training program in psychiatric social wrk.

At its regular fall meeting last year, the Board accepted grants-in-aid totalling $724,000, also a high figure for a single meeting.

Large Number Of Grants At LSU Accepted

BATON ROUGE (Special) — A record number of grants - in - aid and gifts totaling almost a million dollars was accepted and approved by the LSU Board of Supervisors.

The 84 new grants, continuations, amendments and renewals of existing grants-in-aid amounted to $993,194, which is close to 50 per cent of the figure for the entire calender year of 1958. The figure does not include $168,484 recently received for the National Defence Student Loan Program. Last year's total was $2,085,254. The gifts and grants are given to the University for research, teaching and scholarships.

INCREASE

Executive Vice President Daniel Borth attributed the increase this year to two reasons: (1) The increasing interest of the National Institute of Health in the LSU School of Medicine's research program and (2) the increasing number of gifts to the University for scholarships, particularly graduate fellowships.

The LSU School of Medicine received $704,561 including a $91,606 grant from the International Cooperation Administration to render technical advice and assistance in the development of a school of medicine in Costa Rica.

Another important grant of $39,382 was given by the Atomic Energy Commission to the College of Engineering. It will be used under the direction of Dean Fred H. Fenn for the purchase of equipment for nuclear engineering training program. Other large grants included $29,656 to the College of Agriculture for fundamental and applied studies of anaplasmosis in cattle and $53,662 to the School of Social Welfare to promote its training program in psychiatric social wrk.

At its regular fall meeting last year, the Board accepted grants-in-aid totalling $724,000, also a high figure for a single meeting.

DO-IT-YOURSELF

Projects Get Rundown, Tips

NEW YORK (UPI) — Today's advice is for do-it-yourselfers and for those husbands who will be put in this class after their wives read it.

With housing costs continually rising builders and remodelers are giving more and more emphasis to the effective use of integrated outdoor-indoor living space.

One of the more decorative and practical ways to achieve the illusion of more spacious living areas is to use the same type of natural stone flooring in the living and dining areas as in the adjoining patio.

A room gets that look of bigness when the stone floors appear to extend through the wall to outside stone paved areas. Even on small lots, rooms are enhanced by facing on a landscaped private view.

Out door living is at its best in the rear of the house where street sights and noises are blocked off. This is especially so if the lots are narrow and long.

On shallow, wide lots, a side area may be the best choice for the outdoor living area, with screens or planting achieving privacy from the next door neighbor.

As for patio location, the east side of the house is preferred over the west because of the positioning of the sun, and south is preferable to north. Many new homes have the patio in the center of the structure.

And, according to the Building Stone Institute, installing indoor-outdoor quarried stone flooring areas is well with the talents of do-it-yourselfers. Modern quarrying methods not only have made lighter weight stones available, they also have developed pre-packing methods which make floor laying nearly as easy for the amateur to follow as children's paint-by-number kits.

There is a wide range of textures and colors in quarried stone available at local stone yards in pre-cut sizes and designs. Flagstone is one of the most widely used for outdoor flooring materials. Other favorites with modern designers include limestone, travertine, quartzite, slate, bluestone and sandstone, as well as marble and granite.

Ready-mix cement and a trowel are all the equipment needed to set textured stone permanently in place as flooring indoors. For paving a matching patio, a wet construction method will give the most harmonious effect. Crushed stone, or cinders, form boards, sand, cement, nails, and two wooden stakes for each corner are needed.

The first step in this new patio project is to excavate an area slightly larger than the patio and deep enough to go below the frost line. Form boards are then put in place with the top edges even and level with the top of the planned patio.

The excavation is then filled with the crushed stone to a point within four inches plus the stone's thickness of the top. Rake level, wet down and stamp firm. Pour ready-mix concrete over the stone to within one inch plus the flagstone's thickness. Level with a rake and allow concrete to set for 48 hours.

After your two-day rest, mix dry three parts of sand to one part of cement. Add sufficient water to hold mix together and spread over the concrete slab to within ¼-inch of the top of the form about two square feet at a time.

The last maneuver is to cover the bottom of each slate or stone thinly with a mixture of pure cement and water and place firmly in place. Tap with a wooden block to insure the bond.

Now all you have to do is set up plans for matching the living and dining areas with the patio—no easy job, but the results should be well worth it.

her twins into the Foster car. She said he made her drive him 20 miles north of Natchez from where he hoped to cross the Mississippi River into Louisiana.

Officers testified Eslick held up Mrs. Foster during an escape attempt after a gun battle with police in which James Edward Bradley, 19, of Chicamauga, Ga., was killed and Johnny Paul Welch, 22, of San Antonio, killed himself after vowing he "would not be captured alive."

and engineering, the Air Force will be the sole military agency for "space transportation." It will have responsibilities for developing, producing and launching military space boosters for rockets.

The Army and Navy will be assigned specialized satellites and other space work. But their space "payload" will be sent aloft by the Air Force.

These assignments are being carried out through major surgery on the Advanced Research Projects Agency which was set up to give unified direction to space and other advanced projects after the original Russian Sputnik

In the process, ARPA will lose several hundred million dollars of its present half-billion dollar budget, according to York and ARPA Director Roy W. Johnson.

Hard on Army

Designation of the Air Force as the future space force was a hard blow for the army which put America's first earth satellite into orbit and also was first to put an American space probe into orbit around the sun.

The Army had seen a bright future in space through the medium of its Ballistic Missile Agency at Huntsville, Ala., where the leading light is the German-born rocket expert, Dr. Wernher von Braun. An attempt to transfer the Huntsville facilities and technicians may be expected.

The most spectacular development at Huntsville currently is the Saturn space booster, a 1,500,000-pound thrust rocket cluster being made by combining eight engines of the Thor and Jupiter missile types. Saturn is being developed for ARPA but eventually will go to the Air Force, according to York.

York said that as far as the Defense Department is concerned the Air Force is to be exclusively in charge of space travel.

For that purpose, the Air Force is developing the X15 rocket plane to explore the fringes of space

A twister struck Chelsea in east-central Iowa, damaging a number of homes, tearing down power lines and uprooting scores of trees. Seventeen small planes were demolished at the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, airport.

Unconfirmed tornadoes were reported at New Sharon and Belle Plaine in Iowa.

A funnel that didn't touch down was reported by the Missouri highway patrol about two miles north of the St. Louis Airport. Heavy rain and hail fell.

Hail 2½ inches in diameter fell at Gray's Summit, Mo., about 25 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Windstorms damaged buildings in northwest Missouri.

A graphic description of the Grovespring tornado was given by Charles Cline who stood with six others inside a large culvert and watched the twister smash the Ozarks town.

"You could see it coming," he said. "The lower part looked like a quarter to half-mile wide. On top it was a mile or better, and black.

"It got to the houses and tore them to pieces. We could see cars being tossed a quarter of a mile -15 or 20 of them.

Hoover Demands All-Out Attack

"long indifferent to the problem of juvenile crime, now stands appalled at the spectacle of rampaging teen-age criminals."

"Blazing headlines of torture, sadism, murder, and gang warfare toll the depredations of teen-age menaces," he said.

"The black figures of crime statistics present an even more doleful account. In 1958, arrests of juveniles under the age of 18 increased 8 per cent, while arrests of adults rose 1.8 per cent. Alarmingly, not only the frequency of youth crimes but the savagery of these offenses is mounting day by day, year by year.

"The problem of youthful crime . . . exists not only in the densely populated metropolitan centers, but in each and every community in the land. Violent crime sprees and the bizarre escapades of young hoodlums, wily and hardened beyond their years, fire the imagination of other young punks across the nation.

"Unfortunately, any escape from justice by youthful lawbreakers—through weak court systems, public indifference, softheaded sentimentality, senseless preference for the rights of the criminal instead of for his victim—can only give encouragement to other young thugs.

"Action against this youth menace must not be delayed. . . . It is imperative that the American public stand shoulder to shoulder with the undermanned and overburdened law enforcement authorities in combating the youth crime attack.

"It is my firm conviction that the all-out campaign against these flagrant young criminals who commit serious crimes must include publishing their names and crimes for public information, the ready availability of past records for the information of appropriate law enforcement officers, and fingerprinting of these young lawbreakers for future identification. . .

"We are dealing with vicious young criminals, and they should be treated as such.

"The prevention of juvenile destruction lies in the establishment of juvenile discipline. Assuredly, this is the responsibility of every individual interested in his own safety and the welfare of his country."

Busy

A West Monroe man, for some years doing revival work in Japan, is Russell Stellwagon.

Usually he tries to get back home for a short stay in summer, but this season was one that required every minute where he was teaching and preaching in a large tent in a Japanese city of 300,000 people.

Stellwagon reported that he was not far from a typhoon, some houses demolishing others, and causing devastating floods.

Plans

The Caldwell Art Festival which is to be in Columbia, October 17 is already making extensive plans, under the direction of Mrs. O. N. (Jennie) Reynolds and Mrs. Willie Mae Seab.

This year they are paying tribute to the steamboat era in Columbia's history. Some of the ladies who are to be hostesses and any who desire, may dress in costume of the pre-Civil War era.

All who wish to exhibit their paintings may contact Mrs. Raynolds or Mrs. Seab. The pictures are to be matted or framed.

Definition

A fifth grade teacher in one of the Monroe schools was arranging the flowers the children had brought. She said, "If I were a florist, I could do this better. Do you know what a florist is?"

A young man replied, "He must be a man who lays floors?"

Transferred

M-Sgt. George C. Lambert has been transferred from Perrin Air Force Base, Tex. to French Morroco in North Africa. He left Sept. 21 from Sherman, Tex. enroute to Africa.

He is a 27-year-man with the service. He is expected to be in Africa for one year.

His wife and twin daughters, Glenda and Linda will remain at their home in Sherman, Tex. Sgt. Lambert is a brother of Mrs. L. H. Lawrence of Monroe.

headwater regions of central Honshu's major rivers kept alive the threat of floods.

However, the heaviest casualties were in Nagoya, one of Japan's biggest industrial centers. Unofficial reports said there were 160 dead in this area.

Nagoya, a city of nearly two million persons 150 miles west of Tokyo, was paralyzed with complete power failure and its telephone and public transportation knocked out.

Officials expressed fear that Vera might have caused the year's heaviest typhoon damage.

Some 300 persons were buried late Saturday night when a two-story building collapsed in the town of Naka, Gifu prefecture in central Honshu. Many of them were believed to have been killed. A washed-out bridge thwarted police coming to the rescue.

Springs, to comfort the jolts on uneven roads, were introduced on state-coaches in England in 1789 by John Warde.

Are you enjoying life as much as you should?

If you can't stop thinking about your problems . . . if you're easily upset by little things . . . if you're often nervous and on-edge . . . then your tensions may be getting the best of you and it's time to do something about it!

The first thing to do is to realize this: you're not alone! At least one out of ten Americans have emotional problems that are actually so serious they need medical attention. Millions more of us have minor emotional problems which don't need medical treatment, but do make us unhappy.

The second thing to do is to send for the new free booklet, "How To Deal With Your Tensions". In it, you'll find proven suggestions that will help you control your tensions, so you can lead a happier, fuller life.

Ike, Khrush In Deadlock; Stand Firm

U.S. foreign ministers on the Berlin question.

ESSENCE

The essence of Khrushchev's stand is that sooner or later the Western allies must pull their troops from West Berlin and permit the city to operate under some form of international guarantees. The American position is four power occupation of Berlin must continue until there is a peace treaty with a united Germany, and tnat meanwhile the Soviet Union must respect rights in West Berlin.

Eisenhower and Khrushchev bore down in hours of confidental, intensive conversations on the dangerous cold war issue of Berlin and Germany.

They concentrated on this almost to the exclusion of all other East-West problems.

The talk will continue Sunday on the final day of Khrushchev's stay in the United States.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters that other serious matters revolve around Berlin and Germany. He wouldn't say what these were.

He said Khrushchev and his host also touched on disarmament in their conversations, "but the main concentration was on Berlin and Germany."

"I think I can also say," he added, "that these talks will have to continue on these subjects (Berlin and Germany) so that it may be determined if progress has been or can be made on these subjects."

Khrushchev's visit to the United States will end Sunday.

They met at the conference table at Eisenhower's mountain top retreat, Camp David, talked as they strolled the pathways outside and then, more briefly, on the sun porch at Eisenhower's country estate just outside Gettysburg.

The Premier and the President flew by helicopter the 25 miles to the Eisenhower farm and stayed there a little over an hour. The sun porch conference wasn't long, as the two leaders also took time out to go through the house and take a look at the fields and livestock.

Khrushchev, who seems to have a fondness for children, met the four Eisenhower grandchildren, who live here with their parents.

Eisenhower wants his Cabinet members to meet Khrushchev. So the guest list for dinner included Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, and Acting Secretary of Defense Thomas Gates. The President's brother Dr. Milton Eisenhower, also a guest.

In addition, the President invited the man he named to be him rejected by the Senate. This Commerce Secretary, only to have is Lewis L. Strauss.

was 13 on the day of the fatal crash.

PENDING

No definite arrangements had been made for funeral services, but Colonel Bynum had once expressed the desire to his family and his father that he be buried in Arlington Cemetery.

The crash victim was serving his 18th year of duty as a pilot in the U.S. Air Force, and had a brilliant service record.

A graduate of Louisiana State University, he entered the service as a second Lieutenant in ROTC in 1940. Since then, he served as a bomber pilot in World War II, and in the Korean conflict.

He served 14 months under Jimmy Doolittle in the 8th Air Corps, and earlier served under General Patton in the 2nd Armored Division. His service work took him throughout the world, including Norfth Africa, Japan, the Philippines, Korea, and India, as well as throughout the entire United States.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department made public the names of military personnel who were among 16 persons killed in the crash of a commercial airliner in the Aleutian Islands on Thursday.

The Army man was Specialist 4 Carl D. Shackelford, 22, Conway, S. C.

The Air Force men were: Lt. Col. Richard E. Bynum Jr., Monroe, La.; Maj. Marshall P. Featherston, brother Alfred H. Featherston, Murfreesboro, Ark.; Capt. Girard E. L-Abbe, wife, Mrs. Kathryn L-Abbe, Elmendorf Air Base, Alaska; Airman 2.C. Carl F. Thomas, York, Pa.; Airman 3.C. John E. Schaeffer, Bismarck, N. D.; Airman 3.C. George W. Wilson, Picher, Okla.; Airman 3.C. Troy Watson Jr., Berkeley, Calif.

The Navy man was Seaman Apprentice Arthur N. Beiseker Jr., Grand Forks, N.D .

Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson had been at Camp David for lunch.

The chiefs of government of the world's two most powerful nations came to grips with world problems in more than 10 hours of conferences. For about half that time, the President and Premier were alone, except for interpreter U.S. spokesmen said the tone of the discussions was good, that Khrushchev was even-tempered and friendly, and the whole picture seemed encouraging.

2. The third stage of a Thor-Able rocket failed to fire, wrecking a bid to put a 265-pound navigation satellite in orbit about the earth.

3. A camera-carrying Nike-Cajun rocket swerved off course when it shot skyward to take pictures of hurricane Gracie. The nose cone holding the camera dropped outside the intended impact area and was not found.

4. A Snark intercontinental range guided missile nose-dived into the ground and exploded shortly after launch.

In addition, weather and technical difficulties forced postponement of several shots. Among them was an Air Force attempt to send an air-launched ballistic missile across the path of the Explorer VI Paddle Wheel satellite.

Most notable achievement during the period was the successful orbiting of a 100-pound satellite by the last of the Vanguard rockets.

Three big U.S. war weapons also flew successfully. They were an Atlas intercontinental range missile, an intermediate range Thor, and a test version of the Polaris submarine missile.

The cape was especially surprised by the flops of the Jupiter, Snark, and Nike-Cajun, all time-tested rockets.

Most officials at the test center declined to comment on the failures.

However, one said: "We've just hit a string of bad luck. It's happened before. But never have so many big rockets been involved in so short a period."

What about sabotage?

"Of course," he replied, "there's always that possibility when you have thousands of people working on the cape as we do. However, security has screened the sabotage theory very thoroughly, and you can discount it."

her twins into the Foster car. She said he made her drive him 20 miles north of Natchez from where he hoped to cross the Mississippi River into Louisiana.

Officers testified Eslick held up Mrs. Foster during an escape attempt after a gun battle with police in which James Edward Bradley, 19, of Chicamauga, Ga., was killed and Johnny Paul Welch, 22, of San Antonio, killed himself after vowing he "would not be captured alive."

U.S. Airmen Winners In New Policy

and engineering, the Air Force will be the sole military agency for "space transportation." It will have responsibilities for developing, producing and launching military space boosters for rockets.

The Army and Navy will be assigned specialized satellites and other space work. But their space "payload" will be sent aloft by the Air Force.

These assignments are being carried out through major surgery on the Advanced Research Projects Agency which was set up to give unified direction to space and other advanced projects after the original Russian Sputnik

In the process, ARPA will lose several hundred million dollars of its present half-billion dollar budget, according to York and ARPA Director Roy W. Johnson.

Hard on Army

Designation of the Air Force as the future space force was a hard blow for the army which put America's first earth satellite into orbit and also was first to put an American space probe into orbit around the sun.

The Army had seen a bright future in space through the medium of its Ballistic Missile Agency at Huntsville, Ala., where the leading light is the German-born rocket expert, Dr. Wernher von Braun. An attempt to transfer the Huntsville facilities and technicians may be expected.

The most spectacular development at Huntsville currently is the Saturn space booster, a 1,500,000-pound thrust rocket cluster being made by combining eight engines of the Thor and Jupiter missile types. Saturn is being developed for ARPA but eventually will go to the Air Force, according to York.

York said that as far as the Defense Department is concerned the Air Force is to be exclusively in charge of space travel.

For that purpose, the Air Force is developing the X15 rocket plane to explore the fringes of space.

A twister struck Chelsea in east-central Iowa, damaging a number of homes, tearing down power lines and uprooting scores of trees. Seventeen small planes were demolished at the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, airport.

Unconfirmed tornadoes were reported at New Sharon and Belle Plaine in Iowa.

A funnel that didn't touch down was reported by the Missouri highway patrol about two miles north of the St. Louis Airport. Heavy rain and hail fell.

Hail 2½ inches in diameter fell at Gray's Summit, Mo., about 25 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Windstorms damaged buildings in northwest Missouri.

A graphic description of the Grovespring tornado was given by Charles Cline who stood with six others inside a large culvert and watched the twister smash the Ozarks town.

"You could see it coming," he said. "The lower part looked like a quarter to half-mile wide. On top it was a mile or better, and black.

"It got to the houses and tore them to pieces. We could see cars being tossed a quarter of a mile -15 or 20 of them.

Hoover Demands All-Out Attack

"long indifferent to the problem of juvenile crime, now stands appalled at the spectacle of rampaging teen-age criminals."

"Blazing headlines of torture, sadism, murder, and gang warfare toll the depredations of teen-age menaces," he said.

"The black figures of crime statistics present an even more doleful account. In 1958, arrests of juveniles under the age of 18 increased 8 per cent, while arrests of adults rose 1.8 per cent. Alarmingly, not only the frequency of youth crimes but the savagery of these offenses is mounting day by day, year by year.

"The problem of youthful crime . . . exists not only in the densely populated metropolitan centers, but in each and every community in the land. Violent crime sprees and the bizarre escapades of young hoodlums, wily and hardened beyond their years, fire the imagination of other young punks across the nation.

"Unfortunately, any escape from justice by youthful lawbreakers—through weak court systems, public indifference, softheaded sentimentality, senseless preference for the rights of the criminal instead of for his victim—can only give encouragement to other young thugs.

"Action against this youth menace must not be delayed. . . . It is imperative that the American public stand shoulder to shoulder with the undermanned and overburdened law enforcement authorities in combating the youth crime attack.

"It is my firm conviction that the all-out campaign against these flagrant young criminals who commit serious crimes must include publishing their names and crimes for public information, the ready availability of past records for the information of appropriate law enforcement officers, and fingerprinting of these young lawbreakers for future identification. . . .

"We are dealing with vicious young criminals, and they should be treated as such.

"The prevention of juvenile destruction lies in the establishment of juvenile discipline. Assuredly, this is the responsibility of every individual interested in his own safety and the welfare of his country."

Busy

A West Monroe man, for some years doing revival work in Japan, is Russell Stellwagon.

Usually he tries to get back home for a short stay in summer, but this season was one that required every minute where he was teaching and preaching in a large tent in a Japanese city of 300,000 people.

Stellwagon reported that he was not far from a typhoon, some houses demolishing others, and causing devasting floods.

Plans

The Caldwell Art Festival which is to be in Columbia, October 17 is already making extensive plans, under the direction of Mrs. O. N. (Jennie) Reynolds and Mrs. Willie Mae Seab.

This year they are paying tribute to the steamboat era in Columbia's history. Some of the ladies who are to be hostesses and any who desire, may dress in costume of the pre-Civil War era.

All who wish to exhibit their paintings may contact Mrs. Raynolds or Mrs. Seab. The pictures are to be matted or framed.

Definition

A fifth grade teacher in one of the Monroe schools was arranging the flowers the children had brought. She said, "If I were a florist, I could do this better. Do you know what a florist is?"

A young man replied, "He must be a man who lays floors?"

Transferred

M-Sgt. George C. Lambert has been transferred from Perrin Air Force Base, Tex. to French Morroco in North Africa. He left Sept. 21 from Sherman, Tex. enroute to Africa.

He is a 27-year-man with the service. He is expected to be in Africa for one year.

His wife and twin daughters, Glenda and Linda will remain at their home in Sherman, Tex. Sgt. Lambert is a brother of Mrs. L. H. Lawrence of Monroe.

headwater regions of central Honshu's major rivers kept alive the threat of floods.

However, the heaviest casualties were in Nagoya, one of Japan's biggest industrial centers. Unofficial reports said there were 160 dead in this area.

Nagoya, a city of nearly two million persons 130 miles west of Tokyo, was paralyzed with complete power failure and its telephone and public transportation knocked out.

Officials expressed fear that Vera might have caused the year's heaviest typhoon damage.

Some 300 persons were buried late Saturday night when a two-story building collapsed in the town of Naka, Gifu prefecture in central Honshu. Many of them were believed to have been killed. A washed-out bridge thwarted police coming to the rescue.

Ike, Khrush In Deadlock; Stand Firm

U.S. foreign ministers on the Berlin question.

ESSENCE

The essence of Khrushchev's stand is that sooner or later the Western allies must pull their troops from West Berlin and permit the city to operate under some form of international guarantees. The American position is four power occupation of Berlin must continue until there is a peace treaty with a united Germany, and tnat meanwhile the Soviet Union must respect rights in West Berlin.

Eisenhower and Khrushchev bore down in hours of confidental, intensive conversations on the dangerous cold war issue of Berlin and Germany.

They concentrated on this almost to the exclusion of all other East-West problems.

The talk will continue Sunday on the final day of Khrushchev's stay in the United States.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters that other serious matters revolve around Berlin and Germany. He wouldn't say what these were.

He said Khrushchev and his host also touched on disarmament in their conversations, "but the main concentration was on Berlin and Germany."

"I think I can also say," he added, "that these talks will have to continue on these subjects (Berlin and Germany) so that it may be determined if progress has been or can be made on these subjects."

Khrushchev's visit to the United States will end Sunday.

They met at the conference table at Eisenhower's mountain top retreat, Camp David, talked as they strolled the pathways outside and then, more briefly, on the sun porch at Eisenhower's country estate just outside Gettysburg.

The Premier and the President flew by helicopter the 25 miles to the Eisenhower farm and stayed there a little over an hour. The sun porch conference wasn't long, as the two leaders also took time out to go through the house and take a look at the fields and livestock.

Khrushchev, who seems to have a fondness for children, met the four Eisenhower grandchildren, who live here with their parents.

Eisenhower wants his Cabinet members to meet Khrushchev. So the guest list for dinner included Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, and Acting Secretary of Defense Thomas Gates. The President's brother Dr. Milton Eisenhower, also was a guest.

In addition, the President invited the man he named to be him rejected by the Senate. This Commerce Secretary, only to have is Lewis L. Strauss.

Are you enjoying life as much as you should?

If you can't stop thinking about your problems . . . if you're easily upset by little things . . . if you're often nervous and on-edge . . . then your tensions may be getting the best of you and it's time to do something about it!

The first thing to do is to realize this: you're not alone! At least one out of ten Americans have emotional problems that are actually so serious they need medical attention. Millions more of us have minor emotional problems which don't need medical treatment, but do make us unhappy.

The second thing to do is to send for the new free booklet, "How To Deal With Your Tensions". In it, you'll find proven suggestions that will help you control your tensions, so you can lead a happier, fuller life.

For your free copy of this booklet, write: Box 2500, New York 1, N.Y.

Hurricane Loses Rating As Wind Drops To 70

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Gracie is no longer a hurricane, its top winds dropping to 70 miles an hour Saturday. And it's not the threat to the U.S. mailland it once was.

But the Weather Bureau warned it's possible the storm may regenerate to hurricane force—74 miles an hour or better—and strike out in any direction.

Gracie was 'waddling around" Saturday in the words of forecaster William McGehee. At 11 a.m., it was centered 430 miles east of Cape Canaveral, Fla., and drifting in an easterly direction at about five miles an hour. It has been in that general vicinity for the past two days.

The direction is new. Previously Gracie, which developed into a hurricane Tuesday, had moved northwest in the direction of the Carolina coast.

"We can't say whether it will continue going east," said McGehee. "We consider it just drifting right now."

A definite move eastward would take the storm into the open Atlantic, removing any danger to the Eastern seaboard.

McGehee said "it may open up tomorrow—then we'll be able to say where it's headed. Winds from a high pressure cell over the Carolinas have been holding it back, keeping it from moving out."

Interests along the Carolina coast have been warned to keep in touch with advisories over the week end until it is definitely established that Gracie will remain at sea.

Sen. Humphrey Opens Five-Day Wisconsin Tour

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn) opened a five-day tour of Wisconsin Saturday by blasting the Eisenhower administration as a "no-go, go-slow, not-now, veto administration."

Humphrey, a leading aspirant for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination, told a Milwaukee breakfast gathering that the Republican administration "doesn't believe in good, progressive government, and it fights us to the very end."

The Republicans cannot capture Congress in 1960, Humphrey said, so the Democratic party must concentrate its efforts toward putting "a sensible, constructive, progressive liberal Democrat in the White House."

Humphrey took notice of the fact that two other leading Democrats, Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Adlai Stevenson, are in Wisconsin this weekend.

Stevenson, he commented, "is one of the truly great men of our time." Concerning Kennedy, Humphrey said, "I've been reading his messages. They're good. He's done a good job."

Humphrey, accompanied by his wife, Muriel, moved on to Green Bay Saturday morning for a luncheon meeting. His trip will take him to nearly every section of Wisconsin through Wednesday night.

Humphrey and Kennedy, who are likely to compete in Wisconsin's 1960 presidential primary, are in the state to test the political winds.

Hurricane Loses Rating As Wind Drops To 70

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Gracie is no longer a hurricane, its top winds dropping to 70 miles an hour Saturday. And it's not the threat to the U.S. mailland it once was.

But the Weather Bureau warned it's possible the storm may regenerate to hurricane force—74 miles an hour or better—and strike out in any direction.

Gracie was 'waddling around" Saturday in the words of forecaster William McGehee. At 11 a.m., it was centered 430 miles east of Cape Canaveral, Fla., and drifting in an easterly direction at about five miles an hour. It has been in that general vicinity for the past two days.

The direction is new. Previously Gracie, which developed into a hurricane Tuesday, had moved northwest in the direction of the Carolina coast.

"We can't say whether it will continue going east," said McGehee. "We consider it just drifting right now."

A definite move eastward would take the storm into the open Atlantic, removing any danger to the Eastern seaboard.

McGehee said "it may open up tomorrow—then we'll be able to say where it's headed. Winds from a high pressure cell over the Carolinas have been holding it back, keeping it from moving out."

Interests along the Carolina coast have been warned to keep in touch with advisories over the week end until it is definitely established that Gracie will remain at sea.

Sen. Humphrey Opens Five-Day Wisconsin Tour

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D - Minn) opened a five-day tour of Wisconsin Saturday by blasting the Eisenhower administration as a "no-go, go-slow, not-now, veto administration."

Humphrey, a leading aspirant for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination, told a Milwaukee breakfast gathering that the Republican administration "doesn't believe in good, progressive government, and it fights us to the very end."

The Republicans cannot capture Congress in 1960, Humphrey said, so the Democratic party must concentrate its efforts toward putting "a sensible, constructive, progressive liberal Democrat in the White House."

Humphrey took notice of the fact that two other leading Democrats, Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Adlai Stevenson, are in Wisconsin this weekend.

Stevenson, he commented, "is one of the truly great men of our time." Concerning Kennedy, Humphrey said, "I've been reading his messages. They're good. He's done a good job."

Humphrey, accompanied by his wife, Muriel, moved on to Green Bay Saturday morning for a luncheon meeting. His trip will take him to nearly every section of Wisconsin through Wednesday night.

Humphrey and Kennedy, who are likely to compete in Wisconsin's 1960 presidential primary, are in the state to test the political winds.

Beauty Found Slain

Mrs. Janice Drake, 32, a former beauty queen, and her companion, Anthony (Little Augie Pisano) Carfano, 62, an underworld kingpin, were found shot to death Friday night in a car near New York's La Guardia airport. Mrs. Drake, wife of comedian Allan Drake, was Miss New Jersey of 1944 as Janice Hansen. Carfano was a former henchman of Al Capone and a long-time buddy of Frank Costello. (AP Wirephoto)

KILLED WITH RACKETEER

Dead Blonde Linked With Gang Slayings

NEW YORK (UPI)—A honey blonde one - time Miss America contender murdered with Mafia racketeer "Little Augie" Pisano had been questioned in two gangland slayings before two underworld bullets pierced her skull, police disclosed Saturday.

Mrs. Jancie Drake, 32, once billed as "the girl with the most beautiful pair of legs in the world," was taken on a gangland ride while her comedian husband was performing in a Washington, D. C. nightclub and her 13-year-old son was at home alone.

"I lost the greatest wife a man ever had," sobbed comedian Allen Drake after being questioned by police.

Mrs. Drake, "Miss New Jersey" in the 1944 Miss America contest, was questioned in 1952 in the gangland slaying of "Manufacturer" Nat Nelson two hours after he had taken her home from a date.

Five years later she was questioned in the barber shop assassination of Albert Anastasia, lord high executioner of Murder, Inc.

What she told police on those two occasions was not disclosed. Police did not say whether they believed Mrs. Drake was the principal target of the killers who shot her and Pisano Friday night as they drove from a Manhattan restaurant to watch a prizefight on television.

There actually were two mysteries in the deaths of Mrs. Drake and 61-year-old Pisano, former East Coast lieutenant of Scarface Al Capone and partner-in-crime of Frank Costello and Lucky Luciano, reputed czar of the global Scilian-born crime ring known as the Mafia.

One mystery was Who shot the couple to death in Pisano's Cadillac on a residential street in Jackson Heights, Queens, early Saturday.

Police found a little red address book in Pisano's pocket, along with nearly $2,000 in cash. Officers said the names in the book made up "who's who" of the underworld.

They said they would question persons listed, including bookmaking czar Frank Erickson, Costello and other underworld leaders.

The other mystery was: Why was Mrs. Drake killed along with Pisano, and how did she stray from the beauty contest trail, on which she won 32 titles, fame and money in her 'teens, only to wind up lurking in the dark back streets of the underworld.

Drake has been appearing with singer Tony Martin at the Lotus Club, in Washington, D. C. Their 13-year-old son, Michael was at home alone in New York when police called to say his mother had been murdered in the gangland fashion usually reserved for racketeers' mills.

Drake rushed here from Washington and told police that Pisano, whose real name was Anthony Carfano, was a friend of his and his wife. He indicated there had been no rift between him and Janice.

An unidentified person telephoned police to report the shooting. Residents who ran to the automobile found the engine still running. The car had come to a sudden halt with one wheel on a sidewalk.

Pisano was covered with blood from two shots in the back of his head at the base of the skull and a shot in his left cheek.

Mrs. Drake, dressed in a chic black low-cut cocktail dress and a fur stole, was slumped against a door. She had been shot in the right temple and the left side of her neck.

It was a grisely end for the blue-eyed blonde's career, which began auspiciously in the 1940's. Her brief but spectacular career as a beauty reached its peak in 1944, when as Janice Hansen of Union City, N.J., she went to the Miss America contest determined to win the crown.

Janice went home disappointed and quickly faded into obscurity. She married Drake 14 years ago and bore a son.

Deaths

MRS. MARY LANDREAUX

Services are set for Mrs. Mary Ambroisine Landreaux, 59, of Route 4, West Monroe, who died at her home Friday morning. A native of Natchitoches, she had been a resident of West Monroe for the past 36 years.

She was a member of St. Paschal's Catholic Church in West Monroe.

Final rites will be held Monday at 10 a.m. at St. Paschal's Church with Father Jordon officiating. Interment will follow in Hasley Cemetery under direction of Peters Funeral Home.

Survivors include her husband, Joseph L. Landreaux, West Monroe; five daughters, Mrs. Jack Oglesbee, Mrs. Gail Harkins, Mrs. M. T. Austin, Jr., Miss Ethel Landreaux; and Miss Judy Landreaux, all of West Monroe; two sisters, Miss Mary Wallette, West Monroe; Mrs. Floyd Lemoine, Shreveport; one brother, J. B. Wallette, West Monroe, and seven grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be D. J. Landreaux, Louis Landreaux, C. T. Coats, Elmer Vaughan, Ralph Gebhardt, Nelson Maricelli.

Warning Issued On Shooting In Northside Area

Responding to complaints from residents in the area, Monroe police have announced a crack - down on youngsters shooting firearms over the levee in the vicinity of Island Drive.

The youngsters apparently are hunting for doves and other birds, but the frequent echo of gunfire has made residents along Island Drive apprehensive over the possibility that bullets may ricochet and strike someone.

There are a number of small children in the area, they pointed out, and the presence of unauthorized hunters creates a hazard.

Police have been instructed to apprehend persons shooting in the vicinity and bring them to City Hall to face charges of disturbing the peace and creating hazards to public safety.

It was pointed out that more serious charges will result if anyone is injured through action of the gun wielders.

CHRISTMAS IN AUGUST

GENEVA, N.Y. (UPI) —Christmas decorations were strung across downtown streets for a week during the month of August here.

The Chamber of Commerce explained it wanted merchants to decide what decorations looked best before planning Christmas season displays.

Beauty Found Slain

Mrs. Janice Drake, 32, a former beauty queen, and her companion, Anthony (Little Augie Pisano) Carfano, 62, an underworld kingpin, were found shot to death Friday night in a car near New York's La Guardia airport. Mrs. Drake, wife of comedian Allan Drake, was Miss New Jersey of 1944 as Janice Hansen. Carfano was a former henchman of Al Capone and a long-time buddy of Frank Costello. (AP Wirephoto)

KILLED WITH RACKETEER

Dead Blonde Linked With Gang Slayings

NEW YORK (UPI)—A honey blonde one - time Miss America contender murdered with Mafia racketeer "Little Augie" Pisano had been questioned in two gangland slayings before two underworld bullets pierced her skull, police disclosed Saturday.

Mrs. Jancie Drake, 32 , once billed as "the girl with the most beautiful pair of legs in the world," was taken on a gangland ride while her comedian husband was performing in a Washington, D. C. nightclub and her 13-year-old son was at home alone.

"I lost the greatest wife a man ever had," sobbed comedian Allen Drake after being questioned by police.

Mrs. Drake, "Miss New Jersey" in the 1944 Miss America contest, was questioned in 1952 in the gangland slaying of "Manufacturer" Nat Nelson two hours after he had taken her home from a date.

Five years later she was questioned in the barber shop assassination of Albert Anastasia, lord high executioner of Murder, Inc.

What she told police on those two occasions was not disclosed. Police did not say whether they believed Mrs. Drake was the principal target of the killers who shot her and Pisano Friday night as they drove from a Manhattan restaurant to watch a prizefight on television.

There actually were two mysteries in the deaths of Mrs. Drake and 61-year-old Pisano, former East Coast lieutenant of Scarface Al Capone and partner-in-crime of Frank Costello and Lucky Luciano, reputed czar of the global Scilian-born crime ring known as the Mafia.

One mystery was Who shot the couple to death in Pisano's Cadillac on a residential street in Jackson Heights, Queens, early Saturday.

Police found a little red address book in Pisano's pocket, along with nearly $2,000 in cash. Officers said the names in the book made up "who's who" of the underworld.

They said they would question persons listed, including bookmaking czar Frank Erickson, Costello and other underworld leaders.

The other mystery was: Why was Mrs. Drake killed along with Pisano, and how did she stray from the beauty contest trail, on which she won 32 titles, fame and money in her 'teens, only to wind up lurking in the dark back streets of the underworld.

Drake has been appearing with singer Tony Martin at the Lotus Club, in Washington, D. C. Their 13-year-old son, Michael was at home alone in New York when police called to say his mother had been murdered in the gangland fashion usually reserved for racketeers' mills.

Drake rushed here from Washington and told police that Pisano, whose real name was Anthony Carfano, was a friend of his and his wife. He indicated there had been no rift between him and Janice.

An unidentified person telephoned police to report the shooting. Residents who ran to the automobile found the engine still running. The car had come to a sudden halt with one wheel on a sidewalk.

Pisano was covered with blood from two shots in the back of his head at the base of the skull and a shot in his left cheek.

Mrs. Drake, dressed in a chic black low-cut cocktail dress and a fur stole, was slumped against a door. She had been shot in the right temple and the left side of her neck.

It was a grisely end for the blue-eyed blonde's career, which began auspiciously in the 1940's. Her brief but spectacular career as a beauty reached its peak in 1944, when as Janice Hansen of Union City, N.J., she went to the Miss America contest determined to win the crown.

Janice went home disappointed and quickly faded into obscurity. She married Drake 14 years ago and bore a son.

Warning Issued On Shooting In Northside Area

Responding to complaints from residents in the area, Monroe police have announced a crack - down on youngsters shooting firearms over the levee in the vicinity of Island Drive.

The youngsters apparently are hunting for doves and other birds, but the frequent echo of gunfire has made residents along Island Drive apprehensive over the possibility that bullets may ricochet and strike someone.

There are a number of small children in the area, they pointed out, and the presence of unauthorized hunters creates a hazard.

Police have been instructed to apprehend persons shooting in the vicinity and bring them to City Hall to face charges of disturbing the peace and creating hazards to public safety.

It was pointed out that more serious charges will result if anyone is injured through action of the gun wielders.

DOWAGER RESORTS

Things Changed At Atlantic City

By CLAIRE COX

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)— The dowager of American resorts has gone modern.

She hasn't donned a bikini yet, but 100-year-old Atlantic City is kicking up her heels to keep pace with the air age, which has put her in competition with Hawaii and the French Riviera.

Atlantic City still has its board walk, rolling chairs and salt water taffy.

The same amusement piers that stood 50 years ago still jut out into the ocean.

Externally, most of the big beach-front hotels are the same fortresses of respectability that they were in the gay '90s.

But the air and auto ages have brought a new kind of traveler to Atlantic City. As a result, there are cocktail lounges, year-round swimming pools, ice skating rinks, air conditioning and motels with ice makers on every floor and free television in each room.

The operators of the staid old hotels that have catered in past years mainly to the rich, elderly or ailing, cringe slightly at mention of the word "motel," but they admit that it has improved the appearance of the city.

In 1953, the first small eight-unit motel was built here. Now there are more than 70, with 4,000 units, and many more to come. One old hotel, the Shelburne, has built a large luxury motel, the Empress which offers its own motel facilities, including a solar-heated plastic-domed winter swimming pool, in addition to the Shelburne's deluxe service.

Robert W. Leeds, vice president of Leeds and Lippincott, owners and operators of the huge Chalfonte-Haddon Hall Hotel for nearly 70 years, said in an interview that the motel has changed the physical appearance of Atlantic City drastically.

"It has replaced some frame structures that were not things of beauty," he said.

Leeds said the biggest change that has come over Atlantic City has been its conversion to a year-round resort, not just a place to come to in the summer.

Business now does not really start to boom until the summer season is over, in fact, he said.

In the early days, the boardwalk was rolled up and stored in a barn each September and all the hotels and boarding houses closed for the winter. Now innkeepers are just beginning to get their second wind by the time Labor Day has come and gone and the new Miss America has begun stumping the country in behalf of beauty and Atlantic City.

Conventions are the backbone of business in this city of 60,000 population which plays host to around 14 million visitors a year. Most of the conventions are held between September and June, after the vacationists have gone home.

Up to 75 per cent of the annual 700 million to 800 million dollars income of the resort comes from the conventioneers who patronize the city's 400 hotels and motels and 500 restaurants.

"There is an entirely different clientele in the summer, too," Leeds said. "In the old days, children were not allowed in the lobbies of most of the big hotels. Now the whole family is welcome.

"A great many people today are financially able to come here who weren't before. As the standard of living has gone up, you don't have to be in the upper brackets to come.

"People used to come to Atlantic City for the whole summer, when going some place was a major operation. You just didn't go to a resort for a few days.

"We used to have two trucks that did nothing but haul baggage. The train was the only way to get here. You packed your trunks and stayed for two months. Now the average stay probably is three days.

People come from farther away too. They fly in from clear across the country, putting us in competition with Bermuda, California, Puerto Rico, Hawaii and even the French Riviera."

Leeds said that "winterized" glass topped swimming pools are being built all along the beach-front despite the fact that the ocean is only a few yards away.

"It's a mass hysteria," he said. "All of a sudden a swimming pool is a thing to have. It's a status maker. Ten years ago, pools were empty. Now everyone must have a pool or go to a place where there is one. We are building a pool. We found we had to come to it because we were losing convention and other business."

BEHIND EUROPE

American Youths Lag In Arithmetic

By LOUIS CASSLS
United Press International

American children, by the time they finish elementary school, are a full two years behind their European counterparts in the study of arithmetic.

This shocking assertion is made—and documented—in a report just published by the Council for Basic Education.

The council is a non-profit organization devoted to strengthening the academic cirriculum of American schools. Its report, entitled "Teaching the 3rd R," is based on a comparative study of arithmetic textbooks used in American and European elementary schools.

The report reveals that European schools, beginning with the first grade, "spend significantly more time on arithmetic than do American schools."

The study also shows that European schools introduce basic mathematical concepts and processes much sooner than do American schools. For example, the multiplication tables are usually taught in the 4th grade in this country. Children in France, Germany, Greece, Holland, Poland and Sweden master them in the second grade.

American children as a rule don't take up fractions until the fifth grade. Most European children learn fractions in the fourth grade, and English schools introduce them in the third grade.

Decimals, a sixth grade subject in America, are taken up in the fourth and fifth grades in Europe.

European children, by the time they finish the sixth grade, they have covered as much geometry as the average American child gets in the 8th or 9th grade.

Behind these specific differences, the authors believ, is a fundamental divergence of educational philosophy. European schools value mathematics highly as a means of sharpening a child's intellect and teaching him to think logically, clearly and quickly.

American educators tend to regard this "mental discipline" concept as old-fashioned and osbolete. They emphasize the "usefulness" of mathematics in dealing with practical problems of business, science or engineering.

The report argues that American children are not inherently stupid, and that they could grasp (and delight in) the exciting concepts of mathematics as early as European youngsters if given the change.

Navy Plays Shriek Tape To Chase Gulls

BAYONNE, N.J. (AP) — The resourceful Navy is ridding itself of sea gulls by telling them to "get the hell out of here" in their own language.

That is the exact translation offered by a Navy spokesman after he heard a shrieking tape-recorded sea gull call, designed to drive the birds away from the supply depot here.

The translation may be more Navy than sea gull—but it apparently works.

Two amateur bird chasers by the names of H. Palmer Starner and Stannard Stocking showed up Thursday with their tape recorder.

They hooked it up to a public address system and an ear-shattering "aawk" resounded around the base.

An admiral stood atop an eight-story building reported all he saw was birds everywhere, according to a public information officer.

The place was without gulls for two hours. Then they flew back. The Navy expected them.

The noise has to be repeated to keep the gulls away.

Enrollment At Northeast At New High

Incomplete figures showed a registration of 2,459 students at Northeast Louisiana State College for the fall term — a 5.5 per cent increase over last year and a 62 per cent increase over five years ago.

Dr. Clint Hanna, director of admissions, said a final count is expected to reveal about 2,500 students enrolled at the college.

Last September 2,320 students registered. Five years ago — in 1955 — the total reached 1,513.

Preliminary figures for the 1959-60 fall term now show a totol of 917 freshmen. Sophomores totaled 524, juniors 379, and seniors 373.

Evening, night, and Saturday classes account for 230 students. Thirty-five students working toward degrees are listed as unclassified.

All classes — freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior — have already shown increases over last year's final figures, with the largest increase in the freshman class.

Tech Air ROTC Enrollment Up For Semester

RUSTON (Special) — Freshman interest in the Air Force ROTC at Louisiana Tech has gained this semester.

With an enrollment of 308 beginners in the cadet program at Tech, a new high record has been set for freshmen here, Lt. Col. Homer E. Patty, professor of air science, announced.

Colonel Patty said this is the first year the freshman total has been more than 300. There were 288 entrants in 1958.

Buttons Drop Out Of Favor, Zippers Zoom

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Once a boon to mankind, the lowly button rapidly is going into discard because of man's desire to save time and energy.

That's the word from Dewey Albert, who says the zipper is symptomatic of what's wrong with our world. Albert, of Highstown, N. J., is a delegate to the National Button Society Convention, now under way here. And to Albert's way of thinking, the question of buttons vs. zippers is an open and shut case, so to speak.

"Is the world any better because of the zipper?" he asks.

"I'll tell you what the trouble is—people are lazy, that's what. They don't want to take the time to button buttons. So they use zippers.

"That's what's wrong with America."

Albert, whose wife is editor of the Bimonthly National Button Bulletin, is an authority on buttons.

Some of his findings:

Coat sleeves have three buttons "so you won't use your sleeve for a handkerchief. King George III thought of that during the revolution."

Buttons played a strategic role in the Civil War — "The South didn't have any button factories and so the North blockaded all the British ships bringing buttons from England. The South had an awful time. They couldn't get any buttons at all and they had to try to make their own. Just imagine. Some Confederate soldiers had to tie on acorns instead of buttons."

Albert says soldiers were extremely proud of their regimental buttons in the old days but now "even policemen and firemen are using zippers. It's something I can't understand."

"It used to be that buttons were things of beauty. You could tell a man's good taste in things and his wealth by the kind of buttons he wore on his waistcoat. Not any more. A zipper doesn't tell anything about a man."

DOWAGER RESORTS

Things Changed At Atlantic City

By CLAIRE COX

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—The dowager of American resorts has gone modern.

She hasn't donned a bikini yet, but 100-year-old Atlantic City is kicking up her heels to keep pace with the air age, which has put her in competition with Hawaii and the French Riviera.

Atlantic City still has its board walk, rolling chairs and salt water taffy.

The same amusement piers that stood 50 years ago still jut out into the ocean.

Externally, most of the big beach-front hotels are the same fortresses of respectability that they were in the gay '90s.

But the air and auto ages have brought a new kind of traveler to Atlantic City. As a result, there are cocktail lounges, year-round swimming pools, ice skating rinks, air conditioning and motels with ice makers on every floor and free television in each room.

The operators of the staid old hotels that have catered in past years mainly to the rich, elderly or ailing, cringe slightly at mention of the word "motel," but they admit that it has improved the appearance of the city.

In 1953, the first small eight-unit motel was built here. Now there are more than 70, with 4,000 units, and many more to come. One old hotel, the Shelburne, has built a large luxury motel, the Empress which offers its own motel facilities, including a solar-heated plastic-domed winter swimming pool, in addition to the Shelburne's deluxe service.

Robert W. Leeds, vice president of Leeds and Lippincott, owners and operators of the huge Chalfonte-Haddon Hall Hotel for nearly 70 years, said in an interview that the motel has changed the physical appearance of Atlantic City drastically.

"It has replaced some frame structures that were not things of beauty," he said.

Leeds said the biggest change that has come over Atlantic City has been its conversion to a year-round resort, not just a place to come to in the summer.

Business now does not really start to boom until the summer season is over, in fact, he said.

In the early days, the boardwalk was rolled up and stored in a barn each September and all the hotels and boarding houses closed for the winter. Now innkeepers are just beginning to get their second wind by the time Labor Day has come and gone and the new Miss America has begun stumping the country in behalf of beauty and Atlantic City.

Conventions are the backbone of business in this city of 60,000 population which plays host to around 14 million visitors a year. Most of the conventions are held between September and June, after the vacationists have gone home.

Up to 75 per cent of the annual 700 million to 800 million dollars income of the resort comes from the conventioneers who patronize the city's 400 hotels and motels and 500 restaurants.

"There is an entirely different clientele in the summer, too," Leeds said. "In the old days, children were not allowed in the lobbies of most of the big hotels. Now the whole family is welcome.

"A great many people today are financially able to come here who weren't before. As the standard of living has gone up, you don't have to be in the upper brackets to come.

"People used to come to Atlantic City for the whole summer, when going some place was a major operation. You just didn't go to a resort for a few days.

"We used to have two trucks that did nothing but haul baggage. The train was the only way to get here. You packed your trunks and stayed for two months. Now the average stay probably is three days.

People come from farther away too. They fly in from clear across the country, putting us in competition with Bermuda, California, Puerto Rico, Hawaii and even the French Riviera."

Leeds said that "winterized" glass topped swimming pools are being built all along the beach-front despite the fact that the ocean is only a few yards away.

"It's a mass hysteria," he said. "All of a sudden a swimming pool is a thing to have. It's a status maker. Ten years ago, pools were empty. Now everyone must have a pool or go to a place where there is one. We are building a pool . We found we had to come to it because we were losing convention and other business."

RODERICK HICKMAN

R.A. Hickman Appointed To NE Position

Roderick A. Hickman, associate professor at Northeast Louisiana State College, has been appointed acting chairman of the mathematics department, President George T. Walker announced.

Hickman has been a member of the college faculty since 1948. Prior to that time, he had experience as a high school teacher.

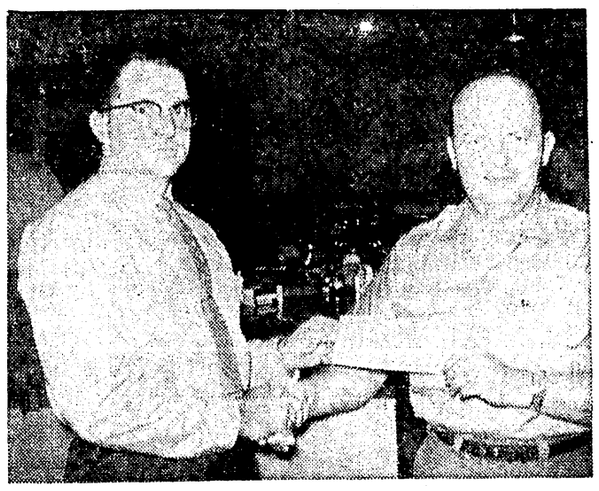
He received the bachelor of science degree at Mississippi State University, the master of arts degree at George Peabody College, and he did advanced study at the University of Mississippi.

Among the professional organizations with which he is affiliated are the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and Phi Delta Kappa, national honorary graduate education fraternity.

Hickman heads a department which has been enabled to broaden its curriculum this fall by the addition of instructors.

New staff members include: Rufus E. Bruce, B.S., Louisiana State University; Mrs. Rosemary Hamner, M.A., University of Texas; Frank L. Harmon, M.A., Univeristy of Mississippi, and John B. Moore, M.S., North Texas State College.

Mathematics instructors who are continuing their service at Northeast are: Edward B. Anders, Dr. Hugh Hyman, Mrs. Emma Ferguson Mixon, and Mrs. Mabel Skinner Slay.



Quarter Million Dollar Check

AREA NEWS

ABOUT PEOPLE, EVENTS

Consolidated Clubs

FERRIDAY (Special) — The civic clubs of Concordia Parish have banded together and formed a Consolidated Civic Clubs organization. They held their first meeting last week and elected a slate of officers.

Life Saved

RUSTON (Special) — The sheriff's department saved the life of a prisoner in the parish jail. The man, a Monroe Negro named James R. Cox, attempted to hang himself with a bed sheet in his cell. He was cut down and rushed to the hospital. Marriage difficulties were given in a note as the reason for the attempt.

Two Injured In Accidents Around Arena

WINNSBORO (Special) — Two persons were in the Rogers' Clinic after two separate accidents shortly before 3 p.m. yesterday.

In the first accident, which happened at 2:45 p.m., Franklin Charles Minor Jr., Negro, 8, son of Frank Minor Sr., of Wisner, started across the Highway 15 two miles below Wisner and was hit by a car driven by Kinneth Blakenship, 21, of Vidalia.

According to Cpl. Dave Chase of the state police, Blakenship was on his way home from La. Tech and swerved to avoid hitting the child, but was unable to avoid hitting him with the left end of the bumper. Blakenship brought the Negro boy back to the clinic in Winnsboro, and attending physician said he had multiple lacerations and contusions, fractured ribs, and possible internal injuries. He is being held for observation.

NO CHARGES

No charges were filed in the case.

In the other accident, at 2:50 p.m. one mile south of Chase on Highway 15, Wiley I. Johnson, 81, of Route 2, Winnsboro, was driving a pickup truck going north when he evidently failed to see a flagman and ran into the right rear of a dump truck which had backed up to unload dirt on the road shoulder, where construction was underway.

Driver of the truck was Robert E. Almond, of Oak Grove. The truck belonged to a construction company in West Monroe. The truck was not damaged and its driver was not injured.

His passenger, Jimmie H. Johnston, 72, also of Winnsboro, Route 2, was brought to Rogers Clinic by First National ambulance, and was reported suffering from lacerations of the face and various bruises. He is being kept in the clinic for observation.

The pick up truck was demolished according to Cpl. Chase of State police, Wiley Johnson was charged with failing to yield right-of - way. The two men had been fishing and were returning home. Fish were scattered over the pavement at the scene.

Results Of Strike

RUSTON (Special) — The steel strike is being felt here as Lincoln Enterprises has announced that it will have to shut down for lack of materials in around two weeks. Only 50 workmen are on the job now at the plant which manufactures picnic jugs, braziers and other outdoors recreational specialties.

Commended

OAK GROVE (Special) — Sergeant S. L. Harrison has been commended by his commanding officer for setting a recruiting record for the army. Sgt. Harrison is stationed at Ft. Gordon, Ga., and works in the post recruiting office. He enlisted 33 men in one day. He formerly worked the northeast Louisiana area.

PTA Confabs

The Louisiana Parent- Teacher Association will hold several fall conferences in the state. In the northeast Louisiana area there will be meetings at West Monroe, Oct. 7; Ruston, Oct. 6; Collinston, Oct. 9.

Farmerville Man Suffers Broken Leg In Accident

A Farmerville man, Melvin Ward, sustained a broken left leg here yesterday when he stumbled and fell among a pile of large boulders where he was working below Lock and Dam No. 4 on the Ouachita River.

Ward was picked up and rushed by Peters Funeral Home ambulance to the St. Francis hospital, where attendants said his left leg was broken.

The injured man said he fell after being blinded by a powerful spotlight while walking across the huge rocks and boulders on the river, near where he was working.

The male mallard, one of the most numerous of game birds has a bright green head and a purple mark on the wings.

RODERICK HICKMAN

R.A. Hickman Appointed To NE Position

Roderick A. Hickman, associate professor at Northeast Louisiana State College, has been appointed acting chairman of the mathematics department, President George T. Walker announced.

Hickman has been a member of the college faculty since 1948. Prior to that time, he had experience as a high school teacher.

He received the bachelor of science degree at Mississippi State University, the master of arts degree at George Peabody College, and he did advanced study at the University of Mississippi.

Among the professional organizations with which he is affiliated are the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and Phi Delta Kappa, national honorary graduate education fraternity.

Hickman heads a department which has been enabled to broaden its curriculum this fall by the addition of instructors.

New staff members include: Rufus E. Bruce, B.S., Louisiana State University; Mrs. Rosemary Hamner, M.A., University of Texas; Frank L. Harmon, M.A., Univeristy of Mississippi, and John B. Moore, M.S., North Texas State College.

Mathematics instructors who are continuing their service at Northeast are: Edward B. Anders, Dr. Hugh Hyman, Mrs. Emma Ferguson Mixon, and Mrs. Mabel Skinner Slay.

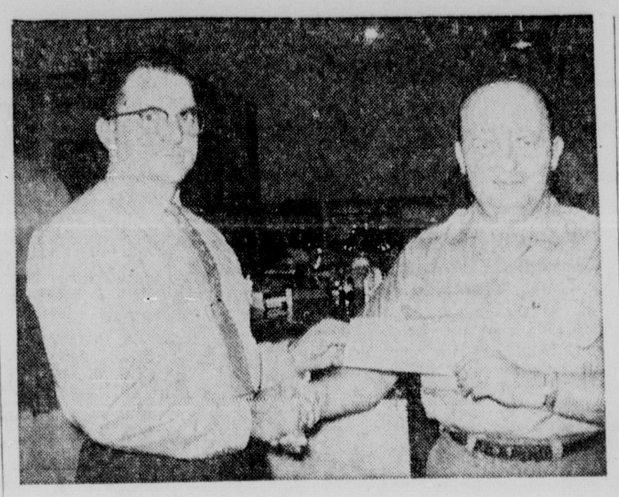
Cotton Futures Close Mixed, Small Changes

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures prices closed mixed with small net changes this week after an irregular trading session.

Active contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange finished at prices ranging from 35 cents a bale higher to 20 cents lower than a week ago.

The market was generally firm at the outset, then turned irregular as light selling set in.

Firmness at the start was largely due to October short covering prompted by the small certificated stock. There was also some chart buying and a smattering of demand which reflected the currently slow movement of the new crop.



Quarter Million Dollar Check

Willie Reems, left, Franklin parish tax assessor, presents Hiram B. Waller, sheriff and tax collector, with homestead exemption check for $250,505.35. Reems picked the check up in person at Baton Rouge, Thursday, and the formal presentation was made in the sheriff's office Friday morning. The quarter-million check represents one-fourth of the parish taxes for this year. According to the tax roll, total amount of taxes slated for collection this year is $999,237.67. Halloween Fete Queen Entries Selection Made WINNSBORO, (Special) —Coach Ed Thompson, director of this year's Winnsboro High school Halloween carnival, said that each room has selected a candidate for the queen's contest. Votes will be one cent each and the winner will be crowned queen, at the carnival on October 27. The contest will close on October 2.

Candidates and the room they represent are as follows:

Karolyn Carroll, 8A; Aleina Griffin, 8B; Judy Milby, 8C; Evelyn Wiltshire, 8D; Gayle Richardson, 8A; Carolyn Gwin, 9B; Barbara Miller, 9C; Carol Brent, ; Sue Parker, 10B; Edith Smith, 10C; Linda Collins, 11A; Annie Grace Polk, 11B; Linda Wiltshire, 11C; Peggy Knipp, 12A; and Jerry Skinner, 12B.

Arctic foxes, with their heavy winter fur, can live comfortably in temperatures as low as 40 below zero.

Speaker Slated For New Class At NE College

The president of the American Institute of Property and Casulaty Underwriters, James A. Tanselle of Jackson, Miss., will speak Monday night to persons interested in working toward the Chartered Property Casualty Underwriters certificate.

Tanselle will speak to the newly formed CPCU class, which meets at 6:45 p.m. in 207 Brown Hall at Northeast.

Registration is still open for this class, although it has had its first meeting.

Insurance people in Ruston, Jonesboro, Delhi, Rayville, Bastrop, Winnsboro and others are invited to join the class as a permanent member or to be a guest of the class Monday to hear Tanselle speak.

Denmark has an old wedding custom for the bride to carry a purse of small coins, to be tossed to children watching at the church.

AREA NEWS

ABOUT PEOPLE, EVENTS

Consolidated Clubs

FERRIDAY (Special) — The civic clubs of Concordia Parish have banded together and formed a Consolidated Civic Clubs organization. They held their first meeting last week and elected a slate of officers.

Life Saved

RUSTON (Special) — The sheriff's department saved the life of a prisoner in the parish jail. The man, a Monroe Negro named James R. Cox, attempted to hang himself with a bed sheet in his cell. He was cut down and rushed to the hospital. Marriage difficulties were given in a note as the reason for the attempt.

Results Of Strike

RUSTON (Special) — The steel strike is being felt here as Lincoln Enterprises has announced that it will have to shut down for lack of materials in around two weeks. Only 50 workmen are on the job now at the plant which manufactures picnic jugs, braziers and other outdoors recreational specialties.

Commended

OAK GROVE (Special) — Sergeant S. L. Harrison has been commended by his commanding officer for setting a recruiting record for the army. Sgt. Harrison is stationed at Ft. Gordon, Ga., and works in the post recruiting office. He enlisted 33 men in one day. He formerly worked the northeast Louisiana area.

PTA Confabs

The Louisiana Parent- Teacher Association will hold several fall conferences in the state. In the northeast Louisiana area there will be meetings at West Monroe, Oct. 7; Ruston, Oct. 6; Collinston, Oct. 9.

Two Injured In Accidents Around Arena

WINNSBORO (Special) — Two persons were in the Rogers' Clinic after two separate accidents shortly before 3 p.m. yesterday.

In the first accident, which happened at 2:45 p.m., Franklin Charles Minor Jr., Negro, 8, son of Frank Minor Sr., of Wisner, started across the Highway 15 two miles below Wisner and was hit by a car driven by Kinneth Blakenship, 24, of Vidalia.

According to Cpl. Dave Chase of the state police, Blakenship was on his way home from La. Tech and swerved to avoid hitting the child, but was unable to avoid hitting him with the left end of the bumper. Blakenship brought the Negro boy back to the clinic in Winnsboro, and attending physician said he had multiple lacerations and contusions, fractured ribs, and possible internal injuries. He is being held for observation.

NO CHARGES

No charges were filed in the case.

In the other accident, at 2:50 p.m. one mile south of Chase on Highway 15, Wiley I. Johnson, 81, of Route 2, Winnsboro, was driving a pickup truck going north when he evidently failed to see a flagman and ran into the right rear of a dump truck which had backed up to unload dirt on the road shoulder, where construction was underway.

Driver of the truck was Robert E. Aimond, of Oak Grove. The truck belonged to a construction company in West Monroe. The truck was not damaged and its driver was not injured.

His passenger, Jimmie H. Johnston, 72, also of Winnsboro, Route 2, was brought to Rogers Clinic by First National ambulance, and was reported suffering from lacerations of the face and various bruises. He is being kept in the clinic for observation.

The pick up truck was demolished according to Cpl. Chase of State police, Wiley Johnson was charged with failing to yield right-of - way. The two men had been fishing and were returning home. Fish were scattered over the pavement at the scene.

Farmerville Man Suffers Broken Leg In Accident

A Farmerville man, Melvin Ward, sustained a broken left leg here yesterday when he stumbled and fell among a pile of large boulders where he was working below Lock and Dam No. 4 on the Ouachita River.

Ward was picked up and rushed by Peters Funeral Home ambulance to the St. Francis hospital, where attendants said his left leg was broken.

The injured man said he fell after being blinded by a powerful spotlight while walking across the huge rocks and boulders on the river, near where he was working.

The male mallard, one of the most numerous of game birds has a bright green head and a purple mark on the wings.

Winnsboro High School Favorite Beauties Named

WINNSBORO (Special) —Five beauties were named in the Winnsboro High school "School Favorite" elections held last week. They were Joyce Brent, Sue Cotton, Sandra King, Karolyn Carroll and Linda Collins.

Other school favorites elected by the student body were:

Johnny Wayne Sisk—Most handsome and Mr. W. H. S.

Dewanna Bryant —Miss W.H.S. and most congenial girl.

Mary Eleanor Lee —Most intelligent girl.

J. D. Busby —Most intelligent boy.

Claudine Watson —Most athletic girl.

Allen Parks —Most athletic boy.

Rameses the Great of Egypt boasted that he had furnished at least 19 million ceremonial bouquets and ornamental plants to temples.

Aerial 'Warfare' Hits The Croplands

FEATURES

By BOB LUCKETT
Staff Writer

Dew drops glisten on top of the cotton in the warm Louisiana sunshine. The late summer morning is silent, a humid, yawning silence.

On the horizon a speck appears. And at the same time a faint drone can be heard.

The drone graduates by octaves into a thunderous roar and the speck bursts into a squat, silver bi-plane. The craft is now so low one can see the sunlight bouncing off the pilot's goggles.

CASCADE

As the stubby ship crosses the cotton field boundry, it dives even lower and a cascade of chalky dust tumbles from underneath, and settles on the wet green.

When the plane nears the fence on the opposite side of the field, it looks for one agonizing minute as if it must surely crash.

But the engine's roar becomes a scream, and the ship claws its way back up into the sky. Just in time.

"When you're spraying or dusting crops, you're flying strictly on the ragged edge."

With this, G. P. "Porky" Jordan, operator of a local flying service, pretty well summed up the glamorous, romantic, and sometimes deadly, occupation of the low-flying crop dusters.

LOT MORE

There's a lot more to being a professional agricultural pilot than just being a hotshot aviator and buzzing cotton fields.

Jordan, who is at the top of his tenth season as an agricultural flyer and operator and whose flying time runs into the thousands of hours, said a good dusting pilot must know various species of insects, how to mix and apply chemicals and insecticides and, above all, he must know flying.

The duster pilot must know flying as instinctively and indifferently as a bird. Flying must be second nature because the pilot's mind has to be concentrated on the dusting itself.

In late summer and early fall most of the aerial cotton pest poisoning and defoliating take place, although in the spring planes fertilize small grain crops and poison insects.

STAKES HIGH

The average duster pilot usually makes around seven or eight thousand dollars a season. Although the pay is high; the stakes are even higher.

An old cliche, "flirting with death," seems a little too mild to apply to duster pilots. They almost maintain a chummy relationship with the grim reaper.

Most agricultural flying services employ the old sturdy Stearman bi-plane. This craft was originally built for the Army Air Force, who used it as a primary trainer. Production of these planes was halted in 1942.

Jordan, whose operations utilize five Stearmans, said they are the best planes available for crop dusting or spraying.

"Stearmans are constructed of better material and are more painstakingly put together than the planes of today," remarked Jordan.

He added, "Where more modern planes have bushings at their moving parts, the Stearman has ball bearings."

ALMOST ANCIENT

Even though the Stearmans are old, almost ancient, they must be constantly maintained at a high state of airworthiness. Each year they are checked and approved for flight by the government. Their 225 horsepower engines are kept in mint condition.

One disadvantage of this military bi-plane is that it was originally designed to carry a cadet in the front cockpit, not from 600 to 1,000 pounds of crop poison.

In order to accomodate the poison, all the controls and the seat are removed from the front cockpit and are replaced with a tank, or hopper.

On spraying planes, pipes lead out from the tank and are attached along the back of each lower wing. At short intervals on the wing pipes, nozzles are fixed. A pump forces the mixtures from the openings.

For planes adapted to dusting, the hopper is fitted with a trap door which the pilot opens and shuts with a lever in the rear cockpit.

MOST POPULAR

A few years ago dusting was the preferred method of poisoning insects, but today spraying is by far the most popular.

While by dusting, the pilot can easily see the poison swath and can line the plane up for the next pass, the limited times dusting is effective makes spraying more practicable.

Dusting can only be effectively carried out in the early morning and late afternoon when dew on the crops catches and holds the poison.

Spray can be applied any time during the day and the only preventative is inclement weather.

Although spray is harder to see, a flagman on the ground can help guide the pilot to a new swath adjacent to the last treated area.

Aerial application, Jordan said, used to be a rather simple operation when hydrocarbons killed almost all crop insects.

But when most insects, especially the boll weevil, became immune to these poisons, it became necessary to schedule and specialize in more complicated poison programs, the pilot related.

MIXTURES

Some of the toxic mixtures used today include DDT and methyl-parathion. They are applied usually every five days, when the boll weevil is most succeptable to poisoning.

The boll worm, much easier to kill than the weevil, is still controlled by hydrocarbons.

When a plane is treating a field, the pilot flies about two or three feet from the top of the crop, sometimes even lower.

It is very important that the pilot maintain, a constant altitude and straight course. If he doesn't, crooked swaths of irregular widths will result. Farmers are unhappy and demand re-runs.

When the plane swoops down and makes a low run over the cultivated field, it flies between 80 and 90 miles per hour.

Many times duster pilots must fly under telephone or power lines. This is not the act of a daredevil; as a matter of fact, it's a lot safer than trying to pull up over the wires.

REASON

One reason flying under the lines is safer is that when a pilot tries to clear them, he risks the chance of a stall when he pulls up the plane sharply. A stall this close to the ground could, in all probability, result in a fatal crackup.

Another reason is that it is hard to judge the distance of two little black lines on the horizon, and when a pilot thinks he has plenty of distance to clear them, sometimes he doesn't Commented Jordan "Guy wires and power line collisions cause nearly all of the fatal accidents in crop dusting and spraying.

"They're hard to see and even harder to break."

Other repeated causes of crashes are collisions with trees and "pilots just not paying attention to what they are doing."

TRAINING

Although there are formal schools for agricultural flyers, perhaps the best known at Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, most duster and sprayer pilots learn their not-too-enviable profession from apprenticeship under experienced pilots.

Today there are very few independent duster pilots, because farmers can't afford to gear their poison schedule to a one-plane operation.

Since complicated poison schedules must be geared to certain phases of the life cycles of insects, the time element in dusting and spraying is of the most importance. If a farmer can't get his fields treated on schedule, insects can quickly gain the upper hand.

Jordan operates on a rather tight program. At the beginning of each season he contacts farmers and assigns them a day and time their fields will be treated.

ASSIGNED

He then writes the farmer's name and assigned date on an aerial map of his field. Before take-off each day the pilots are briefed and know exactly where to go when they have finished a field.

It sounds pretty businesslike, and would be, if not for the ever-present danger. But the danger and the crashes are laughed at.

When asked of his most hair-raising experience, Jordan smiled and said, 'Well, one time I tore both wings off a duster plane when I smashed into a . . .." he hesitated and smiled again, " . .. an outhouse."

Another time, he recalled, he cut about four feet from a wing in a bout with a guy wire.

Both times, however, he escaped serious injury.

The dusting and spraying season will soon end. During the period between seasons the planes will get a thorough going over by expert mechanics. Next spring the planes will roar again.

GI Scientists In Dual Roles

By LOUIS G. PANOS

EDGEWOOD, Md. (AP)—On a barracks wall at the super-secret Army chemical center here hangs a printed sign: "turn lights off when leaving."

To this an anonymous author has added in pencil, "please" — perhaps as a reminder that at Edgewood the Army should remember its manners even when addressing a corporal.

For at this closely guarded base 20 miles northeast of Baltimore, most of the men in uniform are enlisted scientific and professional personnel, a fraction of the 3,500 SPP's whose special knowldge has been harnessed by the U.S Army in various chemical, engineering, physics and administrative centers across the nation.

College - trained and mostly in their early 20s, they lead a curious kind of double life as scientists by day and soldiers by night.

For 16 hours a day they are under military rule. They polish brass, scrub the barrack floor where they sleep and wrestle with the countless other chores thrust upon enlisted men since armies began.

But from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. they are members of civilian - supervised research teams, delving into the mysteries of chemical warfare. The tools of their trade are gases and bugs, some capable of wiping out all life in a city, others destined merely to render its entire population militarily impotent by inducing temporary mass blindness, nausea, stupor or mania.

Many times duster pilots must fly under telephone or power lines. This is not the act of a daredevil; as a matter of fact, it's a lot safer than trying to pull up over the wires.

REASON

One reason flying under the lines is safer is that when a pilot tries to clear them, he risks the chance of a stall when he pulls up the plane sharply. A stall this close to the ground could, in all probability, result in a fatal crackup.

Another reason is that it is hard to judge the distance of two little black lines on the horizon, and when a pilot thinks he has plenty of distance to clear them, sometimes he doesn't Commented Jordan "Guy wires and power line collisions cause nearly all of the fatal accidents in crop dusting and spraying.

"They're hard to see and even harder to break."

Other repeated causes of crashes are collisions with trees and "pilots just not paying attention to what they are doing."

TRAINING

Although there are formal schools for agricultural flyers, perhaps the best known at Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, most duster and sprayer pilots learn their not-too-enviable profession from apprenticeship under experienced pilots.

Today there are very few independent duster pilots, because farmers can't afford to gear their poison schedule to a one-plane operation.

Since complicated poison schedules must be geared to certain phases of the life cycles of insects, the time element in dusting and spraying is of the most importance. If a farmer can't get his fields treated on schedule, insects can quickly gain the upper hand.

Jordan operates on a rather tight program. At the beginning of each season he contacts farmers and assigns them a day and time their fields will be treated.

ASSIGNED

He then writes the farmer's name and assigned date on an aerial map of his field. Before take-off each day the pilots are briefed and know exactly where to go when they have finished a field.

It sounds pretty businesslike, and would be, if not for the ever-present danger. But the danger and the crashes are laughed at.

When asked of his most hair-raising experience, Jordan smiled and said, 'Well, one time I tore both wings off a duster plane when I smashed into a . . .," he hesitated and smiled again, " . .. an outhouse."

Another time, he recalled, he cut about four feet from a wing in a bout with a guy wire.

Both times, however, he escaped serious injury.

The dusting and spraying season will soon end. During the period between seasons the planes will get a thorough going over by expert mechanics. Next spring the planes will roar again.

GI Scientists In Dual Roles

By LOUIS G. PANOS

EDGEWOOD, Md. (AP)—On a barracks wall at the super-secret Army chemical center here hangs a printed sign: "turn lights off when leaving."

To this an anonymous author has added in pencil, "please" — perhaps as a reminder that at Edgewood the Army should remember its manners even when addressing a corporal.

For at this closely guarded base 20 miles northeast of Baltimore, most of the men in uniform are enlisted scientific and professional personnel, a fraction of the 3,500 SPP's whose special knowldge has been harnessed by the U.S Army in various chemical, engineering, physics and administrative centers across the nation.

College - trained and mostly in their early 20s, they lead a curious kind of double life as scientists by day and soldiers by night.

For 16 hours a day they are under military rule. They polish brass, scrub the barrack floor where they sleep and wrestle with the countless other chores thrust upon enlisted men since armies began.

But from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. they are members of civilian - supervised research teams, delving into the mysteries of chemical warfare. The tools of their trade are gases and bugs, some capable of wiping out all life in a city, others destined merely to render its entire population militarily impotent by inducing temporary mass blindness, nausea, stupor or mania.

Question On Taxes

Income and tax figures worth thinking about have been presented by the Public Affairs Research Council of Louisiana. These figures show that Louisiana is 39th in the nation in per capita income and fourth highest among the states in per capita state taxes.

In only three states are the citizens taxed at a higher rate per capita than in Louisiana. At the same time, citizens in 38 other states have higher average incomes.

If we had incomes equal to those of other states and the taxes were slightly higher, we might be able to stand it. Or, if our income were less and our taxes were less it might not be intolerable. If our income were more and our taxes more it might not be too bad.

But to have lower incomes and higher taxes at the same time puts on the squeeze. It reduces our net income to an even lower level.

Citing recently published figures of the United States department of commerce, PAR said that Louisiana continued to rank first in the nation in the ratio of state tax collections to personal income. For every $100 of income received by persons in Louisiana, $8.82 was collected in state taxes. This is almost twice the national average of $4.46.

During the fiscal year 1958-59, state tax collections rose $15 on a per capita basis to $139, while in 1958 per capita income in the state declined $7 to $1,576.

Louisiana's $8.82 taxation per $100 is on the income before federal tax deductions. Thus, after the first $600 of federal tax exemption per person, the $8.82 state tax actually is taken from about $80 income and is more than 10 per cent.

Louisiana's per capita state taxes increased 22 per cent when measured in "constant dollars" (dollars of stable purchasing power) in the last five years, PAR stated, while per capita income increased at about one-half that rate, or 11.3 per cent.

PAR said that per capita personal income in the United States rose an average of one per cent (in constant dollars), that it increased two per cent in southeastern states and that it declined slightly in Louisiana.

Some states, such as Missouri, have extremely low state taxes, virtually all of their activities being cared for by local taxes. Some of these states are behind in road and other developments but the same is not true in most of the states.

In Texas, which has had neither a state income tax nor a state sales tax, road development has progressed at a rapid rate and most of the main highways in that big state are far better than most of the Louisiana highways.

It is extremely difficult to see how Louisiana needs twice as much state tax money as the average of the other states. It is hard to see how this much money can be spent without tremendous waste or tremendous inefficiency. If the other states can do as well as we do on only half the amount of money, they have far better administrative officials, either from the standpoint of efficiency or of honesty.

If we could cut our state per capita tax rate in half, according to the figures submitted, we would increase the amount each person in Louisiana could spend by about $69.50. This would put a lot of additional money into business and commercial channels.

The question now is why Louisiana needs twice as much state tax money per capita as the average of the other states.

This would be a good question for some of the 12 candidates for governor to figure out. It would also be good if the same candidate could figure out how half of the per capita state tax could be eliminated, thus putting our state tax rate down on a tax level comparable with the other states.

If any candidate for governor could guarantee to do those two things he would be almost certain to be elected. That would be about the biggest service that could be performed for this state.

Strange Indictment

One of the strangest grand jury indictments in legal history in the United States has been reported in Pensacola, Fla. The grand jury there indicted a Negro on a charge of perjury, after he was acquitted of a murder charge, because he had testified he was innocent of the slaying.

Under the United States constitution and bill of rights, it is specifically stated that no man accused of a crime can be required to testify against himself. This has been generally construed to mean that he is granted immunity from prosecution for his testimony, regardless of whether it may be true or false.

If this conception were not accepted, anyone convicted of a crime could be also charged with perjury if he entered a plea of not guilty and testified he was not guilty. His conviction, under any other conception, might be taken as prima facie evidence that he had lied under oath and therefore was guilty of perjury. This clearly was not the intention of the framers of our constitution and bill of rights. They undoubtedly intended to give a man the right to defend himself without running the risk of incurring another criminal charge.

The Pensacola indictment, however, apparently goes even further in placing limitations on man's freedom. It was returned in spite of prima facie evidence that the defendant was telling the truth, since the jury trying him acquitted him, thus indicating it believed his story.

Newspaper stories indicated officials in Pensacola thought the case had been "messed up," and that the Negro should have been convicted.

If that is true, the indictment for perjury seems to be nothing more than an attempt to try him again because he was erroneously acquitted. That, however, would place him in "double jeopardy," which is also against our constitution and bill of rights.

Because of an attempt to convict a man for testifying that he was innocent, the case will be watched closely, not only in legal circles but by people generally.

There were 205,643 prisoners in the nation's state and Federal penitentiaries at the end of 1958, a record high and an increase of 10,229 or 5.2 per cent over 1957.

War Often Forgotten

Most People Go About Own Business Without Paying Much Attention To Foreign Visitors

THE WARM WORLD

If one listens to Khrushchev, nobody is interested in anything but war, making munitions, reaching the moon and such bizarre and tragic activities. Actually, most people go about their own business, in this country as in his, hardly giving a thought to such great events as his visit to this country. We do not drop dead at the sight of our own great men, much less at the sight of foreigners, and if Khrushchev is disappointed that our crowds do not cheer him, let him ponder what is there to cheer about?

The other day, perhaps to forget Khrushchev and to return to normal living, I dropped in to see my old friend, Fritz Kreisler, the violinist who brought such happiness to a gayer world when one did not worry too much about wars and politicians and such. Fritz does not see and his hearing is bad but his humor is sustained and his interest in men and events everlasting. And there is his wife Harriet, who on October 6, will be a cantankerous 90. That is really the way to reach 90, telling all and sundry the full and unmitigated truth about themselves and the world. The Kreislers have been married 58 years and still enjoy each other's company.

Well, it was a little foray into a wholesome world, into something clean and pure and away from the ugliness of that speech before the United Nations which was too smart, too cute, too broad, too useless.

One of the curiosities of the Khrushchev visit occurred at the mayor's luncheon in New York. Those luncheons are usually opened by prayer and I have often stood there to listen to Cardinal Spellman pray for the audience or for the great man in whose honor the luncheon was given. Other clergymen of various faiths have given the invocation at such luncheons. However, on this occasion, the prayer was omitted.

Perhaps those who arranged the luncheon felt that it would offend Khrushchev, who is an atheist, if anyone prayed in his presence. But then, it might have offended many Americans not to open the luncheon with prayer. Or is it possible that the Russians asked that prayer be omitted. I could inquire and would be told. It is the guest who, in an orderly society, conforms to the habits of the host and it is a poor host, indeed, who casts aside his household gods.

Besides, Khrushchev, in his speeches, is always using the word, God, often in vain, of course. But then it comes out, just as his little peasant stories and homilies come out, because that is the way he was brought up when he was a little boy. "Bog"—it is a word that creeps into Khrushchev's vocabulary. He does not believe in a "Bog" — not he, because he is a scientific socialist, an atheist, a pragmatist who takes his ideas from that trinity, Marx, Engels, Lenin.

But the word, "Bog," meaningful or meaningless to Khrushchev, does, somehow, push itself into his language and the poor devil, he can be expelled from the party for such an impropriety.

The first time I heard him say it, I thought I was mistaken, for Communists pride themselves on having forsaken the stupidities of the past. But it is amazing how the past does hold on to us. I read a piece by J. P. Stafford who is an educator. He objects to what he calls the "woodshed philosophy of pioneer days," that is, the paddling of a young fellow across the buttocks until he recognizes at an early age, that crime does not pay. Stafford says, concerning juvenile delinquents:

"What we need is not to recall all the timeworn arguments, but to get to a co-operative, imaginative approach based on research, investigation, and the intelligent leadership of social and religious groups and government agencies."

We have research, investigation, intelligent leadership, statistics, publications, sociologists and social workers but juvenile crime is on the increase. It is like a fellow I know who received a telephone call from an alcoholic who said that he did not feel so good. My friend asked him how much the headache cost him. Well, it seems as though the alcoholic went through $60. My friend said:

"That must be a pretty good headache to cost $60. I hope you enjoy it for what it is worth."

Doing All Right

American Astronautic And Space Program Is Going Well

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Amid the Soviet's triumphant launching of Lunik II and K-1, somebody ought to say that the American astronautic and space program is doing very well, too, thank you.

While Khrushchev was in Washington and justifiably making the most of his country's successful moon - shot, we had two embarrassing failures. The Jupiter IRBM, with its news - catching cargo of "pregnant mice," fizzled out. The bad - luck Navy satellite called Vanguard didn't take off. Instead of hanging our heads and cringing at news stories about our own ineptitude, we might have considered the scoreboard. Of the nine vehicles orbiting the earth, all but one is American.

Of the two planetoids in solar orbit, one is ours and one is Russian. The U. S. has launched 12 earth satellites, with eight still up there. Meanwhile, you have to keep a hot wire open to stay abreast of American progress. The world's only known airplane to take a man into space, North American's X-15, made its first powered flight while Big K was enroute to New York. Before he had addressed the United Nations there, Vanguard III had joined its two predecessors up there.

Is this good? It's very good. Better yet is the impression of internal fortitude among our space scientists and administrators which a reporter brings away from his interviews. It would be understandable if the inmates of NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration) began to gnaw the carpets. It is reassuring to find that the pace and purpose of an orderly scientific probe of the upper atmosphere have not been jarred by foreign successes or by domestic pressure for cheap, quick spectaculars.

T. Keith Glennan, the NASA Administrator, should get credit for holding things together. Dr. Glennan himself has pretty well orbited the firmament of American economy. When our middle-aged generation was in college, Glennan was in Hollywood, first as a top engineer in the early talkies, next as a studio boss. He served in wartime by bringing sophistication to underwater detection, moved to the academic field in 1947 as President of the Case Institute of Technology in Cleveland, where he also became a civic affairs leader, and in 1950- 52 was on leave in Washington as a member of the Atomic Energy Commission under Mr. Truman. Not long ago Dr. Glennan made a depth penetration of Russia and its educational system.

Dr. Glennan has refused under stress to alter a program that is scheduled ten years ahead. While our vehicles have carried useful payloads of scientific instrumentation, they have been small and quite expensive per pound. Instead of cutting loose a swarm of these petty carriers, Dr. Glennan proposes to hold off until we have the optimum combination of engine thrust and payload performance. It is already certain that our satellites have given world science more information than the Russians' have. It is probable that our less sensational vehicles have been more productive of long-term benefit.

Looking back, it appears that American wrong - thinking over the atomic bombing of Japan was the beginning of our loss of scientific leadership. Partly from Communist - stirred guilt, partly from old - fashioned Main Street complacency, we did not develop the propulsion that would be necessary to hurl atomic warheads at indefensible speeds and heights. Russia took the lead in propulsion and in the size of projectiles. But by making smaller instruments, by stressing programs of miniaturization and microminiaturization, we may be better equipped for the longer pull.

For the new decade which begins in 1960, we have a pair of new generation vehicles for going to the moon and beyond. Vega, which taxpayers are already buying on a four - year installment plan that totals $91.6 million, is intended to make a moon landing and also to put a two - man space laboratory into orbit. Centaur will cost $95.5 million for the same period. It is an advanced man-bearing satellite and is expected to establish the first communications system in space.

There is less danger that the Russians will beat us than that we will beat ourselves by indolence and scatter - brains. The Eisenhower Administration has made up much lost ground from the stand - still years that preceded it. We had better hope that Ike's successor can keep the program rolling.

"FIGHTING MEN SOFT"
Greenwood, Miss.

Editor, World,

In the August 8, 1959 issue of the "Saturday Evening Post" Hanson W. Baldwin closed his article "Our Fighting Men Have Gone Soft" by quoting Paul — to the Corinthians — (I Cor. XIV: 8): "If the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle?

Let's get down to some cases:

In this country's most recent significant military venture, the trumpets sounded: "Love one-another per court order — Let's have brotherhood by bayonet" — and thus exposed a crack federal military unit — and the Arkansas militia — to national ridicule.

Now the American trumpeters are running practice notes on the theme: "Let's free the slaves of Europe, Asia and Africa from Russian communism" while Russian trumpeters practice the response "Let's free the slaves of Europe, Africa, North and South America from American capitalism" — and integrated American G. I.'s — and possibly their Russian counterparts — probably have difficult "digging" such music.

If it should so transpite hereafter that the trumpets sound off with: "Let's compel intimate commingling of African Negroes with Anglo - Saxon Caucasians by coercion of governmental force" — there will be a significant number of people, including me, who will be completely indifferent to whether the trumpeters be American or Russian.

If this be treason, let somebody make the most of it.

LIKES EDITORIAL
Baton Rouge, La.

Editor, Morning World

I have just seen a copy of the Editorial which appeared in your newspaper Saturday, September 19, concerning the work of the Agricultural Extension Service. Certainly, all of us who are employed by the Louisiana Agricultural Extension Service, and particularly those who serve the people in your territory, are grateful to you for the comments which are made in this Editorial.

May I take this occasion to say to you that much of what we accomplish in an educational way is made possible by the splendid cooperation which we have received from the press. Your newspaper has done an exceptionally fine job of covering agricultural news.

It was with interest that I read your editorial in the Monroe Morning World of September 6, "Threats to Liberty", dealing with city planning and the dangers involved if we who are doing this work are not very careful.

As one who is serving on a Planning Commission, I agree with you wholeheartedly. You should keep such issues before the public.

SCHOOL PROGRESS TOLD
West Monroe, La.

Editor, Monroe Morning World:

May I give your fine paper some facts about the wonderful progress the past few years of the Ouachita Parish Schools. It is my belief the general public will share in the joy and fellowship of the victories won by the outstanding leadership of Parish Superintendent W. W. Ward, the Parish School Board and a qualified staff of teachers.

Since 1950 six new white schools have been added and buildings constructed. They are — Highland, Woodlawn, Kiroli, Shady Grove, West Monroe Junior High School and the great West Monroe High School. Seven new buildings have been built for existing schools. They are Lakeshore, Oakaloosa, Drew, Lenwil, Ransom, Swartz and the fine Ouachita Parish High School. Additions were added to the buildings at Calhoun, Logtown, A. L. Smith and Mitchell. All others have been modernized.

Seven new colored schools have been built. They are — Boley, Central, Myles, Burks, Swayze, Terzia and Booker T. Washington. All others have been renovated and modernized.

In 1950 the total enrollment of all parish schools (white and colored) was 9239. This year by September 14th a total of 13,732 had enrolled. This was a gain of 4493 since 1950.

The operational budget of the parish schools in 1949-1950 was $1,810,432.39, last year it was $4,764,340.32. Millions have been spent on school buildings the past ten years.

The parish schools have a teaching staff for 1959-1960 session of 578 with 133 school buses carrying 8420 children daily.

Because of the trained, qualified excellent leadership and trained teaching staff Ouachita Parish School system has been selected as a pilot system in Louisiana to lead the way in centralized elementary libraries and also in elementary accreditatisons program.

All the people of Ouachita Parish can look back across ten years of the greatest progress ever made in the Parish School system.

This is truly a great day to be alive and see the mighty progress education is making in Ouachita Parish. This progress is also a credit and a reflection of the toils and labors of men like the late Superintendent T. O. Brown who served their day and generation well. They live today in the march of progress.

A. T. MITCHELL,
Pastor, Ridge Avenue Baptist Church.

To the Editor:

What is the matter with our people in Monroe? I'm a teenager and I spent this summer in a city smaller than ours in south Louisiana. There they had three recreation centers with swimming pools and all kinds of play rooms and other activities. Last year I spent the summer in Shreveport and they had all kinds of activities and centers for the children and grown-ups also. When I came back to Monroe I understood our mayor had said if enough people signed a petition an election would be held on a bond issue to build us some centers. Now I understand he is going to call it off.

We kids don't have any decent place like the others towns for kids. Is something wrong with us kids or is something wrong with our mayors and other city men. I don't know much about government but I thought if your Mayor promised you something he was supposed to do it, especially when so many people asked him to, especially our mayor cause I've heard lots of people say he was honest and a Christian. Is this any way for an honest, Christian mayor to do.

TWO LITTLE WORDS
Newellton, La.

Editor, Morning World:

I am a funeral coach salesman and travel over 1500 miles every month in three states Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

So few people realize what a fine thing it is to have the people in the car ahead of you wave you around them.

Especially nice about this sort of thing are the transport truck drivers who seem to take a delight in helping you around. As a rule you pass them so fast you cannot thank them if you wanted to and those of us who deeply appreciate this little courtesy shown by them want so much to do just that.

Please let me suggest that for those two little words (thank you) just hold up two fingers or sound your horn twice and if it's at night just flick your lights twice as a sign of thanks.

You will feel better and I am sure they too, for you having done so.

KHRUSHCHEV AND CHURCHES

Editor, Morning World:

In view of the fact that Mr. Khrushchev has visited so many places such as our supermarkets, plants, and factories, why hasn't he been invited to visit some of our churches? It seems to me that our churches are one of our most important assets to Christian living. A visit to our churches would show Mr. Khrushchev how we live in America with our God.

If Mr. Khrushchev is seeing the material values of America, why omit the spiritual side of our great democracy? Perhaps a visit to one of our great churches would help Mr. Khrushchev to feel the true source of our strength.

Agencies Face Deadline For Survey Finish

WASHINGTON, (AP) — The Budget Bureau Friday gave government agencies until Dec. 31 to complete a survey aimed at getting them out of commercial and industrial activities.

The order was in line with an administration policy that the government "will not start, or carry on, any commercial-industrial activity if the product or service can be procured from private enterprise through ordinary business channels."

Budget Director Maurice Stans said in a statement that this policy has "the two-fold benefit of furthering the free enterprise system and permitting governmental agencies to concentrate their efforts on primary objectives."

Areas covered by the new review include construction, transportation, communications, utilities, warehousing and government-owned facilities operated by contractors. Manufacturing and service activities were reviewed earlier.

Because of an attempt to convict a man for testifying that he was innocent, the case will be watched closely, not only in legal circles but by people generally.

There were 205,643 prisoners in the nation's state and Federal penitentiaries at the end of 1958, a record high and an increase of 10,229 or 5.2 per cent over 1957.

The starfish sends its stomach out to dinner. That is, it slides the stomach out of its mouth, surrounds it with food and then pulls it back into its body.

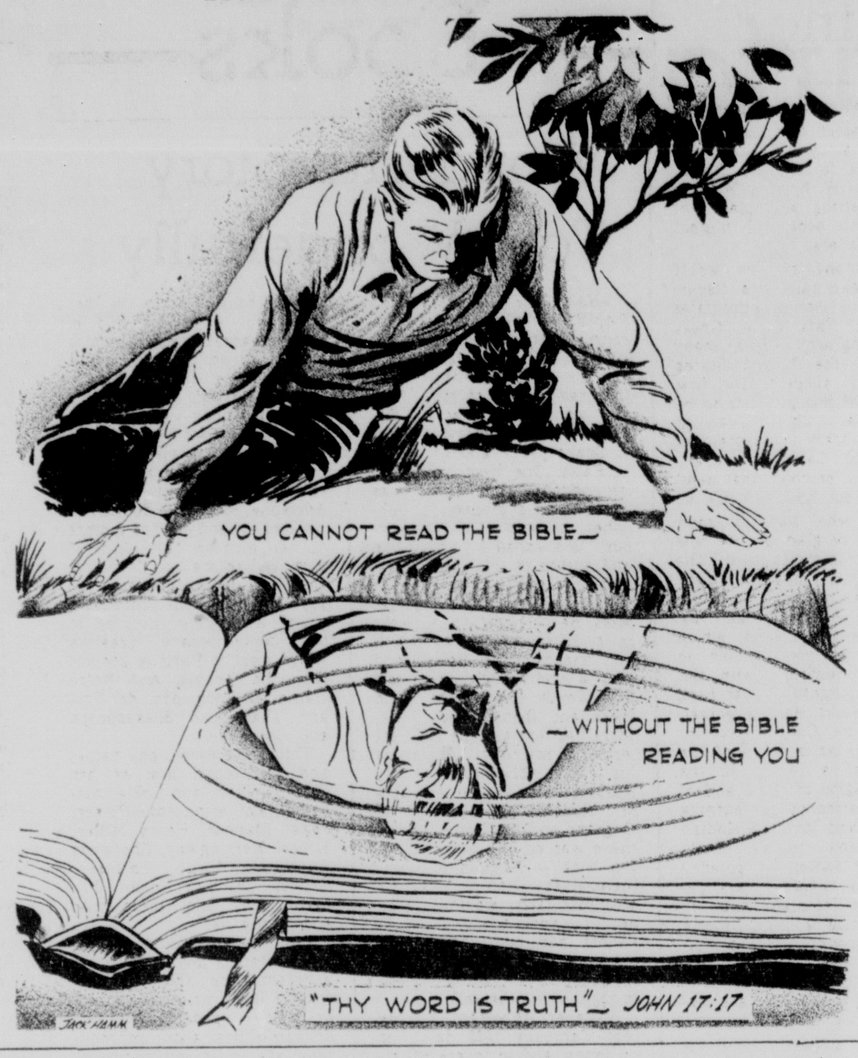
A researcher at Cornell University has discovered that young people who have frequent accidents tend to be poor thinkers, while older accident victims more often lack coordination and dexterity.

About 73 per cent of all American families own at least one automobile.

Industry sources expect three and a quarter million power mowers to be purchased in the U. S. this year.

Only from three to ten persons out of one hundred escape some dental decay.

True Pool Of Reflection



GEORGE SOKOLSKY

War Often Forgotten

Most People Go About Own Business Without Paying Much Attention To Foreign Visitors

THE WARM WORLD

If one listens to Khrushchev, nobody is interested in anything but war, making munitions, reaching the moon and such bizarre and tragic activities. Actually, most people go about their own business, in this country as in his, hardly giving a thought to such great events as his visit to this country. We do not drop dead at the sight of our own great men, much less at the sight of foreigners, and if Khrushchev is disappointed that our crowds do not cheer him, let him ponder what is there to cheer about?

The other day, perhaps to forget Khrushchev and to return to normal living, I dropped in to see my old friend, Fritz Kreisler, the violinist who brought such happiness to a gayer world when one did not worry too much about wars and politicians and such. Fritz does not see and his hearing is bad but his humor is sustained and his interest in men and events everlasting. And there is his wife Harriet, who on October 6, will be a cantankerous 90. That is really the way to reach 90, telling all and sundry the full and unmitigated truth about themselves and the world. The Kreislers have been married 53 years and still enjoy each other's company.

Well, it was a little foray into a wholesome world, into something clean and pure and away from the ugliness of that speech before the United Nations which was too smart, too cute, too broad, too useless.

One of the curiosities of the Khrushchev visit occurred at the mayor's luncheon in New York. Those luncheons are usually opened by prayer and I have often stood there to listen to Cardinal Spellman pray for the audience or for the great man in whose honor the luncheon was given. Other clergymen of various faiths have given the invocation at such luncheons. However, on this occasion, the prayer was omitted.

Perhaps those who arranged the luncheon felt that it would offend Khrushchev, who is an atheist, if anyone prayed in his presence. But then, it might have offended many Americans not to open the luncheon with prayer. Or is it possible that the Russians asked that prayer be omitted. I could inquire and would be told. It is the guest who, in an orderly society, conforms to the habits of the host and it is a poor host, indeed, who casts aside his household gods.

Besides, Khrushchev, in his speeches, is always using the word , God, often in vain, of course. But then it comes out, just as his little peasant stories and homilies come out, because that is the way he was brought up when he was a little boy. "Bog"—it is a word that creeps into Khrushchev's vocabulary. He does not believe in a "Bog" — not he, because he is a scientific socialist, an atheist, a pragmatist who takes his ideas from that trinity, Marx, Engels, Lenin.

But the word, "Bog," meaningful or meaningless to Khrushchev, does, somehow, push itself into his language and the poor devil, he can be expelled from the party for such an impropriety.

The first time I heard him say it, I thought I was mistaken, for Communists pride themselves on having forsaken the stupidities of the past. But it is amazing how the past does hold on to us. I read a piece by J. P. Stafford who is an educator. He objects to what he calls the "woodshed philosophy of pioneer days," that is, the paddling of a young fellow across the buttocks until he recognizes at an early age, that crime does not pay. Stafford says, concerning juvenile delinquents:

"What we need is not to recall all the timeworn arguments, but to get to a co-operative, imaginative approach based on research, investigation, and the intelligent leadership of social and religious groups and government agencies."

We have research, investigation, intelligent leadership, statistics, publications, sociologists and social workers but juvenile crime is on the increase. It is like a fellow I know who received a telephone call from an alcoholic who said that he did not feel so good. My friend asked him how much the headache cost him. Well, it seems as though the alcoholic went through $60. My friend said:

"That must be a pretty good headache to cost $60. I hope you enjoy it for what it is worth."

Doing All Right

American Astronautic And Space Program Is Going Well

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Amid the Soviet's triumphant launching of Lunik II and K-1, somebody ought to say that the American astronautic and space program is doing very well, too, thank you.

While Khrushchev was in Washington and justifiably making the most of his country's successful moon - shot, we had two embarrassing failures. The Jupiter IRBM, with its news - catching cargo of "pregnant mice," fizzled out. The bad - luck Navy satellite called Vanguard didn't take off. Instead of hanging our heads and cringing at news stories about our own ineptitude, we might have considered the scoreboard. Of the nine vehicles orbiting the earth, all but one is American.

Of the two planetoids in solar orbit, one is ours and one is Russian. The U. S. has launched 12 earth satellites, with eight still up there. Meanwhile, you have to keep a hot wire open to stay abreast of American progress. The world's only known airplane to take a man into space, North American's X-15, made its first powered flight while Big K was enroute to New York. Before he had addressed the United Nations there, Vanguard III had joined its two predecessors up there.

Is this good? It's very good. Better yet is the impression of internal fortitude among our space scientists and administrators which a reporter brings away from his interviews. It would be understandable if the inmates of NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration) began to gnaw the carpets. It is reassuring to find that the pace and purpose of an orderly scientific probe of the upper atmosphere have not been jarred by foreign successes or by domestic pressure for cheap, quick spectaculars.

T. Keith Glennan, the NASA Administrator, should get credit for holding things together. Dr. Glennan himself has pretty well orbited the firmament of American economy. When our middle-aged generation was in college, Glennan was in Hollywood, first as a top engineer in the early talkies, next as a studio boss. He served in wartime by bringing sophistication to underwater detection, moved to the academic field in 1947 as President of the Case Institute of Technology in Cleveland, where he also became a civic affairs leader, and in 1950- 52 was on leave in Washington as a member of the Atomic Energy Commission under Mr. Truman. Not long ago Dr. Glennan made a depth penetration of Russia and its educational system.

Dr. Glennan has refused under stress to alter a program that is scheduled ten years ahead. While our vehicles have carried useful payloads of scientific instrumentation, they have been small and quite expensive per pound. Instead of cutting loose a swarm of these petty carriers, Dr. Glennan proposes to hold off until we have the optimum combination of engine thrust and payload performance. It is already certain that our satellites have given world science more information than the Russians' have. It is probable that our less sensational vehicles have been more productive of long-term benefit.

Looking back, it appears that American wrong - thinking over the atomic bombing of Japan was the beginning of our loss of scientific leadership. Partly from Communist - stirred guilt, partly from old - fashioned Main Street complacency, we did not develop the propulsion that would be necessary to hurl atomic warheads at indefensible speeds and heights. Russia took the lead in propulsion and in the size of projectiles. But by making smaller instruments, by stressing programs of miniaturization and microminiaturization, we may be better equipped for the longer pull.

For the new decade which begins in 1960, we have a pair of new generation vehicles for going to the moon and beyond. Vega, which taxpayers are already buying on a four - year installment plan that totals $91.6 million, is intended to make a moon landing and also to put a two - man space laboratory into orbit. Centaur will cost $95.5 million for the same period. It is an advanced man-bearing satellite and is expected to establish the first communications system in space.

There is less danger that the Russians will beat us than that we will beat ourselves by indolence and scatter - brains. The Eisenhower Administration has made up much lost ground from the stand - still years that preceded it. We had better hope that Ike's successor can keep the program rolling.

Views Of Our Readers

"FIGHTING MEN SOFT"
Greenwood, Miss.

Editor, World,

In the August 8, 1959 issue of the "Saturday Evening Post" Hanson W. Baldwin closed his article "Our Fighting Men Have Gone Soft" by quoting Paul — to the Corinthians — (I Cor. XIV: 8): "If the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle?

Let's get down to some cases:

In this country's most recent significant military venture, the trumpets sounded: "Love one-another per court order — Let's have brotherhood by bayonet" — and thus exposed a crack federal military unit — and the Arkansas militia — to national ridicule.

Now the American trumpeters are running practice notes on the theme: "Let's free the slaves of Europe, Asia and Africa from Russian communism" while Russian trumpeters practice the response "Let's free the slaves of Europe, Africa, North and South America from American capitalism" — and integrated American G. I.'s — and possibly their Russian counterparts — probably have difficult "digging" such music.

If it should so transpite hereafter that the trumpets sound off with: "Let's compel intimate commingling of African Negroes with Anglo - Saxon Caucasians by coercion of governmental force" — there will be a significant number of people, including me, who will be completely indifferent to whether the trumpeters be American or Russian.

If this be treason, let somebody make the most of it.

LIKES EDITORIAL
Baton Rouge, La.

Editor, Morning World

I have just seen a copy of the Editorial which appeared in your newspaper Saturday, September 19, concerning the work of the Agricultural Extension Service. Certainly, all of us who are employed by the Louisiana Agricultural Extension Service, and particularly those who serve the people in your territory, are grateful to you for the comments which are made in this Editorial.

May I take this occasion to say to you that much of what we accomplish in an educational way is made possible by the splendid cooperation which we have received from the press. Your newspaper has done an exceptionally fine job of covering agricultural news.

PLANNING COMMISSION
West Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World

It was with interest that I read your editorial in the Monroe Morning World of September 6, "Threats to Liberty", dealing with city planning and the dangers involved if we who are doing this work are not very careful.

As one who is serving on a Planning Commission, I agree with you wholeheartedly. You should keep such issues before the public.

SCHOOL PROGRESS TOLD
West Monroe, La.

Editor, Monroe Morning World:

May I give your fine paper some facts about the wonderful progress the past few years of the Ouachita Parish Schools. It is my belief the general public will share in the joy and fellowship of the victories won by the outstanding leadership of Parish Superintendent W. W. Ward, the Parish School Board and a qualified staff of teachers.

Since 1950 six new white schools have been added and buildings constructed. They are — Highland, Woodlawn, Kiroli, Shady Grove, West Monroe Junior High School and the great West Monroe High School. Seven new buildings have been built for existing schools. They are Lakeshore, Oakaloosa, Drew, Lenwil, Ransom, Swartz and the fine Ouachita Parish High School. Additions were added to the buildings at Calhoun, Logtown, A. L. Smith and Mitchell. All others have been modernized.

Seven new colored schools have been built. They are — Boley, Central, Myles, Burks, Swayze, Terzia and Booker T. Washington. All others have been renovated and modernized.

In 1950 the total enrollment of all parish schools (white and colored) was 9239. This year by September 14th a total of 13,732 had enrolled. This was a gain of 4493 since 1950.

The operational budget of the parish schools in 1949-1950 was $1,810,432.39, last year it was $4,764,340.32. Millions have been spent on school buildings the past ten years.

The parish schools have a teaching staff for 1959-1960 session of 578 with 133 school buses carrying 8420 children daily.

Because of the trained, qualified excellent leadership and trained teaching staff Ouachita Parish School system has been selected as a pilot system in Louisiana to lead the way in centralized elementary libraries and also in elementary accreditatisons program.

All the people of Ouachita Parish can look back across ten years of the greatest progress ever made in the Parish School system.

This is truly a great day to be alive and see the mighty progress education is making in Ouachita Parish. This progress is also a credit and a reflection of the toils and labors of men like the late Superintendent T. O. Brown who served their day and generation well. They live today in the march of progress.

A. T. MITCHELL,
Pastor, Ridge Avenue Baptist Church.

To the Editor:

What is the matter with our people in Monroe? I'm a teenager and I spent this summer in a city smaller than ours in south Louisiana. There they had three recreation centers with swimming pools and all kinds of play rooms and other activities. Last year I spent the summer in Shreveport and they had all kinds of activities and centers for the children and grown-ups also. When I came back to Monroe I understood our mayor had said if enough people signed a petition an election would be held on a bond issue to build us some centers. Now I understand he is going to call it off.

We kids don't have any decent place like the others towns for kids. Is something wrong with us kids or is something wrong with our mayors and other city men. I don't know much about government but I thought if your Mayor promised you something he was supposed to do it, especially when so many people asked him to, especially our mayor cause I've heard lots of people say he was honest and a Christian. Is this any way for an honest, Christian mayor to do.

TWO LITTLE WORDS
Newellton, La.

Editor, Morning World:

I am a funeral coach salesman and travel over 1500 miles every month in three states Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

So few people realize what a fine thing it is to have the people in the car ahead of you wave you around them.

Especially nice about this sort of thing are the transport truck drivers who seem to take a delight in helping you around. As a rule you pass them so fast you cannot thank them if you wanted to and those of us who deeply appreciate this little courtesy shown by them want so much to do just that.

Please let me suggest that for those two little words (thank you) just hold up two fingers or sound your horn twice and if it's at night just flick your lights twice as a sign of thanks.

You will feel better and I am sure they too, for you having done so.

KHRUSHCHEV AND CHURCHES
Editor, Morning World:

In view of the fact that Mr. Khrushchev has visited so many places such as our supermarkets, plants, and factories, why hasn't he been invited to visit some of our churches? It seems to me that our churches are one of our most important assets to Christian living. A visit to our churches would show Mr. Khrushchev how we live in America with our God.

If Mr. Khrushchev is seeing the material values of America, why omit the spiritual side of our great democracy? Perhaps a visit to one of our great churches would help Mr. Khrushchev to feel the true source of our strength.

Agencies Face Deadline For Survey Finish

WASHINGTON, (AP) — The Budget Bureau Friday gave government agencies until Dec. 31 to complete a survey aimed at getting them out of commercial and industrial activities.

The order was in line with an administration policy that the government "will not start, or carry on, any commercial-industrial activity if the product or service can be procured from private enterprise through ordinary business channels."

Budget Director Maurice Stans said in a statement that this policy has "the two-fold benefit of furthering the free enterprise system and permitting governmental agencies to concentrate their efforts on primary objectives."

Areas covered by the new review include construction, transportation, communications, utilities, warehousing and government-owned facilities operated by contractors. Manufacturing and service activities were reviewed earlier.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Novels with a medical background are very popular with the patrons of the Ouachita Parish Public Library and we are always happy when we have a new one to offer them. This week's addition in this category is called "The Final Diagnosis" and the author is Arthur Hailey. It is the story of Dr. Kent O'Donnell, a young and alert physician, who is chief of staff at a large three county hospital. He wants to restore the hospitals standards, but finds himself in constant conflict with the head pathologist. There is also the account of the love of the student nurse for another young Doctor. This is a book which will be widely read and enjoyed by many people. Taylor Caldwell is the author of a book which is different from her usual type. It is called "Your Sins and Mine". It is a fable, dealing with the time when there is a pestilence on the land, because the world has forgotten God. It is a book to make one think and will be eagerly read by the devotees of Taylor Caldwell. March Cost is a writer of rare ability, whose latest book is called "A Woman of Letters." It is the story of a young English girl, whose chosen field was writing and of two loves whom she met in the course of her life. This is a book which will appeal to women of all ages.

Those who read "The Education of Hyman Kaplan, several years ago, will welcome it's sequal "The Return Hyman Kaplan also by Leo Rosten. This is the story of a young foreigner and his efforts to learn the English language in night school. If you want a good laugh, don't miss this. Readers of Earl Stanly Gardner will welcome a new book from his pen, called "The case of the singing skirt." Perry Mason is in action again and this is a good fast moving story of detection. An exciting story of action and adventure is "Baboon Rock" by Robert W. Krepps. With an exotic setting and plenty of action, this book will interest many readers.

How many of you would like to take part in a discussion group which stimulates the mind? This is the "Great books program" tried in many cities of the United States with great success. The first meeting of this group is to be held at the Ouachita Public Library on September 29 at 7:00. Call your library for details, or come that night and find out how you like it.

Those who like to read plays will be glad that we now have available a copy of "The flower drum song," a current broadway production. The lines are delightful and we also have the record, which we can let you borrow to use in conjunction with the book. A delighful travel book is "My Heart Has Seventeen Rooms" by Carol Bartholomew. It is an account of the sojourn of a family in the Punjab region of India and of their experiences in learning to know and love the Indian country and people. Cookbooks are extremely popular with many of our library patrons. The latest addition to our collection is "The Diner's Club Cookbook" by Myra Waldo. This book contains interesting recipes from all over the world and they are extremely good ones.

A very scholarly book is "The Structure of Nations and Empires" by Reinhold Niebuhr. It is not a book for the casual reader, but for the one who takes his time and savors what he reads. Although it is a little late for this year's vacation trip, it is never too early to plan for next year. "American vacation book" by George S. Wells will help you plan and enjoy your vacation to the utmost. For those who like American history "William Diamond's Drum" by Arthur Bernon Tourtellot is a unique reading experience. This is the story of the drummer boy, who beat his drum to muster the minute men for the battle of Lexington. This is a story to excite the imagination of men and boys.

One of the outstanding biographers of our time is Marchette Chute. When she writes about a person, she studies and lives the period and gives a complete picture of her subject. She has done this again in "Two Gentle Men." which is an account of the lives of George Herbert and Robert Harrick. For those who are interested in English literature, this is a stimulating experience.

RUNNING THE SCALES
With JOHN CALE

Critics the country over are taking stock of their arsenals about this time in order to ready themselves for the coming season.

Some of those in the needling profession give the impression they don't like what they're looking at or listening to and dare the performers to please them.

Others take a clinical view and take the play, concert or art hanging into the dissecting room for an "objective" look at various elements and phases of the performance.

All critics would like to assume a "let the chips fall where they may" attitude and serve as sort of an umpire between audience and performers. This is conceit pure and simple and the best any critic can do is build up some sort of background in the art forms to justify his own self-esteem. Most of this background comes from a study of what composers, writers, and artists have pointed out about the works they have brought into being.

Richard Wagner, the German opera composer, had visions of a "combined art form" where all elements of art — music, poetry, painting, dancing and drama—followed a unified course.

His efforts never were completely realized in this particular direction, but the idea serves a modern - day critic very well. For if a play has excellent sets and poor acting, it will miss out in the impact department.

Getting down to finer details, if a pianist selects a pogram which would sound better when done by full orchestra or by a calypso singer, he is also forcing a misfit.

TRAGEDY, COMEDY

An earlier countryman of Wagner's, G. E. Lessing, wrote plays then turned critic. Needless to say, his works were well written but somewhat too square to be exciting. His discussions of plays done at the Hamburg theatre in the early 18th century, however, are valuable additions to any critic's ammunition dump.

Said Lessing about tragedy, "It is not pity for the tragic hero, nor fear of the evil forces surrounding him which grips the audience, but the logical unfolding of cause and effect."

Since that time we have seen everything from "hiss the villain" melodrama to tear - jerking soap operas and still Lessing's standard for tragedy holds true. Naturally, he was equally opposed to the clowning and stupidity which enjoy periods of being in and out of vogue under the name of "comedy."

With a head full of ideas like these on one side of his see-saw, Mr. Critic had also better keep his spare eye and ear turned to the audience. For if the music or drama or what have you violates all rules and precedents and still "hits home" with the audience, the writeup had better make due mention of that all-important fact.

Engaging Rascal In Happy Fun

THE CRIME OF GIOVANNI VENTURI. By Howard Shaw. Holt. $3.95.

Giovanni, both hero and villain, runs an inn in Trastevere, that other Tiber bank where you find the Vatican, the students and the poor. He serves good food, makes a modest living, has a bookseller friend next door, and is reasonably successful and contended.

When the pharmacist at the corner dies, his shop is taken over by URITI, restaurant chain that in other cities has driven small restaurateurs out of business, and intends to deal as harshly with Giovanni. But the bookseller whose life he saved in the war sees a chance to return the favor. Recalling the practical Giovanni's lament that before selling food he must buy it, and before selling drink must do likewise, and observing that by Breachy's Law what goes up can also go down, he advises Giovanni to tunnel right down the street to a spot directly under the URITI dumbwaiter and tap his rival's supplies. Didn't they try to harm him? He shouldn't be scrupulous about getting even.

They tunnel, cater to a fabulously restricted clientele, bank wads of lire, get the help of old Lars Porsena in spirit and, more practically, of a neighbor beldame with a pretty niece.

This begins so well you fear Shaw can't hold up, but he fools you — as Giovanni fools URITI. Good innkeeper, a first cousin of "The Mad Woman of Chaillot," he is an honest and engaging rascal. Shaw pokes fun at the gullibility of diners out but that is only incidental to the quiet, irresistible charm of his people, the intriguing sound of their voices, the never faltering mood of happy make-believe. Shaw aimed to please, and he scores a bull's eye: this blithe bit of fancy is pure enjoyment.

RELEASE MOVIE

MOSCOW (UPI) —A special newsrell titled "The U.S.A. Welcomes N. S. Khrushchev" has been released for Moscow movie theaters, the news agency Tass reported Thursday. The film shows scenes of Premier Khrushchev's current visit to the United States.

Television Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—The introduction of their fall merchandise assumes deluge proportions on the TV networks next week.

Fourteen new series will be presented, 28 established series will leave the repeats behind for new material or return after a summer layoff, and there will be five specials.

Art Carney, Perry Como, Steve Allen, Bing Crosby, Garry Moore, Red Skelton, Pat Boone, Ernie Ford and Betty Hutton are among the stars involved.

NBC starts world series telecasts next Wednesday.

Details of the week Sept. 27-Oct. 5.

SUNDAY

ABC and NBC will present live from Washington, D.C., Soviet Premier Khrushchehv's final U.S. press conference.

The one-hour drama on NBC's "Riverboat" series is "about Roger Mowbray," with Vera Miles as guest star playing an heiress in distress.

Bret gets forced into office via a gambling debt in "The Sheriff of Duck 'n Shoot" on ABC's "Maverick".

Sunday's Showcase launches a major effort with the first of two one-hour dramas covering Budd Schulberg's famous novel, "What Makes Sammy Run?" The concluding half will be aired Oct. 4.

The last NBC "Chevy Show" before Dinah Shore's return to the program next Sunday is headed by Roy Rogers, Dale Evans, Edie Adams and Connie Francis.

"Alfred Hitchcock Presents" gets a new season under way on CBS with "Arthur," in which British star Laurence Harvey plays an egotistical murderer.

ABC has a one-hour special "The Splendid American," a documentary narrated by John Daly.

Dick Clark, daytime idol of the teenagers, undertakes a new weekly live show for ABC in "Dick Clark's World of Talent".

MONDAY

NBC's famed educational series "Continental Classroom," returns.

NBC introduces two new afternoon series, each five times a week. "House On High Street," is a dramatic series based on files of domestic relations courts across the country. "Split Personality," 4:30-5, is an audience participation show with comedian Tom Poston as master of ceremonies.

ABC resumes with the "Shirley Temple Storybook" series of one-hour fairy tales after a summer hiatus (all originally shown on NBC last season) at 7:30. The first is "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves."

The CBS "DuPont Show of The Month" starts another season of nine 90-minute dramas with "Body and Soul," a live version based on a famous old movie.

NBC's "Goodyear Theatre." begins a new season at 9:30 with "Hello, Charlie," written and narrated by Ben Hecht.

CBS introduces a new half-hour weekly comedy series, "Hennesey," in which Jackie Cooper stars as a Navy doctor, at 10.

After a summer layoff, Steve Allen returns to NBC with his one hour weekly variety show at 10. Hollywood is the point of origin this season, not New York.

TUESDAY

The one-hour drama on NBC's "Laramie" at 7:30 p.m. is "Circle of Fire" with Ernest Borgnine and Marsha Hunt as guest stars in a tale about Indian vengeance.

ABC's "Sugarfoot" Western at 7:30 is "The Wild Bunch," in which hero Tom Brewster has trouble as a frontier school teacher.

REFUGEES

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —The U. S. mission announced Friday it has just given $400,000 to the High Commission on Refugees, bringing its contribution for the current year to a million dollars. The United States also has paid out $900,000 to other international funds in observance of Refugee Year.

Books

Wonderful Story Told Wonderfully

SHAKESPEARE AND COMPANY. By Sylvia Geach. Harcourt, Brace. $4.50.

On Feb. 2, 1922, James Joyce's 40th birthday, the first two copies of his "Ulysses" came from Maurice Darantiere, the printer in Dijon, to Shakespeare and Company in Paris. One went to the Irish novelist, the other was kept by his pioneering publisher, proprietor of the famous Shakespeare bookshop and author of this utterly fascinating book.

Almost two years before, Miss Beach went to a party in a Paris suburb to which her friends Ezra Pound and Mrs. Pound brought Joyce and Mrs. Joyce. She met him and there and then, in her book, identifies him as "the greatest writer of my time." She knew his early work, and quickly learned that though extracts of "Ulysses" had appeared in England and the United States there was no one to bring out the book — English printers, themselves liable under obscinity laws, wouldn't even set it, and American publishers had censorship problems. So she proudly, and at the cost of incredible pains, brought it out herself.

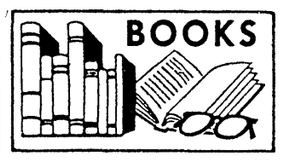
However important a date that February 1922 day was to Joyce, and to lovers of letters, it was probbaly Miss Beach's big moment. The incident comes early in her book, but it is the hub of her remarkable story, which has more to do with Joyce than anyone else.

Daughter of a Princeton minister among whose parishioners was Woodrow Wilson, Miss Beach traveled in Europe in her youth and elected to stay in Paris. She met Adrienne Monnier, already a bookseller, and started a store of her own in 1919. In 1921 it moved to the rue de l'Odeon. It is no exaggeration to say that by the mid-1920s young Americans involved in the contemporary creative world went to Paris to see not only the Louvre and Notre Dame and the Arc de This and That, also Shakespeare and Company.

Think of a name, any name, and you found him or her there — Stein and Tokla, naturally, Katherine Anne Porter, Janet Flanner, Henry Miller, Ernest Hemingway, Sherwood Anderson, Virgil Thomson, Bryher, William Carlos Williams, T. S. Eliot, there is no end to the list.

But the man appearing most often is Joyce, with his ashplant stick, thick glasses, fear of dogs, pride in his tenor voice, spendthrift ways, squeamishness about improper language in mixed company, and exacting requirements, as for "Pomes Penyeach." Above all there is the shocking fact that though it was Miss Beach who made the heavy sacrifices necessary to get "Ulysses" published, she was in the end hardly a penny richer for what must have been one of the most profitable titles in modern times — it is her professional opinion, incidentally, that "the banning of 'Ulysses' was a fortunate thing."

This ranks with the finest books written about that grand old Paris which for a decade was an essential part of the American literary scene. It is written with a serenity and urbanity which have been missing from some of the memoirs of her friends; Miss Beach is no gossip, she is modest, and she controls a colorful vocabulary without an unkind word in it. Occupying a unique vantage point, she had a wonderful story to tell and she tells it wonderfully. The very people she writes about, who set the highest standards we have in story - telling, will all be proud of her.



One Hour, by Lillian Smith (Harcourt, Brace): In her first novel since "Strange Fruit," Lillian Smith describes the tragic events set off when an imaginative, somewhat unstable eight-year-old girl wanders into a vacant store in the shopping center of a Southern city and a brilliant research scientist is accused of molesting her. The story, told by a young clergyman who lost a leg in the war, delves into the impact the situation makes on the scientist, his wife and son; the clergyman, the girl and her parents, and several other citizens of various degrees of respectability. The cause of science, the priestly vows of the clergyman, the happiness of a marriage and the lives of two innocents are sacrificed to the ignorance, hysteria and hatred that take charge. This is a suspenseful tale, deftly told without resort to the cliches often found in stories about witch-hunting. For one thing, maybe the scientist was guilty.

Goodness Had Nothing To Do With It, by Mae West (Prentice-Hall): The autobiography of one of the most amazing figures of the entertainment world. From the time she was seven years old and started her stage career (she is now 66) Miss West has had a mind of her own and has used it with telling effect. She wrote her own plays and movie scripts and parlayed a unique personality whose accent was on sex and comedy to fame and fortune. If her acting was built on sexual allure, so was her personal life, she tells us in her book. She needed lots of men and had them, but she was not the marrying type and her early marriage at age 17 was a mistake that turned up years later to haunt her. On her way up the success ladder she had trouble with the censors and the police but the public was with her and she had the satisfaction, among many others, of seeing her name make the dictionary — meaning a life-saving device.

The Crackerjack Marines, by Ben Masselink (Little, Brown): The armed forces made men of millions of young Americans in World War II, but not always in the fashion their mothers would have preferred. This is the racily entertaining story of a fictional young man who made his way to maturity by an unusual route. It was not on a steaming Pacific beachhead that George Toliver learned the lessons of life but in the Marine recruiting office in Chicago. His shipmates, fast men with a bottle or a blonde, taught him a great deal, but he got his advanced training from the girls. A rousing tale, sometimes touching and often uproariously funny, of the men who fought the battles of the home front during the world's biggest war.

Every Day Is Sunday, by Willard Temple (Crown): A fictional treatment of a topic much discussed these days — retirement. The hero is Sam Jessup, a mere 51 and successful in the paint business. He decides to retire to Florida with his wife, who writes children's books. His move from the Middle West to the South spawns a whole set of new problems. There are adjustments to be made to the climate, to housing, to friends, to a new budget. Temple deals with these situations with a light touch and yet in an affecting way.

A Great City And Nature At Her Worst

THE EARTH SHOOK, THE SKY BURNED. By William Bronson. Doubleday. $5.95.

At 5:12 the morning of Wednesday, April 18, 1906, as street lights faded before daylight, as trolley crews got ready for work, as produce men prepared for business, the earthquake struck San Francisco. The worst tremors lasted a little over a minute, pavements yawned, the ground undulated like ocean waves, buildings shook, sagged and toppled.

A well trained fire department set out to fight, but the great underground mains had broken and there was little water. By the end of the first day the major buildings were burnt or shaken to pieces, by Saturday all the business district and two - thirds of the dwellings were destroyed, damage was 350 million dollars and up, and nearly 500 were dead.

This story of a monstrous catastrophe is told in a spirited text and in 400 photographs. If luck may be mentioned in this grim connection — and I don't know why not since Bronson says he aims to "entertain" — the city was lucky, and the author, too, in having Arnold Genthe on hand in that black April to take pictures. Bronson's full account covers the disaster north and south, too, in San Jose and Santa Rosa. His encouraging theme is, that tough, resilient San Franciscans can take even the worst affliction of nature.

PROJECT PLOWSHARE
Peaceful Atoms

EDITOR'S NOTE — For years, men have dreamed of wonders possible through peaceful uses of the atom. Now many marvels are within practical grasp. In the following article, an AP science writer unfolds the exciting panorama the thermonuclear bomb can create for humanity's benefit.

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Writer

The thermonuclear bomb is ready to go to work, peacefully and quietly.

It has the power to landscape the face of the earth; to bring up great riches from the oceans or from underground; to probe the upper air and outer space for perhaps undreamed-of benefits.

Scientists, engineers and technicians already are busy with the preliminaries for two ventures, tentatively slated for execution within a year or two, called Project Plowshare. Plowshare is the Atomic Energy Commission's name for the whole field of undertakings contemplating the use of nuclear explosives for peaceful purposes.

One of the two imminent projects is the burial of a peaceful bomb, which is not a bomb in the military sense, in a salt mine to produce heat for power and for the quick conversion of natural substances into highly useful and easily recoverable materials.

The second is the excavation of a harbor on the bleak northwest coast of Alaska, well north of the Arctic Circle.

Close behind these are detailed proposals to dig a new and larger Panama Canal; warm up the polar regions; attempt weather control; curb hurricanes and lightning; produce cheap fresh water from the oceans; enlarge the supply of petroleum and other minerals; and make strange new chemicals, including more fuel for both reactors and nuclear explosives.

The scientists believe they have the know-how for all these and more, and have it right now.

The nuclear explosive is considered ready because the scientists have learned how to aim its split-second violence or trap it underground in the form of heat which could be stored and used gradually.

They say they have demonstrated that they can bury a device at just the right depth so that you could stand directly above it, and feel nothing more than a sudden jolt.

They worked out their mathematical formula for containment of the blast and the radioactivity from a 1.7 kiloton shot—one kiloton equals 1,000 tons of TNT—in the Nevada desert on Sept. 19, 1957, and five test blasts in October 1958.

The combination of extreme heat and pressure under certain natural underground conditions produces gems out of sand and other earth minerals.

Along with the accumulated know-how, there now is a kind of price list for peaceful nuclear explosive devices which the scientists call service charges. The Sandia Corp., nuclear weaponeer to Uncle Sam, quotes these figures:

Atomic fission device, 1 to 5 kilotons, each $500,000.

Atomic fusion device, with 5 per cent fissionable and 95 per cent fusionable fuel, 1 to 5 megatons, each $1,000,000. A megaton equals one million tons of TNT.

Ditto, in large quantities, each $850,000.

Atomic fusion device, 10 megatons, each $1,100,000.

These make just as much bang as military bombs of corresponding size and their insides are secret. The AEC refers to them as black boxes and they are not to be opened. This is the only classified aspect of the entire Project Plowshare.

With so much to go on, the AEC and the University of California's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory called the experts together in mid-May. The experts put their findings and proposals before several hundred representatives of business and industry.

Most of the project proposals came from experimenters at the university's radiation laboratories at Livermore and Berkeley and its Los Alamos scientific laboratory.

They included representatives of the Sandia group, which operates at Livermore and Albuquerque, as well as a sprinkling of scientists from government agencies and industrial firms.

Anxious For Hart's Act Two

ACT ONE. An autobiography by Moss Hart. Random House. $5.00.

"Let the unwary reader beware at the very outset—these annals are not for those unsentimental about the theater or untouched by its idiocies as well as its glories."

And how wrong Moss Hart is at the very outset.

For this book, tender, moving, dramatic in a way that few autobiographies ever achieve, is not the usual name dropping collection of Broadway anecdotes and chit-chat.

It is a book for anyone who has ever lived in poverty and dreamed of escape, for anyone who has ever suffered the adolescent dilemma of loving and being ashamed of his family at the same time, for anyone who has known loneliness, defeat, frustration, lingering sorrow and all the other gnawing emotions that move like a cloud across the memory in our sunniest hours.

Theatrical sentimentality has nothing to do with it.

The author is writing about Moss Hart, the stage struck little boy who yearned to rise out of the fur storage vault and become somebody, not about Moss Hart the successful playwright and director, although the two are virtually inseparable.

But Hart, with the dramatist's talent for stripping characters to the bone, does separate them, and that is the essential genius of this very remarkable autobiography. What emerges is not just another celebrity wandering boastfully down the fact-blurred roads of memory, but a living, breathing, toiling human being about whom we, as readers, care very much from the opening sentence.

Without sacrifice of modesty or resort to mawkishness, Hart has accomplished that most difficult of all autobiographical feats. He has produced a sympathetic title character.

Capital letters and punctuation can hardly contain his characters — real people, all —within a sentence. They leap from page with incredible vivacity and move through real life scenes that only a dramatist of Hart's stature could mount.

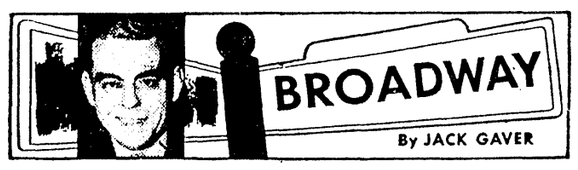
There is his cigar-manufacturer grandfather, "an Everest of Victorian tyranny," who might have led the American Federation of Labor had he not had a falling out with his best friend, Samuel Gompers, over who should carry the brief case into a union meeting. Instead he led the family haughtily into bottomless poverty.

There is regal, foolish Aunt Kate, who in Hart's own description anticipated Tennessee Williams' Blanche Du Bois with her "touching combination of the sane and ludicrous, along with some secret splendor within herself that awakened long - forgotten memories." While the family was all but starving, Aunt Kate could parade out of her room in antiquated finery and head to the Alhambra Theater and no one thought the worse of her extravagance. It was she who introduced Moss Hart to the theater when he was 7, and it was she, more than anyone else, who fed his dreams.

Finally and prominently, there is shy, caustic George Kaufman, assiduously picking the lint off his rug, munching on watercress and cucumber sandwiches, seldom getting more conversational than the muttered "er...er" which began the day's work for these two famous collaborators.

Hart's autobiography is more than just a collection of people. Ever the dramatist, he builds scene after scene, each with its own climax, its own point, its own revelations. We see (rather than read about) Moss Hart on a street corner retelling Theodore Dreiser's "Sister Carrie" to an enthralled neighborhood gang. We see him as a social director "making fun" in the dining room of a Borsht belt hotel. We see him at Aunt Kate's grave in Cypress Hills Cemetery after his first play flopped. And we see him finally in a taxi cab, moving his family away from Brooklyn forever, after the opening of "Once in a Lifetime," his first big hit in collaboration with Kaufman.

The book ends there, but apparently the Moss Hart story does not. The ending of "Act One" is slugged "intermission." We can hardly wait for the curtain to rise on Act Two.



NEW YORK (UPI) — What is it like to resume being a Broadway star after 22 years away from acting?

"Well," commented Kenneth MacKenna wryly, "let's put it this way. You can see that we're rehearsing here in the Longacre Theater for 'The Highest Tree' in the actual set for the play. Which is most unusual, by the way; rehearsing in the actual set, I mean.

"And you can see that it is a two - level set representing the first and second floors of a house. That stairway over there at stage left has 22 steps. I counted them.

"Now. When I left the stage and acting, I was 28 years old. Twenty - two steps would have been a breeze. Here I am now at the age of 60, and 22 steps are, believe me, 22 steps. Especially during these rehearsals. I go up those steps I don't know how many times a day.

"Fortunately, when the rehearsals are over and the play opens, I'll have to negotiate those steps only six times a performance, eight performances a week. By that time I think I may be in good enough shape to do that without giving the stairs a second thought even if the play is a long - run affair. Which, of course, is devoutly to be hoped.

"And it just occurred to me —22 steps. That's one for each year I haven't been acting, isn't it? A sort of penace would you say?"

But, seriously, what is it like to come back after so long an absence? MacKenna looks lean and hard, and the steps can't be the major factor.

"Well, my case is a peculiar one," said MacKenna, who was one of Broadway's outstanding leading men in the 1920's and the first half of the '30's. "As you know, I quit acting to become story editor for MGM in Hollywood. Except for time out for service in World War II, I was there from 1937 until the middle of this year.

"During that time I naturally developed an entirely different attitude toward material than I had had as an actor. I became completely objective about everything. Plays, books and other writings that I had to pass on did not constitute material that I had to act in, direct or produce, as had been the case on Broadway.

"Now that I'm back acting, although I know the theater has undergone economic and other changes, I don't find that the actor's position is much different. I don't have to adjust to new conditions; I simply have to readjust to the subjective position of the actor."

The star of Dore Schary's new play, in which he portrays a noted physicist with many problems, added that his return to the stage had presented one unforseen difficulty.

"As story editor at MGM," MacKenna explained, "I read everything of any potential importance written, especially plays and books, long before they were available to the public. I read most books in the galley proof — or manuscript — stage.

"During a recent delay of several hours on an airplane journey, I went into a bookstore to buy something to read to help pass the time. All of the latest publications were there, but I read every one of them months before. I guess I'll have to quit reading for about six months to give the publishers a chance to get ahead of me."

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Novels with a medical background are very popular with the patrons of the Ouachita Parish Public Library and we are always happy when we have a new one to offer them. This week's addition in this category is called "The Final Diagnosis" and the author is Arthur Hailey. It is the story of Dr. Kent O'Donnell, a young and alert physician, who is chief of staff at a large three county hospital. He wants to restore the hospitals standards, but finds himself in constant conflict with the head pathologist. There is also the account of the love of the student nurse for another young Doctor. This is a book which will be widely read and enjoyed by many people. Taylor Caldwell is the author of a book which is different from her usual type. It is called "Your Sins and Mine". It is a fable, dealing with the time when there is a pestilence on the land, because the world has forgotten God. It is a book to make one think and will be eagerly read by the devotees of Taylor Caldwell. March Cost is a writer of rare ability, whose latest book is called "A Woman of Letters." It is the story of a young English girl, whose chosen field was writing and of two loves whom she met in the course of her life. This is a book which will appeal to women of all ages.

Those who read "The Education of Hyman Kaplan, several years ago, will welcome it's sequal "The Return Hyman Kaplan also by Leo Rosten. This is the story of a young foreigner and his efforts to learn the English language in night school. If you want a good laugh, don't miss this. Reader's of Earl Stanly Gardner will welcome a new book from his pen, called "The case of the singing skirt." Perry Mason is in action again and this is a good fast moving story of detection. An exciting story of action and adventure is "Baboon Rock" by Robert W. Krepps. With an exotic setting and plenty of action, this book will interest many readers.

How many of you would like to take part in a discussion group which stimulates the mind? This is the "Great books program" tried in many cities of the United States with great success. The first meeting of this group is to be held at the Ouachita Public Library on September 29 at 7:00. Call your library for details, or come that night and find out how you like it.

Those who like to read plays will be glad that we now have available a copy of "The flower drum song," a current broadway production. The lines are delightful and we also have the record, which we can let you borrow to use in conjunction with the book. A delighful travel book is "My Heart Has Seventeen Rooms" by Carol Bartholomew. It is an account of the sojourn of a family in the Punjab region of India and of their experiences in learning to know and love the Indian country and people. Cookbooks are extremely popular with many of our library patrons. The latest addition to our collection is "The Diner's Club Cookbook" by Myra Waldo. This book contains interesting recipes from all over the world and they are extremely good ones.

A very scholarly book is "The Structure of Nations and Empires" by Reinhold Niebuhr. It is not a book for the casual reader, but for the one who takes his time and savors what he reads. Although it is a little late for this year's vacation trip, it is never too early to plan for next year. "American vacation book" by George S. Wells will help you plan and enjoy your vacation to the utmost. For those who like American history "William Diamond's Drum" by Arthur Bernon Tourtellot is a unique reading experience. This is the story of the drummer boy, who beat his drum to muster the minute men for the battle of Lexington. This is a story to excite the imagination of men and boys.

One of the outstanding biographers of our time is Marchette Chute. When she writes about a person, she studies and lives the period and gives a complete picture of her subject. She has done this again in "Two Gentle Men." which is an account of the lives of George Herbert and Robert Harrick. For those who are interested in English literature, this is a stimulating experience.

RUNNING THE SCALES
With JOHN CALE

Critics the country over are taking stock of their arsenals about this time in order to ready themselves for the coming season.

Some of those in the needling profession give the impression they don't like what they're looking at or listening to and dare the performers to please them.

Others take a clinical view and take the play, concert or art hanging into the dissecting room for an "objective" look at various elements and phases of the performance.

All critics would like to assume a "let the chips fall where they may" attitude and serve as sort of an umpire between audience and performers. This is conceit pure and simple and the best any critic can do is build up some sort of background in the art forms to justify his own self-esteem. Most of this background comes from a study of what composers, writers, and artists have pointed out about the works they have brought into being.

Richard Wagner, the German opera composer, had visions of a "combined art form" where all elements of art — music, poetry, painting, dancing and drama—followed a unified course.

His efforts never were completely realized in this particular direction, but the idea serves a modern - day critic very well. For if a play has excellent sets and poor acting, it will miss out in the impact department.

Getting down to finer details, if a pianist selects a pogram which would sound better when done by full orchestra or by a calypso singer, he is also forcing a misfit.

TRAGEDY, COMEDY

An earlier countryman of Wagner's, G. E. Lessing, wrote plays then turned critic. Needless to say, his works were well written but somewhat too square to be exciting. His discussions of plays done at the Hamburg theatre in the early 18th century, however, are valuable additions to any critic's ammunition dump.

Said Lessing about tragedy, "It is not pity for the tragic hero, nor fear of the evil forces surrounding him which grips the audience, but the logical unfolding of cause and effect."

Since that time we have seen everything from "hiss the villain" melodrama to tear - jerking soap operas and still Lessing's standard for tragedy holds true. Naturally, he was equally opposed to the clowning and stupidity which enjoy periods of being in and out of vogue under the name of "comedy."

With a head full of ideas like these on one side of his see-saw, Mr. Critic had also better keep his spare eye and ear turned to the audience. For if the music or drama or what have you violates all rules and precedents and still "hits home" with the audience, the writeup had better make due mention of that all-important fact.

Engaging Rascal In Happy Fun

THE CRIME OF GIOVANNI VENTURI. By Howard Shaw. Holt. $3.95.

Giovanni, both hero and villain, runs an inn in Trastevere, that other Tiber bank where you find the Vatican, the students and the poor. He serves good food, makes a modest living, has a bookseller friend next door, and is reasonably successful and contended.

When the pharmacist at the corner dies, his shop is taken over by URITI, restaurant chain that in other cities has driven small restaurateurs out of business, and intends to deal as harshly with Giovanni. But the bookseller whose life he saved in the war sees a chance to return the favor. Recalling the practical Giovanni's lament that before selling food he must buy it, and before selling drink must do likewise, and observing that by Breachy's Law what goes up can also go down, he advises Giovanni to tunnel right down the street to a spot directly under the URITI dumbwaiter and tap his rival's supplies. Didn't they try to harm him? He shouldn't be scrupulous about getting even.

They tunnel, cater to a fabulously restricted clientele, bank wads of lire, get the help of old Lars Porsena in spirit and, more practically, of a neighbor beldame with a pretty niece.

This begins so well you fear Shaw can't hold up, but he fools you — as Giovanni fools URITI. Good innkeeper, a first cousin of "The Mad Woman of Chaillot," he is an honest and engaging rascal. Shaw pokes fun at the gullibility of diners out but that is only incidental to the quiet, irresistible charm of his people, the intriguing sound of their voices, the never faltering mood of happy make-believe. Shaw aimed to please, and he scores a bull's eye; this blithe bit of fancy is pure enjoyment.

RELEASE MOVIE

MOSCOW (UPI) —A special newsrell titled "The U.S.A. Welcomes N. S. Khrushchev" has been released for Moscow movie theaters, the news agency Tass reported Thursday. The film shows scenes of Premier Khrushchev's current visit to the United States.

Television Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—The introduction of their fall merchandise assumes deluge proportions on the TV networks next week.

Fourteen new series will be presented, 28 established series will leave the repeats behind for new material or return after a summer layoff, and there will be five specials.

Art Carney, Perry Como, Steve Allen, Bing Crosby, Garry Moore, Red Skelton, Pat Boone, Ernie Ford and Betty Hutton are among the stars involved.

NBC starts world series telecasts next Wednesday.

Details of the week Sept. 27-Oct. 5.

SUNDAY

ABC and NBC will present live from Washington, D.C., Soviet Premier Khrushchehv's final U.S. press conference.

The one-hour drama on NBC's "Riverboat" series is "about Roger Mowbray," with Vera Miles as guest star playing an heiress in distress.

Bret gets forced into office via a gambling debt in "The Sheriff of Duck 'n Shoot" on ABC's "Maverick".

Sunday's Showcase launches a major effort with the first of two one-hour dramas covering Budd Schulberg's famous novel, "What Makes Sammy Run?" The concluding half will be aired Oct. 4.

The last NBC "Chevy Show" before Dinah Shore's return to the program next Sunday is headed by Roy Rogers, Dale Evans, Edie Adams and Connie Francis.

"Alfred Hitchcock Presents" gets a new season under way on CBS with "Arthur," in which British star Laurence Harvey plays an egotistical murderer.

ABC has a one-hour special "The Splendid American," a documentary narrated by John Daly.

Dick Clark, daytime idol of the teenagers, undertakes a new weekly live show for ABC in "Dick Clark's World of Talent".

MONDAY

NBC's famed educational series "Continental Classroom," returns.

NBC introduces two new afternoon series, each five times a week. "House On High Street," is a dramatic series based on files of domestic relations courts across the country. "Split Personality," 4:30-5, is an audience participation show with comedian Tom Poston as master of ceremonies.

ABC resumes with the "Shirley Temple Storybook" series of one-hour fairy tales after a summer hiatus (all originally shown on NBC last season) at 7:30. The first is "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves."

The CBS "DuPont Show of The Month" starts another season of nine 90-minute dramas with "Body and Soul," a live version based on a famous old movie.

NBC's "Goodyear Theatre" begins a new season at 9:30 with "Hello, Charlie," written and narrated by Ben Hecht.

CBS introduces a new half-hour weekly comedy series, "Hennesey," in which Jackie Cooper stars as a Navy doctor, at 10.

After a summer layoff, Steve Allen returns to NBC with his one hour weekly variety show at 10. Hollywood is the point of origin this season, not New York.

TUESDAY

The one-hour drama on NBC's "Laramie" at 7:30 p.m. is "Circle of Fire" with Ernest Borgnine and Marsha Hunt as guest stars in a tale about Indian vengeance.

ABC's "Sugarfoot" Western at 7:30 is "The Wild Bunch," in which hero Tom Brewster has trouble as a frontier school teacher.

Wonderful Story Told Wonderfully

SHAKESPEARE AND COMPANY. By Sylvia Geach. Harcourt, Brace. $4.50.

On Feb. 2, 1922, James Joyce's 40th birthday, the first two copies of his "Ulysses" came from Maurice Darantiere, the printer in Dijon, to Shakespeare and Company in Paris. One went to the Irish novelist, the other was kept by his pioneering publisher, proprietor of the famous Shakespeare bookshop and author of this utterly fascinating book.

Almost two years before, Miss Beach went to a party in a Paris suburb to which her friends Ezra Pound and Mrs. Pound brought Joyce and Mrs. Joyce. She met him and there and then, in her book, identifies him as "the greatest writer of my time." She knew his early work, and quickly learned that though extracts of "Ulysses" had appeared in England and the United States there was no one to bring out the book — English printers, themselves liable under obscinity laws, wouldn't even set it, and American publishers had censorship problems. So she proudly, and at the cost of incredible pains, brought it out herself.

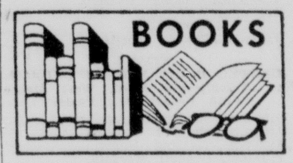
However important a date that February 1922 day was to Joyce, and to lovers of letters, it was probbaly Miss Beach's big moment. The incident comes early in her book, but it is the hub of her remarkable story, which has more to do with Joyce than anyone else.

Daughter of a Princeton minister among whose parishioners was Woodrow Wilson, Miss Beach traveled in Europe in her youth and elected to stay in Paris. She met Adrienne Monnier, already a bookseller, and started a store of her own in 1919. In 1921 it moved to the rue de l'Odeon. It is no exaggeration to say that by the mid-1920s young Americans involved in the contemporary creative world went to Paris to see not only the Louvre and Notre Dame and the Arc de This and That, also Shakespeare and Company.

Think of a name, any name, and you found him or her there — Stein and Tokla, naturally, Katherine Anne Porter, Janet Flanner, Henry Miller, Ernest Hemingway, Sherwood Anderson, Virgil Thomson, Bryher, William Carlos Williams, T. S. Eliot, there is no end to the list.

But the man appearing most often is Joyce, with his ashplant stick, thick glasses, fear of dogs, pride in his tenor voice, spendthrift ways, squeamishness about improper language in mixed company, and exacting requirements, as for "Pomes Penyeach." Above all there is the shocking fact that though it was Miss Beach who made the heavy sacrifices necessary to get "Ulysses" published, she was in the end hardly a penny richer for what must have been one of the most profitable titles in modern times — it is her professional opinion, incidentally, that "the banning of 'Ulysses' was a fortunate thing."

This ranks with the finest books written about that grand old Paris which for a decade was an essential part of the American literary scene. It is written with a serenity and urbanity which have been missing from some of the memoirs of her friends; Miss Beach is no gossip, she is modest, and she controls a colorful vocabulary without an unkind word in it. Occupying a unique vantage point, she had a wonderful story to tell and she tells it wonderfully. The very people she writes about, who set the highest standards we have in story - telling, will all be proud of her.



One Hour, by Lillian Smith (Harcourt, Brace): In her first novel since "Strange Fruit," Lillian Smith describes the tragic events set off when an imaginative, somewhat unstable eight-year-old girl wanders into a vacant store in the shopping center of a Southern city and a brilliant research scientist is accused of molesting her. The story, told by a young clergyman who lost a leg in the war, delves into the impact the situation makes on the scientist, his wife and son; the clergyman, the girl and her parents, and several other citizens of various degrees of respectability. The cause of science, the priestly vows of the clergyman, the happiness of a marriage and the lives of two innocents are sacrificed to the ignorance, hysteria and hatred that take charge. This is a suspenseful tale, deftly told without resort to the cliches often found in stories about witch-hunting. For one thing, maybe the scientist was guilty.

Goodness Had Nothing To Do With It, by Mae West (Prentice-Hall): The autobiography of one of the most amazing figures of the entertainment world. From the time she was seven years old and started her stage career (she is now 66) Miss West has had a mind of her own and has used it with telling effect. She wrote her own plays and movie scripts and parlayed a unique personality whose accent was on sex and comedy to fame and fortune. If her acting was built on sexual allure, so was her personal life, she tells us in her book. She needed lots of men and had them, but she was not the marrying type and her early marriage at age 17 was a mistake that turned up years later to haunt her. On her way up the success ladder she had trouble with the censors and the police but the public was with her and she had the satisfaction, among many others, of seeing her name make the dictionary — meaning a life-saving device.

The Crackerjack Marines, by Ben Masselink (Little, Brown): The armed forces made men of millions of young Americans in World War II, but not always in the fashion their mothers would have preferred. This is the racily entertaining story of a fictional young man who made his way to maturity by an unusual route. It was not on a steaming Pacific beachhead that George Toliver learned the lessons of life but in the Marine recruiting office in Chicago. His shipmates, fast men with a bottle or a blonde, taught him a great deal, but he got his advanced training from the girls. A rousing tale, sometimes touching and often uproariously funny, of the men who fought the battles of the home front during the world's biggest war.

Every Day Is Sunday, by Willard Temple (Crown): A fictional treatment of a topic much discussed these days — retirement. The hero is Sam Jessup, a mere 51 and successful in the paint business. He decides to retire to Florida with his wife, who writes children's books. His move from the Middle West to the South spawns a whole set of new problems. There are adjustments to be made to the climate, to housing, to friends, to a new budget. Temple deals with these situations with a light touch and yet in an affecting way.

A Great City And Nature At Her Worst

THE EARTH SHOOK, THE SKY BURNED. By William Bronson. Doubleday. $5.95.

At 5:12 the morning of Wednesday, April 18, 1906, as street lights faded before daylight, as trolley crews got ready for work, as produce men prepared for business, the earthquake struck San Francisco. The worst tremors lasted a little over a minute, pavements yawned, the ground undulated like ocean waves, buildings shook, sagged and toppled.

A well trained fire department set out to fight, but the great underground mains had broken and there was little water. By the end of the first day the major buildings were burnt or shaken to pieces, by Saturday all the business district and two - thirds of the dwellings were destroyed, damage was 350 million dollars and up, and nearly 500 were dead.

This story of a monstrous catastrophe is told in a spirited text and in 400 photographs. If luck may be mentioned in this grim connection — and I don't know why not since Bronson says he aims to "entertain" — the city was lucky, and the author, too, in having Arnold Genthe on hand in that black April to take pictures. Bronson's full account covers the disaster north and south, too, in San Jose and Santa Rosa. His encouraging theme is, that tough, resilient San Franciscans can take even the worst affliction of nature.

PROJECT PLOWSHARE
Peaceful Atoms

EDITOR'S NOTE — For years, men have dreamed of wonders possible through peaceful uses of the atom. Now many marvels are within practical grasp. In the following article, an AP science writer unfolds the exciting panorama the thermonuclear bomb can create for humanity's benefit.

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Writer

The thermonuclear bomb is ready to go to work, peacefully and quietly.

It has the power to landscape the face of the earth; to bring up great riches from the oceans or from underground; to probe the upper air and outer space for perhaps undreamed-of benefits.

Scientists, engineers and technicians already are busy with the preliminaries for two ventures, tentatively slated for execution within a year or two, called Project Plowshare. Plowshare is the Atomic Energy Commission's name for the whole field of undertakings contemplating the use of nuclear explosives for peaceful purposes.

One of the two imminent projects is the burial of a peaceful bomb, which is not a bomb in the military sense, in a salt mine to produce heat for power and for the quick conversion of natural substances into highly useful and easily recoverable materials.

The second is the excavation of a harbor on the bleak northwest coast of Alaska, well north of the Arctic Circle.

Close behind these are detailed proposals to dig a new and larger Panama Canal; warm up the polar regions; attempt weather control; curb hurricanes and lightning; produce cheap fresh water from the oceans; enlarge the supply of petroleum and other minerals; and make strange new chemicals, including more fuel for both reactors and nuclear explosives.

The scientists believe they have the know-how for all these and more, and have it right now.

The nuclear explosive is considered ready because the scientists have learned how to aim its split-second violence or trap it underground in the form of heat which could be stored and used gradually.

They say they have demonstrated that they can bury a device at just the right depth so that you could stand directly above it, and feel nothing more than a sudden jolt.

They worked out their mathematical formula for containment of the blast and the radioactivity from a 1.7 kiloton shot—one kiloton equals 1,000 tons of TNT—in the Nevada desert on Sept. 19, 1957, and five test blasts in October 1958.

The combination of extreme heat and pressure under certain natural underground conditions produces gems out of sand and other earth minerals.

Along with the accumulated know-how, there now is a kind of price list for peaceful nuclear explosive devices which the scientists call service charges. The Sandia Corp., nuclear weaponeer to Uncle Sam, quotes these figures:

Atomic fission device, 1 to 5 kilotons, each $500,000.

Atomic fusion device, with 5 per cent fissionable and 95 per cent fusionable fuel, 1 to 5 megatons, each $1,000,000. A megaton equals one million tons of TNT.

Ditto, in large quantities, each $850,000.

Atomic fusion device, 10 megatons, each $1,100,000.

These make just as much bang as military bombs of corresponding size and their insides are secret. The AEC refers to them as black boxes and they are not to be opened. This is the only classified aspect of the entire Project Plowshare.

With so much to go on, the AEC and the University of California's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory called the experts together in mid-May. The experts put their findings and proposals before several hundred representatives of business and industry.

Most of the project proposals came from experimenters at the university's radiation laboratories at Livermore and Berkeley and its Los Alamos scientific laboratory.

They included representatives of the Sandia group, which operates at Livermore and Albuquerque, as well as a sprinkling of scientists from government agencies and industrial firms.

Anxious For Hart's Act Two

ACT ONE. An autobiography by Moss Hart. Random House. $5.00.

"Let the unwary reader beware at the very outset—these annals are not for those unsentimental about the theater or untouched by its idiocies as well as its glories."

And how wrong Moss Hart is at the very outset.

For this book, tender, moving, dramatic in a way that few autobiographies ever achieve, is not the usual name dropping collection of Broadway anecdotes and chit-chat.

It is a book for anyone who has ever lived in poverty and dreamed of escape, for anyone who has ever suffered the adolescent dilemma of loving and being ashamed of his family at the same time, for anyone who has known loneliness, defeat, frustration, lingering sorrow and all the other gnawing emotions that move like a cloud across the memory in our sunniest hours.

Theatrical sentimentality has nothing to do with it.

The author is writing about Moss Hart, the stage struck little boy who yearned to rise out of the fur storage vault and become somebody, not about Moss Hart the successful playwright and director, although the two are virtually inseparable.

But Hart, with the dramatist's talent for stripping characters to the bone, does separate them, and that is the essential genius of this very remarkable autobiography. What emerges is not just another celebrity wandering boastfully down the fact-blurred roads of memory, but a living, breathing, toiling human being about whom we, as readers, care very much from the opening sentence.

Without sacrifice of modesty or resort to mawkishness, Hart has accomplished that most difficult of all autobiographical feats. He has produced a sympathetic title character.

Capital letters and punctuation can hardly contain his characters — real people, all —within a sentence. They leap from page with incredible vivacity and move through real life scenes that only a dramatist of Hart's stature could mount.

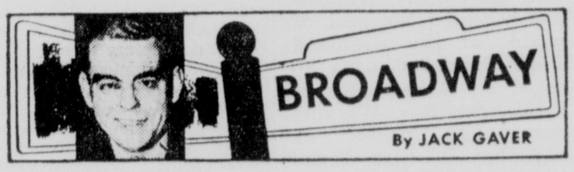
There is his cigar-manufacturer grandfather, "an Everest of Victorian tyranny," who might have led the American Federation of Labor had he not had a falling out with his best friend, Samuel Gompers, over who should carry the brief case into a union meeting. Instead he led the family haughtily into bottomless poverty.

There is regal, foolish Aunt Kate, who in Hart's own description anticipated Tennessee Williams' Blanche Du Bois with her "touching combination of the sane and ludicrous, along with some secret splendor within herself that awakened long - forgotten memories." While the family was all but starving, Aunt Kate could parade out of her room in antiquated finery and head to the Alhambra Theater and no one thought the worse of her extravagance. It was she who introduced Moss Hart to the theater when he was 7, and it was she, more than anyone else, who fed his dreams.

Finally and prominently, there is shy, caustic George Kaufman, assiduously picking the lint off his rug, munching on watercress and cucumber sandwiches, seldom getting more conversational than the muttered "er...er" which began the day's work for these two famous collaborators.

Hart's autobiography is more than just a collection of people. Ever the dramatist, he builds scene after scene, each with its own climax, its own point, its own revelations. We see (rather than read about) Moss Hart on a street corner retelling Theodore Dreiser's "Sister Carrie" to an enthralled neighborhood gang. We see him as a social director "making fun" in the dining room of a Borsht belt hotel. We see him at Aunt Kate's grave in Cypress Hills Cemetery after his first play flopped. And we see him finally in a taxi cab, moving his family away from Brooklyn forever, after the opening of "Once in a Lifetime," his first big hit in collaboration with Kaufman.

The book ends there, but apparently the Moss Hart story does not. The ending of "Act One" is slugged "intermission." We can hardly wait for the curtain to rise on Act Two.



NEW YORK (UPI) — What is it like to resume being a Broadway star after 22 years away from acting?

"Well," commented Kenneth MacKenna wryly, "let's put it this way. You can see that we're rehearsing here in the Longacre Theater for 'The Highest Tree' in the actual set for the play. Which is most unusual, by the way; rehearsing in the actual set, I mean.

"And you can see that it is a two - level set representing the first and second floors of a house. That stairway over there at stage left has 22 steps. I counted them.

"Now. When I left the stage and acting, I was 28 years old. Twenty - two steps would have been a breeze. Here I am now at the age of 60, and 22 steps are, believe me, 22 steps. Especially during these rehearsals. I go up those steps I don't know how many times a day.

"Fortunately, when the rehearsals are over and the play opens, I'll have to negotiate those steps only six times a performance, eight performances a week. By that time I think I may be in good enough shape to do that without giving the stairs a second thought even if the play is a long - run affair. Which, of course, is devoutly to be hoped.

"And it just occurred to me —22 steps. That's one for each year I haven't been acting, isn't it? A sort of penace would you say?"

But, seriously, what is it like to come back after so long an absence? MacKenna looks lean and hard, and the steps can't be the major factor.

"Well, my case is a peculiar one," said MacKenna, who was one of Broadway's outstanding leading men in the 1920's and the first half of the '30's. "As you know, I quit acting to become story editor for MGM in Hollywood. Except for time out for service in World War II, I was there from 1937 until the middle of this year.

"During that time I naturally developed an entirely different attitude toward material than I had had as an actor. I became completely objective about everything. Plays, books and other writings that I had to pass on did not constitute material that I had to act in, direct or produce, as had been the case on Broadway.

"Now that I'm back acting, although I know the theater has undergone economic and other changes, I don't find that the actor's position is much different. I don't have to adjust to new conditions; I simply have to readjust to the subjective position of the actor."

The star of Dore Schary's new play, in which he portrays a noted physicist with many problems, added that his return to the stage had presented one unforseen difficulty.

"As story editor at MGM," MacKenna explained, "I read everything of any potential importance written, especially plays and books, long before they were available to the public. I read most books in the galley proof — or manuscript — stage.

"During a recent delay of several hours on an airplane journey, I went into a bookstore to buy something to read to help pass the time. All of the latest publications were there, but I read every one of them months before. I guess I'll have to quit reading for about six months to give the publishers a chance to get ahead of me."

REV. HARBUCK

Methodists Set Training For Teachers

"The Meaning of Methodism" is the title of a course to be taught by Rev. George Harbuck, district superintendent, in a Christian workers training school, which begins Monday, at the First Methodist Church in Monroe.

The training school, which will continue through September 30th, will convene at 7:00 p.m. daily, and offers courses for teachers and workers in the nursery, junior, and youth departments.

Young adult work in the church will be the course taught by Mrs. Don Wineinger. This is designed for officers, directors, teachers, and members of young adult classes.

"The Use of the Bible with Youth" is the course to be taught by Rev. Walter L. "Wally" Baker. This class is for teachers, counsellors, and parents of youth.

This Christian workers' training school, is open to Christian workers of all Twin City Methodist Churches, and others who are interested in the courses offered. Registration will be at First Methodist Church Educational building, at 7:00 p.m. tomorrow.

Officers of the school are: Rev. Don Wineinger, acting dean; Miss Teenie V. Severtson, chairman of the board of directors; Miss Norma Garlington, secretary-treasurer; F. Harold Riggs, publicity chairman.

Means Shown On Refusing Strong Drink

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

Methodist temperance work has taken on a new look.

"The accent has shifted from the negative to the positive," says Dr. Caradine R. Hooton, general secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance. "The emphasis has gone from legislation to education."

"We recognize that there is a right to drink," he says. "But there also is a right not to drink. We try to set up protections for that right and encourage people to use it.

"We're not waving the prohibition flag anymore. We're just calling attention to the facts and letting them speak for themselves to intelligent people."

The new look is readily apparent in the Methodist Board's plan to conduct a massive, year-long study of the facts of alcoholism to determine the church's attitude and responsibility toward it.

It shows also in the fact that the old "hellfire and brimstone" preaching against alcohol has been replaced by more modern and, it may be said, more pragmatic methods of communication.

One of the Board's most widely shown motion pictures deals with the apparently simple problems. How to refuse a drink gracefully. But the problem is not really simple, says Dr. Hooton.

"Tremendous pressures are being put on people to drink," he says.

Currently, the Board is supporting congressional legislation that would ban the sale of liquor on airplanes and forbid liquor advertising in interstate commerce.

But, if someone proposed a bill to bring back prohibition as it was known during the 1920s, Dr. Hooton doubts whether the Board would support it.

"We would rather see the liquor industry under strict government control," he says. "We'd like to see the profit taken out of it. A business which preys on human weakness is not to be exploited."

However, Dr. Hooton feels quite sure prohibition eventually will return.

"The trend definitely is away from the use of alcohol," he says. "This represents a rapidly changing mood of society.

"As more and more people are educated to the evils of alcohol, the climate of public opinion will be favorable to prohibition.

"Education must always come before legislation. That's why the 18th Amendment failed. We legislated before we educated."

Teacher Clinic For Baptists Slated Here

"Teaching them . . . all things" will be the theme of a teaching improvement clinic beginning tomorrow and continuing through Thursday.

This joint effort of the churches of the Ouachita Parish Baptist Association will be held at the College Place Baptist Church with conferences beginning at 9:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. daily.

Leadership from churches over this area who attend the teaching clinic will have a choice of fifteen different conferences to attend. Effective teaching in the Sunday school will be emphasized in each conference. Provisions will be made for children during all conferences.

Conference leaders for the clinic will come from a four state area. Among the out-of-state conference leaders will be Dr. E. C. Williams, secretary emeritus of Mississippi Baptist Sunday schools. Dr. Williams will come from Jackson, Mississippi to discuss the "Sunday School Ministry to Adults" at the 7:00 p.m. conference. Dr. Williams will also lead a conference for all Sunday School workers at the 9:00 a.m. session on the subject of "Teaching to Win and Develop." Mrs. E. C. Williams will accompany her husband to Monroe to lead conferences in cradle roll work. Mrs. Fred Essex of Texarkana, Texas, will discuss "Better Bible Teaching for Juniors." Mrs. Edgar Williamson of Little Rock, Arkansas, will lead conferences in "Teaching the Beginner Child." Mrs. J. E. Morrow, Jr., of Jackson, Mississippi will work with nursery leadership.

Christian workers of this area are invited to attend this teaching improvement clinic to improve Bible teaching in our churches. Conferences will be held twice daily at the College Place Baptist Church, 301 Sherrouse Avenue, September 28-October 1.

The Rev. Earl Wiggins has accepted the post of pastor at the Highland Park Baptist Church located on Roberts Street in Monroe. Rev. Wiggins served as pastor of churches in east Texas before moving here with his wife and son.

Discs Spread Religion To Remote Areas

By RAY SHAW

NEW YORK (AP)—Recordings played on tiny, toy-like phonographs are the newest method of spreading the Gospel to high illiteracy areas of the world.

For $1.50 a Congo tribesman, a Nigerian or an Indian in Mexico speaking a Mayan dialect can buy the phonograph—and six records telling in his own tongue the life of Jesus.

The American Bible Society, which in its 143-year history has distributed millions of Bibles, believes the program is an answer to need for some means to project Christianity to nonreaders.

In the last year the program has reached 12 foreign countries and several Indian tribes in this country. About 10,000 recordings have been distributed, most of them to native preachers. The Bible society hopes to have 100 dialects on record in three years.

The finger fono, made of pastic, costs less than $1 to manufacture and weighs under a pound. It has no speaker system—a metal diaphragm crudely amplifies the sound. A record is spun by hand with a small crank-like gadget atop the turntable.

"The phonograph is as simple as it can be," says Richard Crane, field recorder for the project. "A breakfast cereal even was offering something similar as a premium not long ago."

In a year Crane has traveled 40,000 miles by air and hundreds more on foot, horseback and in jungle jitneys to record the dialect.

He was downed by malaria, had a nervous encounter with a hostile tribesman in Africa, came within inches of tumbling over a 1,000-foot cliff in Mexico.

Next month he'll pack his 80 pounds of battery-powered recording equipment and be off for the Philippines. Later he hopes to go to Thailand and Burma, and next year South America.

In the field he works with Protestant missionaries and native readers. He sets up his recording equipment in the quietest spots he can find in the jungle or village.

Rev. William R. Blair has arrived here to accept the pastorate of the Central Assembly of God Church located at the corner of Calypso and Hall Streets in Monroe. Rev. Hall and his family were with the Jennings Assembly of God Church before coming to Monroe.

Churches Cite Parable Of Lost Sheep

Religion In America
By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

In one of His parables, Jesus told about a good shepherd who left 99 sheep safe in the fold while he went forth to search for one little lamb that was lost in the dark.

Some of America's churches are discovering that this parable has a direct and poignant application to a problem that now confronts them.

The problem is to provide suitable religious training for the relatively small minority of children —about 3 out of every 100 in the average community — who are mentally retarded.

Ministering to the mentally retarded is not an easy task for any church to undertake. It requires a great deal of time, effort and planning. These considerations are bound to loom large in the minds of overworked religious educators who are already hard put to line up enough teachers and classroom space for ever-growing enrollments of non-handicapped youngsters.

That's where the parable of the lost sheep comes into the picture. In the community who is left out of the Christian education program, through no fault of his own, can the church honestly claim to be doing its job?

CONDUCT SURVEY

The question was brought sharply to the attention of church leaders by a survey conducted two years ago by the National Assn. For Retarded Children. It asked 175 local chapters in all parts of the country to ascertain what religious training facilities were available in their communities for mentally handicapped children.

Three-fourths of the chapters replied that no facilities existed. The survey turned up only 900 children actually were enrolled in special classes — 500 in Protestant churches and 400 in Catholic churches.

In the wake of this report, the National Council of Churches called a meeting of Christian education officials of 30 major Protestant and Orthodox denominations. They agreed to undertake a nationwide campaign "to arouse the churches to their responsibility" for providing an effective ministry for the mentally handicapped.

Progress in this campaign has been slow to date. But it may now begin to accelerate. The national council has prepared, and is distributing to local churches and church councils, an excellent little booklet entitled "the mentally retarded and the church."

OUTLINES PROBLEM

It outlines both the magnitude of the problem, and practical ways in which churches can tackle it.

The booklet says that five out of six mentally retarded children are educable." They have IQ's "between 50 and 75 (compared to an average range of 90 to 110 for normal persons.)

"Retarded children resemble normal children more than they differ from them. They have the same basic needs for love, understanding and acceptance. Given affectionate care and opportunities to learn under skilled teachers, they often achieve far more than anyone believes possible."

For churches that undertake this difficult and long-neglected ministry, there is a special kind of reward. It is summed up in a few words from a report by one of the leaders of the Philadelphia school:

"The children have responded far beyond our expectations. . ."

Covenant Church Employs Director Of Church School

The Session of the Covenant Presbyterian Church has called Miss Nyleen Barnett as director of Christian Education, Rev. Wayne Gray, pastor, announced today.

Miss Barnett is at present serving in a position at the Chelsea Ave. Presbyterian Church in Memphis, Tenn. She is expected to assume her duties with the Monroe church in mid-October. Rev. Gray pointed out the directorship includes work with the Sunday School and youth groups within the church.

Dr. Courtenay To Speak At Local Church

Dr. Walter R. Courtenay, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Nashville, Tenn., will deliver a series of sermons during a spiritual emphasis week at the First Presbyterian Church here, it has been announced.

Dr. Courtenay will address the men of the church at 7 a.m. at breakfast, Monday through Thursday of this week, and the women of the church at 10 a.m. on those same days.

Today at the 11 a.m. service, the guest speaker will use as his topic, "When Is Christianity Relevant?" The Sunday evening service will open a series of five sermons on the nature of God, sin, love, Christ and the resurrection. All evening services were scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Wave H. McFadden, pastor of the church, said the services were open to the public.

REV. HARBUCK

Methodists Set Training For Teachers

"The Meaning of Methodism" is the title of a course to be taught by Rev. George Harbuck, district superintendent, in a Christian workers training school, which begins Monday, at the First Methodist Church in Monroe.

The training school, which will continue through September 30th, will convene at 7:00 p.m. daily, and offers courses for teachers and workers in the nursery, junior, and youth departments.

Young adult work in the church will be the course taught by Mrs. Don Wineinger. This is designed for officers, directors, teachers, and members of young adult classes.

"The Use of the Bible with Youth" is the course to be taught by Rev. Walter L. "Wally" Baker. This class is for teachers, counsellors, and parents of youth.

This Christian workers' training school, is open to Christian workers of all Twin City Methodist Churches, and others who are interested in the courses offered. Registration will be at First Methodist Church Educational building, at 7:00 p.m. tomorrow.

Officers of the school are: Rev. Don Wineinger, acting dean; Miss Teenie V. Severtson, chairman of the board of directors; Miss Norma Garlington, secretary-treasurer; F. Harold Riggs, publicity chairman.

Means Shown On Refusing Strong Drink

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

Methodist temperance work has taken on a new look.

"The accent has shifted from the negative to the positive," says Dr. Caradine R. Hooton, general secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance. "The emphasis has gone from legislation to education."

"We recognize that there is a right to drink," he says. "But there also is a right not to drink. We try to set up protections for that right and encourage people to use it.

"We're not waving the prohibition flag anymore. We're just calling attention to the facts and letting them speak for themselves to intelligent people."

The new look is readily apparent in the Methodist Board's plan to conduct a massive, year-long study of the facts of alcoholism to determine the church's attitude and responsibility toward it.

It shows also in the fact that the old "hellfire and brimstone" preaching against alcohol has been replaced by more modern and, it may be said, more pragmatic methods of communication.

One of the Board's most widely shown motion pictures deals with the apparently simple problems. How to refuse a drink gracefully. But the problem is not really simple, says Dr. Hooton.

"Tremendous pressures are being put on people to drink," he says.

Currently, the Board is supporting congressional legislation that would ban the sale of liquor on airplanes and forbid liquor advertising in interstate commerce.

But, if someone proposed a bill to bring back prohibition as it was known during the 1920s, Dr. Hooton doubts whether the Board would support it.

"We would rather see the liquor industry under strict government control," he says. "We'd like to see the profit taken out of it. A business which preys on human weakness is not to be exploited."

However, Dr. Hooton feels quite sure prohibition eventually will return.

"The trend definitely is away from the use of alcohol," he says. "This represents a rapidly changing mood of society.

"As more and more people are educated to the evils of alcohol, the climate of public opinion will be favorable to prohibition.

"Education must always come before legislation. That's why the 18th Amendment failed. We legislated before we educated."

OTTAWA, Canada (AP)—"This entrance rserved for professors only," reads a sign place by freshmen over a big hole left by an absent-minded faculty member who walked through a glass panel in Carleton University's new science building. It was the second recent accidental crash through a glass panel there. Repairs have come to $265 but there have been no casualties.

Teacher Clinic For Baptists Slated Here

"Teaching them . . . all things" will be the theme of a teaching improvement clinic beginning tomorrow and continuing through Thursday.

This joint effort of the churches of the Ouachita Parish Baptist Association will be held at the College Place Baptist Church with conferences beginning at 9:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. daily.

Leadership from churches over this area who attend the teaching clinic will have a choice of fifteen different conferences to attend. Effective teaching in the Sunday school will be emphasized in each conference. Provisions will be made for children during all conferences.

Conference leaders for the clinic will come from a four state area. Among the out-of-state conference leaders will be Dr. E. C. Williams, secretary emeritus of Mississippi Baptist Sunday schools. Dr. Williams will come from Jackson, Mississippi to discuss the "Sunday School Ministry to Adults" at the 7:00 p.m. conference. Dr. Williams will also lead a conference for all Sunday School workers at the 9:00 a.m. session on the subject of "Teaching to Win and Develop." Mrs. E. C. Williams will accompany her husband to Monroe to lead conferences in cradle roll work. Mrs. Fred Essex of Texarkana, Texas, will discuss "Better Bible Teaching for Juniors." Mrs. Edgar Williamson of Little Rock, Arkansas, will lead conferences in "Teaching the Beginner Child." Mrs. J. E. Morrow, Jr., of Jackson, Mississippi will work with nursery leadership.

Christian workers of this area are invited to attend this teaching improvement clinic to improve Bible teaching in our churches. Conferences will be held twice daily at the College Place Baptist Church, 301 Sherrouse Avenue, September 28-October 1.

The Rev. Earl Wiggins has accepted the post of pastor at the Highland Park Baptist Church located on Roberts Street in Monroe. Rev. Wiggins served as pastor of churches in east Texas before moving here with his wife and son.

Discs Spread Religion To Remote Areas

By RAY SHAW

NEW YORK (AP)—Recordings played on tiny, toy-like phonographs are the newest method of spreading the Gospel to high illiteracy areas of the world.

For $1.50 a Congo tribesman, a Nigerian or an Indian in Mexico speaking a Mayan dialect can buy the phonograph—and six records telling in his own tongue the life of Jesus.

The American Bible Society, which in its 143-year history has distributed millions of Bibles, believes the program is an answer to need for some means to project Christianity to nonreaders.

In the last year the program has reached 12 foreign countries and several Indian tribes in this country. About 10,000 recordings have been distributed, most of them to native preachers. The Bible society hopes to have 100 dialects on record in three years.

The finger fono, made of pastic, costs less than $1 to manufacture and weighs under a pound. It has no speaker system—a metal diaphragm crudely amplifies the sound. A record is spun by hand with a small crank-like gadget atop the turntable.

"The phonograph is as simple as it can be," says Richard Crane, field recorder for the project. "A breakfast cereal even was offering something similar as a premium not long ago."

In a year Crane has traveled 40,000 miles by air and hundreds more on foot, horseback and in jungle jitneys to record the dialect.

He was downed by malaria, had a nervous encounter with a hostile tribesman in Africa, came within inches of tumbling over a 1,000-foot cliff in Mexico.

Next month he'll pack his 80 pounds of battery-powered recording equipment and be off for the Philippines. Later he hopes to go to Thailand and Burma, and next year South America.

In the field he works with Protestant missionaries and native readers. He sets up his recording equipment in the quietest spots he can find in the jungle or village.

Rev. William R. Blair has arrived here to accept the pastorate of the Central Assembly of God Church located at the corner of Calypso and Hall Streets in Monroe. Rev. Hall and his family were with the Jennings Assembly of God Church before coming to Monroe.

Churches Cite Parable Of Lost Sheep

Religion In America
By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

In one of His parables, Jesus told about a good shepherd who left 99 sheep safe in the fold while he went forth to search for one little lamb that was lost in the dark.

Some of America's churches are discovering that this parable has a direct and poignant application to a problem that now confronts them.

The problem is to provide suitable religious training for the relatively small minority of children —about 3 out of every 100 in the average community — who are mentally retarded.

Ministering to the mentally retarded is not an easy task for any church to undertake. It requires a great deal of time, effort and planning. These considerations are bound to loom large in the minds of overworked religious educators who are already hard put to line up enough teachers and classroom space for ever-growing enrollments of non-handicapped youngsters.

That's where the parable of the lost sheep comes into the picture. in the community who is left out of the Christian education program, through no fault of his own, can the church honestly claim to be doing its job?

CONDUCT SURVEY

The question was brought sharply to the attention of church leaders by a survey conducted two years ago by the National Assn. For Retarded Children. It asked 175 local chapters in all parts of the country to ascertain what religious training facilities were available in their communities for mentally handicapped children.

Three-fourths of the chapters replied that no facilities existed. The survey turned up only 900 children actually were enrolled in special classes — 500 in Protestant churches and 400 in Catholic churches.

In the wake of this report, the National Council of Churches called a meeting of Christian education officials of 30 major Protestant and Orthodox denominations. They agreed to undertake a nationwide campaign "to arouse the churches to their responsibility" for providing an effective ministry for the mentally handicapped.

Progress in this campaign has been slow to date. But it may now begin to accelerate. The national council has prepared, and is distributing to local churches and church councils, an excellent little booklet entitled "the mentally retarded and the church."

OUTLINES PROBLEM

It outlines both the magnitude of the problem, and practical ways in which churches can tackle it.

The booklet says that five out of six mentally retarded children are educable." They have IQ's "between 50 and 75 (compared to an average range of 90 to 110 for normal persons.)

"Retarded children resemble normal children more than they differ from them. They have the same basic needs for love, understanding and acceptance. Given affectionate care and opportunities to learn under skilled teachers, they often achieve far more than anyone believes possible."

For churches that undertake this difficult and long-neglected ministry, there is a special kind of reward. It is summed up in a few words from a report by one of the leaders of the Philadelphia school:

"The children have responded far beyond our expectations. . ."

Covenant Church Employs Director Of Church School

The Session of the Covenant Presbyterian Church has called Miss Nyleen Barnett as director of Christian Education, Rev. Wayne Gray, pastor, announced today.

Miss Barnett is at present serving in a position at the Chelsea Ave. Presbyterian Church in Memphis, Tenn. She is expected to assume her duties with the Monroe church in mid-October. Rev. Gray pointed out the directorship includes work with the Sunday School and youth groups within the church.

Dr. Courtenay To Speak At Local Church

Dr. Walter R. Courtenay, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Nashville, Tenn., will deliver a series of sermons during a spiritual emphasis week at the First Presbyterian Church here, it has been announced.

Dr. Courtenay will address the men of the church at 7 a.m. at breakfast, Monday through Thursday of this week, and the women of the church at 10 a.m. on those same days.

Today at the 11 a.m. service, the guest speaker will use as his topic, "When Is Christianity Relevant?" The Sunday evening service will open a series of five sermons on the nature of God, sin, love, Christ and the resurrection. All evening services were scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Wave H. McFadden, pastor of the church, said the services were open to the public.

Eye Trouble Is Really Helpful

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Shirley MacLaine discloses how she got the sloe-eyed look as the Hindu princess in Mike Todd's "Around the world in 80 Days."

"I know some people thought my eyes looked real sexy," says Shirley, "but actually I couldn't keep them open. There's something about my eyes — contracting pupil, I guess — that make them close when I have to work in big screen, color films where they use a lot of lights.

To counteract the condition on her current picture, she takes large daily dosages of vitamin A.

NEW YORK (AP) — Lorraine Hansberry's drama, "A Raisin In the Sun," has already earned a clear profit of $350,000 since it opened on Broadway last March 11.

How to Ride a Hobby Hard

Surprisingly enough, we are sufficiently broad-minded to realize that there are people in this world who have hobbies other than photography.

All well and good—but we maintain this. Whether you favor woodworking, miniature railroading, hunting, fishing or what have you—a camera will help you get an extra measure of fun out of what you do for relaxation.

Here's what we mean. Say you tackle the job of refinishing some battered old furniture.

Your patient work and skill transforms the wrecks into shiny pieces. Now, wouldn't "before" and "after" pictures of your handiwork look good tacked up over your workbench?

Or maybe you go for H. O. railroading. You painstakingly create a realistic landscape for your trains to travel through. So why not take some pictures that will fool plenty of people into thinking they are looking at a real train highballing down the tracks.

And naturally if you are a fisherman you want a picture as proof positive that you really caught a whopper up at the lake.

At this distance it's hard for us to judge what camera best suits your hobby. So why not drop in and let's talk the whole thing over.

South African Star Vows No Man Shortage

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Juliet Prowse, a long-stemmed beauty from South Africa, says there must be a man shortage in America else bobby-soxers wouldn't scream at Elvis, Ricky et al.

Juliet is making her movie debut in "Can-Can" opposite Frank Sinatra who made a few bobby-soxers squeal in his time.

"When I was a teen-ager in Johannesburg," says the red-haired dancer, "none of us ever gave out with the slightest sound at any singer. It just isn't done there."

South Africa has no man shortage, she avers. Since leaving there, she has danced all over Europe.

"England has a man shortage — and they squeal at their singers there. The same in West Germany. I heard little, if any, squealing in Paris, Rome or Madrid where men are plentiful."

Before she came here to co-star with Sinatra and Shirley MacLaine, she was a Sinatra record collector.

"I listened to them quietly and with enjoyment," she says. "Never with a squeal—or even a sigh."

Juliet, 23, is the movies' newest Cinderella girl—and she owes it all to a Christmas card. Hermes Pan, dance director of "Can Can," was in Rome last year and saw Juliet dance in a show.

He later told a reporter he considered her one of the world's best feminine dancers.

"Hermes told me to keep in touch with him," recalls Juliet. So when Christmas came and her work took her to Madrid, she dropped him a greeting with her new address.

Barrie Chase, Fred Astaire's dancing partner, originally was slated for the part Juliet now has. When Barrie withdrew from the cast, Hermes touted Juliet to producer Jack Cummings.

She was brought over for a screen test, got the part and a contract with 20th Century-Fox.

Cummings says she is one of the most exciting new talents to hit Hollywood since Miss MacLaine herself.

SUMMER THEATER GRADS

NEW YORK (AP) — Summer-camp theaters have graduated many of the current top-flight producers, directors and playwrights who are now prospering on Broadway and in Hollywood.

Among them are Moss Hart, Garson Kanin, Arthur Kober, Phil Silvers, Dore Schary and Danny Kaye. All of these were first office boys, stage hands and general workmen around summer theater stages before their talents hoisted them onto "big time" theater and film production.

LITTLE THEATRE

Director Ivan Utal has released the names of the cast for the first play of the season, "Janus". This fast-moving and sparkling comedy has a cast of five people, two women and three men. Jo Brian will play the lead, supported by Margaret Fryant. The three men in the cast are Dr. Ed Brown, V.P. Dalyrimple and W. J. (Bill) Haddad. Two of the Crew members for this production are Betty Bandy and Curtis Rape. Vistiors at rehearsal one night last week were Jane and Jim Phelps, who first met on the stage of "Stalag 17" a Little Theater production of several seasons past. Director Ivan Uttall is already trying to locate the properties he needs for this production. Three items he wants are: A Victorian Chaise lounge sofa (He says this is larger than a regular chaise lounge); a hassock and a small cane or bamboo desk. If you have one of these items, please get in touch with him.

Plans are progressing rapidly for the new playhouse, but the latest word from the building committee is that construction cannot begin before November. Many people have asked whether the plays this year will be done "In the round" or on the stage, proscenium style. They will be done on the stage this year and "Not in the round". It has been definitely decided that the last play of the season, the musical will be "Guys and Dolls". Plans now call for the new playhouse to be ready for this production.

Louis Guerriero, a former director of Monroe Little Theatre is in Monroe this week, visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Guerriero. Louis is an actor on the New York Stage and for Television and was seen by many local people last year when he appeared on the Armstrong Circle Theater. Another former Little Theatre actress who is also a professional in New York, Polly Cole is now in Monroe for a visit with her family. Welcome home Louis and Polly.

Last week we reported that Norman Jones of "Pajama game" cast was attending Baylor. However, he has changed to Centenary where he is studying under Mr. Gifford, director of the Marjorie Lyons Playhouse. This should be a wonderful opportunity.

Little Theatre members travelled extensively this summer and brought back interesting reports in regard to the theater. Betty Biederharn reports that in Anchorage, Alaska she found a thriving and active Little Theatre. Bob and Judy Evans, who spent the summer at Carmel on the Monterey Pennisula saw a number of summer stock productions. They especially liked "Oh Kay", "Guys and Dolls" and "The Seven Year Itch". Genevra Washburn saw a number of plays in New York and still likes "My Fair Lady" better than the newer ones. Your reporter especially liked "Flower Drum song". The book at the record of this play can be borrowed from the Ouachita Parish Public Library.

Have you purchased your membership for this year? The drive is now on and if you do not have your ticket, you may get it from any Little Theatre Board Member or by calling Myrtle Carter at FA 3-8509 or Jean Hamilton at FA 2-9812. Tickets may also be purchased at Joanne's House of Sound on North 18th Street. The Little Theatre is an important part of the cultural life of the community and needs the support of every one of you. Watch for this column next week for more announcements in regard to "Janus".

Little Theatre members travelled extensively this summer and brought back interesting reports in regard to the theater. Betty Biederharn reports that in Anchorage, Alaska she found a thriving and active Little Theatre. Bob and Judy Evans, who spent the summer at Carmel on the Monterey Pennisula saw a number of summer stock productions. They especially liked "Oh Kay", "Guys and Dolls" and "The Seven Year Itch". Genevra Washburn saw a number of plays in New York and still likes "My Fair Lady" better than the newer ones. Your reporter especially liked "Flower Drum song". The book at the record of this play can be borrowed from the Ouachita Parish Public Library.

Have you purchased your membership for this year? The drive is now on and if you do not have your ticket, you may get it from any Little Theatre Board Member or by calling Myrtle Carter at FA 3-8509 or Jean Hamilton at FA 2-9812. Tickets may also be purchased at Joanne's House of Sound on North 18th Street. The Little Theatre is an important part of the cultural life of the community and needs the support of every one of you. Watch for this column next week for more announcements in regard to "Janus".

LSU Weathers Day Of Upsets To Beat TCU, 10-0
Delta State Masters Northeast In Home Opener

Frogs Repulsed On Tigers' One

By BOB ANDERSON

BATON ROUGE, La. — In a day of upsets, LSU escaped with only a mild scare, scoring twice in the second quarter, halting TCU on the one-yard line in the fourth period, and taking a 10-0 victory over the Southwest Conference champions before 67,000 in Tiger Stadium Saturday night.

TCU won the toss and elected to receive. Rabb took it on the 29 and fumbled at the LSU 37 with Jack Spikes recovering.

Marvin Lasater and Spikes picked up five yards and Larry Dawson passed to Bubba Meyer for seven and a first down in the LSU 26.

With Lasater gaining three, Harris one and another Dawson-to-Meyer pass going to 16, the Horned Frogs were mounting a quick threat.

However, Harris and Lasater could only gain four in two tries and Dawson's pass to Gilmore was incomplete.

With fourth and six at 12, Dawson tried to pass once more but was rushed badly, finally being pulled down by Micky Mangham back on the 31, a 19 - yard loss.

TCU unveiled its spread formation midway of the first period with its No. 3 unit in. It was rather unsuccessful and the two clubs were still 0-0 at the end of the tood over after a TCU punt on period.

Late in the first period, LSU the 50 and the Go team went in. With Harris and Gros racking up good gains, they moved to the 17 before the period ended.

As the second period opened, TCU hurried its starters back into the game but Gros and Purvis moved the ball to the 13. Matherne gained nothing around end and the White Team trotted in but Harris stayed in.

With fourth and six on the 13, Harris booted the ball from the 29 through the goal posts for the first points of the game and LSU led, 3-0.

Midway of the second period, LSU took over after a punt on its 28. With the Bandits moving offensively, they carried the ball to the TCU 45 in six plays, a 23-yard jaunt by Tommy Neck the big gainer.

At the 45, the White Team came on and scored on their first play. Rabb dropping back and hitting Robinson up the middle at the 12. He went in without a hand being laid on him.

Harris kicked the PAT and it was 10-0 at the half.

LSU had a big edge in first half statistics, getting eight first downs to TCU's four and racking up 105 yards rushing to 20. The Tigers completed only two of six passes but made them go for 50 yards while the Frogs threw nine times, completed three for 18 yards.

The nation's no. 1 team, outplayed in the first stanza, scored early in the second quarter when, after a Go Team drive, Wendel Harris kicked a 29-yard field goal for a 3-0 lead.

Later in the second, after the Chinese Bandits, performing ably on offense, had driven from the LSU 28 to the Horned Frogs' 45, White Team Quarterback Warren Rabb passed to Johnny Robinson on the 16 and the halfback, all alone, sprinted into the end zone.

Harris kicked the extra point to make it 10-0.

After LSU had halted two TCU drives in the fourth period, one on the one-yard line, All-America Billy Cannon, used sparingly all night, intercepted a Horned Frog pass on his 15 and sprinted it back 78 yards to the TCU 7.

After three plays, two of them passes, Frog quarterback Larry Dawson intercepted a Rabb pass in the end zone and ran out the clock.

Texas Christian's big Frogs, matching LSU in depth, used three teams and 39 players in trying to climax the day's series of upsets with the biggest one of all.

Coach Abe Martin unveiled a spread formation for the first time throwing three ends into the game, one of them in the backfield. Used by the Frog third team with one back deep and three spread to the right, the formation was rather unsuccessful and the TCU second team did most of the damage, mounting the Frog's last half threats.

The victory was LSU'S 14th in a row over three seasons and should keep them firmly in college football's first place.

Played in 79-degree temperature and 90 per cent humidity, the game was LSU'S second of the year. Paul Dietzel Tigers opened with a 6-3 win over Rice last week.

Ferriday's Max Fugler led LSU'S grudging defense along with excellent flankman Mickey Mangham.

TCU threatened in the first half and gave the Bengals a real scare in the fourth period. Starting a drive late in the third from the LSU 44, the TCU second until moved to the one-foot line in 12 plays.

Fullback Merlin Priddy was the top rusher in the drive and quarterback Donald George completed clutch passes to Harry Moreland, a wobbly throw that went for 23 yards to put the ball on the 19, and to Paul Peebles one play later after the fourth period had begun for 12 yards and a first down on the LSU six.

Priddy ground to the four and then smashed off guard against an eight-man line for one. With third and one, Priddy again ran up the middle to the one-foot line.

On fourth down and the crowd on its feet, George sent Priddy up the middle again and he met a brick wall, bouncing back to the one-yard line.

After LSU took over and punted on third down, the Frogs launched another threat, this time with the first team in.

Taking over on the LSU 44 again, TCU drove to the 31 from where Larry Dawson passed to the 15. Halfback Marvin Lasater and three Tigers were there and a Tiger, Scotty McClain, intercepted, falling forward to the 16.

Later on in the period, TCU began its fourth and final threatening drive, taking over after a punt on the TCU 22 and going to the LSU 29 with the second unit in.

At the 29, with first and 10, George passed and Cannon intercepted at the 15 and sprinting down the right sidelines before Larry Terrell finally drove him out of bounds at the seven.

Rabb missed on a pass to McClain, Cannon lost two at right tackle, Rabb threw again to McClain, and missed and then fired one into the end zone that Dawson picked off.

TCU, on the strength of its last half drives, had the edge in first downs for the game, 14 to 11. The Frogs threw 21 times and completed eight for 90 yards but LSU had the advantage in overall yards, 206 to 177.

Cannon, who did not carry the ball until 4:45 was gone in the second quarter, was LSU'S top ground gainer with 35 yards in nine carries for a 3.9 average. Harris picked up 27 yards on five carries.

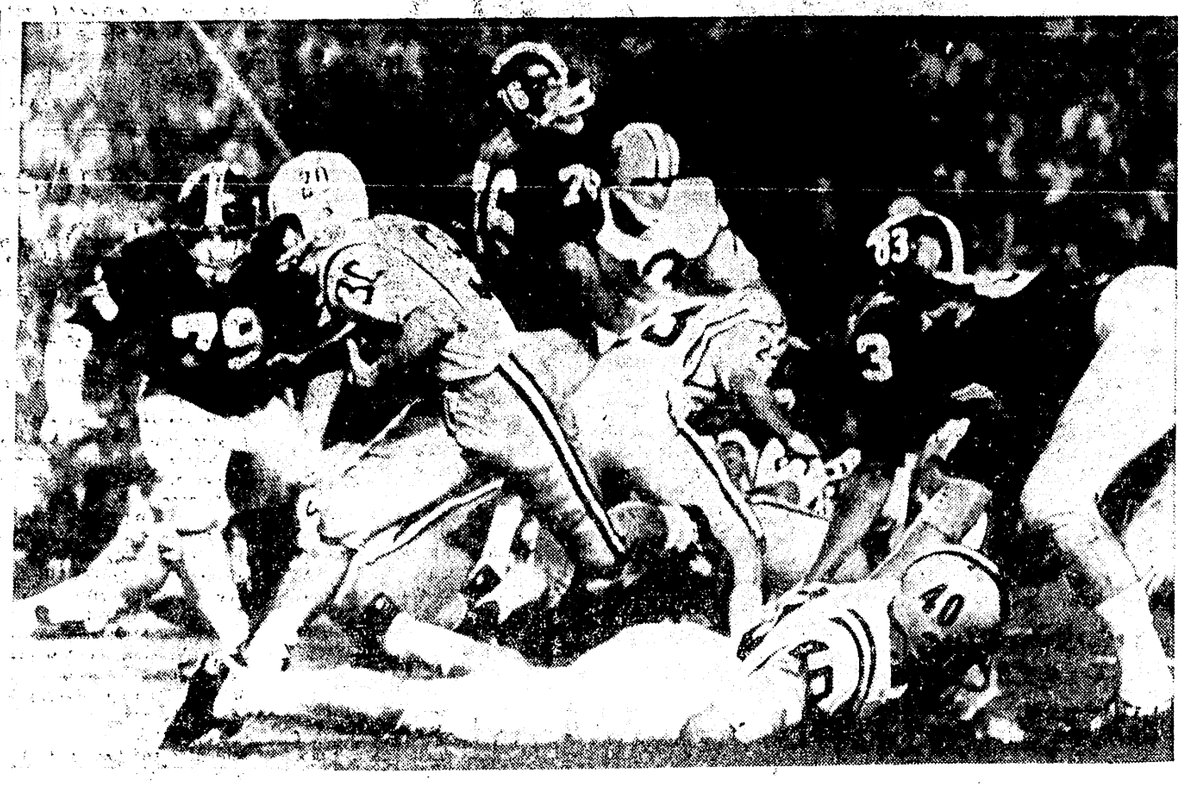
TCU'S All-American candidate, fullback Jack Spikes, was the Frogs' top gainer with 38 yards in 10 tries. Priddy got 33 in 14 rushes.

Dawson threw 10 times, completed four and George passed eight times, completing four.

Coach Dietzel said after shaking the hand of each of his football players and congratulating them on their brilliant victory:

"TCU played real fine football, brilliant football and we are glad to have won over such a fine squad. The fine goal line stand which the Tigers put up was comparable to the one against Ole Miss and made it possible for us to maintain our record of not yielding at the goal line.

"I felt that TCU was getting stronger all the time and am just thankful for that tremendous goal line stand the boys put up. I think they played well throughout, as did the boys from TCU."



Louisiana On The Move

Halfback Wendell Harris (30) gains four yards for Louisiana State University on an end run on first quarter against Texas Christian at Baton Rouge last night. Coming in for tackle is TCU's David McSpedden (79). On ground is LSU fullback Earl Gros (40). Play stopped on TCU 38. LSU won game, 10-0. (AP Wirephoto)

Redskins Tumble By 14-13 Margin

By JIM CALHOUN
Staff Sports Writer

Northeast's usually conservative Indians pushed over a touchdown in the waning minutes of play here Saturday night, then unsuccessfully shot the works on an attempted two-point conversion as Delta State's Statesmen held on for a well-earned 14-13 victory.

Delta State, moving well on a second half passing offensive, took to lead 14-7 shortly after the final quarter began, but with quarterback Bob Randel at the helm, the Indians finally began to move. After a State drive ran out of steam midway in the final stanza, the Tribe began to click.

The clincher came on a 12-yard aerial from Randel to end Robert Earle in the end zone for a six-pointer which made it 14-13. The hosts gambled on a two-pointer to win but Randel's pass to Earle fell short.

Northeast scored the first time it got its hands on the ball in the first period but the Statemen came back for a second quarter score to know it up at 7-7 at intermission.

On the first play of the game from scrimmage State's James Hubbert fumbled and Curtis Cook dropped on the loose pigskin on the enemy 33.

Cook and Terry Reeves carried in three plays to the 11. A penalty set the Redskins back to the 25 and two plays later Cook connected with Reeves on a 12-yard toss to the 8. Jim Ladadio cracked down to the three in two tries and fullback Smokey Stover bulled the rest of the way for the opening score.

Ladadio split the uprights with the conversion to make it 7-0.

Delat started rolling late in the first period and halfback Gale Davis, a thorn in the Northeast defense with his quick opening bursts, climaxed an 80-yard march to tie the score.

Grinding out a few yards at a time, the Statesmen took 16 plays in the drive, but were aided by six penalties against the hosts. With a fourth and two situation of the Northeast ten, Davis was stopped by end Jerry Head short of a first down.

However, the Indians were charged with an infraction of the rules and awarded a first down on the five. Jim Trotter plunged to the one and Davis crashed on over with 9:08 left in the half. Quarterback Bob Brumfield converted to deadlock the game at intermission.

Kansas City Rips Tribe By 8-4 Count

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Kansas City Athletics bounced back with seven runs in the final two innings Saturday and walloped the Cleveland Indians 8-4.

Right-hander Ken Johnson got credit for the victory, his first in the major leagues, although he left the game in the eighth with the A's trailing 2-1.

Until then, the only Kansas City tally was Dick Williams' fourth-inning homer, his 16th.

Two singles off loser John Briggs and an error by rookie Gene Leek at second base brought home the tying run for Kansas City. Bob Cerv cracked a double, scoring Roger Maris and a sacrifice fly by Williams brought home the third run of the inning.

Jerry Lumpe greeted reliever Gary Bell with a double to open the ninth; Hal Smith walked and centerfielder Russ Snyder banged a two-run triple to right. Snyder came home on a single by Maris. Another single and a sacrifice fly by Cerv ended the Athletics scoring.

Steelers Put On Last Half Show To Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bobby Layne turned on a brilliant second half show with his passing, running and kicking as Pittsburgh's Steelers pulled out a 17-7 triumph over the Cleveland Browns Saturday night in a National Football League opener.

Layne figured in every scoring play. He hit Jimmy Orr and Pete Brewster with touchdown heaves, kicked a field goal and booted two conversions.

The Browns scored their lone touchdown in the second quarter after a 21-yard pass interception return by Ken Konz. Quarterback Milt Plum sneaked over from the 1 to climax a 53-yard march. Lou Groza converted.

The Steelers, listless in the first half although they got the better of the statistics, stormed back in the second half behind Layne.

The 32-year-old signal - caller kicked a 25-yard field goal to narrow the deficit to 7-3 in the third quarter and minutes later put the Steelers ahead to stay with a 20-yard touchdown pass to Orr.

Orr, an elongated end, grabbed the ball on the 5 and slipped to the turf. He quickly picked himself up and with two Browns hanging on his neck, bolted into the end zone for the score.

Generals Blast Centre, 45 To 8

LEXINGTON, Va. (UPI)—Washington and Lee's Generals, playing flawless ball, hammered favored Centre College 45-8 Saturday for their biggest gridiron success since abandoning subsidized football five years ago.

Porkers Ride To 13-7 Win Over O-State

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The Arkansas Razorbacks scored the first two times they got the ball, then rode out a thunderstorm for a 13-7 victory over Oklahoma State Saturday night.

Twelve Oklahoma State fumbles, three of which Arkansas recovered, and brilliant play by Arkansas' sophomores played big parts in the Porkers' second victory in as many starts this season.

All-Southwest Conference halfback Jim Mooty single-handedly stopped a late Oklahoma State drive by grabbing a dumble on his own 21-yard-line, then one play later, running 27 yards to put the ball back in Cowboy territory.

Sophomore fullback Curtis Cox played a major part in the Razorback first touchdown. He gained 53 yards in an 88-yard drive, scoring finally from the 2.

LETNER KICKS IT

Tennessee Field Goal Puts Skids Under Auburn, 3 To 0

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Cotton Letner, a rangy junior end from Ten Mile, Tenn., kicked a 20-yard field goal in the second period Saturday to give Tennessee a 3-0 victory over beefy Auburn that snapped the nation's longest football unbeaten streak at 24 games.

The razor - sharp Vols, out weighed nearly 20 pounds a man up front, tuned their triumph over the nation's seventh-ranked team to a tenacious defense and the traditional Tennessee wait-for-the breaks game. The Vols snatched up a Tiger fumble to get into position for the winning field goal.

Beginning what is their toughest football schedule in years, the Vols' hard - tackling and crisp blocking kept the bigger Tigers off balance. It was a victory for Coach Bowden Wyatt worthy of Tennessee teams of old when the Vols were the scourge of the Southeast.

Auburn had not been beaten in 24 consecutive games, although the string was marred by a 7-7 tie with Georgia Tech in the middle of last season. The Plainsmen finished last year's campaign with six straight wins but were ineligible for bowl play.

Tennessee suffered one of the worst seasons in Vol history last year, winning only four games while losing six.

Blocking back Ken Sadler recovered the fumble by Auburn fullback Ed Dyas at the Auburn 45. Then tailback Bill Majors ripped off gains of 21 and six yards and passed 11 yards to end Mike Lasorsa. When two more majors passes fell incomplete, Letner kicked the field goal perfectly from the three.

The Vols turned Auburn's newly-found passing attack into frustration with interceptions, one of which set up an unsuccessful first period field goal attempt by Letner. Sadler picked off an aerial by Auburn quarterback Bryant Harvard at midfield and raced to the Tiger 25.

Defensively, guard Wayne Grubb and tackle Jack Schaffer spearheaded the charge that dept the huge Auburn line rocked back all afternoon.

The Vols, wiping out last year's humiliation in which they failed to make a first down against Auburn, threatened several times but were unable to push over a touchdown.

Tailback Gene Etter passed to end Marvin Phillips in the first period on the Auburn 15 and Etter carried to the nine, but Auburn stiffened and the Vols tried the first Letner field goal attempt from there.

In the second half, Tennessee played its brand of conservative football to protect the lead. Auburn managed to complete only four of 14 passes.

Techmen Blast Arkansas State

RUSTON, La. (Special) —Louisiana Tech turned in a fine running attack and a stout defense to shut out Arkansas State College 35-0 in a opener here Saturday night.

Held scoreless the first quarter, the Tech Bulldogs broke loose for two touchdowns in the second quarter, two in the third, and one in the fourth. They did it on runs of 7, 4, 15, and 15 yards, and a 42-yard pass.

Tech's first score came on a well - executed 42 - yard play with nine minutes before the half.

Bulldog quarterback Taylor McNeel found end Robbie Smith all alone on the goal line. J. W. Slack's try for extra point was wiped.

The next score came just seconds before the half when Slack scooted seven yards, for the TD, to make the score 12-0. McNeel's pass to Jerry Hudson for the extra point was knocked down.

Bulldogs hit pay dirt early in the third period when halfback Paul Hynes circled left end for four yards. Fullback Mack Rudd plunged over for points after touchdown.

The second third quarter score was made by half- back Jack Losgage, who took a pitchout and skirted right end for fifteen yards. Quarterback Johnny Hudson passed to David Williamson for 2 points to make it Tech, 28, Arkansas 0.

With ten minutes left in the contest, Bulldog Halfback Andy Farless skipped fifteen yards through the left side of the line for scoreing. Jack Howard kicked the point - after touchdown to make the final score, Tech 35, Arkansas 0.

Tech's rugged defense was evident all through the game as the Bulldogs didn't allow the Arkansas Indians to pass midfield till the fourth quarter. The Redskins got only to the Tech 35, with a lost ball on the down. Tech's malicious tackling allowed the staters only four first downs in the games, while the canines picked up 14.

The Bulldogs drove 250 yds. on the ground and 229 for the air. The Indians managed only 57 rushing and 25 passing.

Tech had a scoring threat stopped in the second quarter when the bulldogs drove to the Arkansas three yd. mark, only to lose the ball on down. On the last play of the game, Tech's Speedy Hynes intercepted an Arkansas pass and raced the 53 yards before he was stopped on the Indian 5-yd. line.

Rutgers Scores Early To Shade Princeton, 8-6

PRINCETON N.J. (AP) — Rutgers cashed in on an early touchdown pass by Bill Wolff and a rock-ribbed defonse Saturday and turned back Princeton 8-6 for it second straight opening day football victory over the Tigers.

It was the 50th game of this 90-year-old series that started intercollegiate football in 1869 and marked only the second time Rutgers has been able to win two in a row.

Rutgers got its touchdown midway through the first quarter just after a penalty that seemed to have ruined any scoring chance. Wolff, one of the alternating Rutgers' tailbacks, looped a high soft pass to wingback Arny Byrd, who caught it in the end zone. A Wolff-to-Bob Clark pass added two more points and that was about the end of the Rutgers attack.

Tackle Kicks 'Bama To 3-0 Grid Triumph

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Fred Sington, 230-pound tackle from Birmingham, kicked a 25-yard third quarter field goal Saturday night to give Alabama a 3-0 intersectional football victory over the University of Houston.

Houston made a brief threat late in the final period but a crowd of 27,000 otherwise had few thrills as the two young teams made little headway before a 32-yard Bama drive set up Sington's kick with only two minutes remaining in the third period.

The Alabama line turned back the final Houston threat, stopping the Cougars short of a first down four plays after John Semian, third string center had intercepted a Bama pass and returned 13 yards to the 18.

With nine sophomores among the 22 starting players, the only other serious scoring threats of the game ended with unsuccessful first half field goal attempts by each team.

Sington's 19-yard effort after a 30-yard first quarter Alabama drive was wide. A 38-yard attempt by Houston's Enroll Linden was wide and low. Houston had moved 67 yards to the Alabama 6 only to be penalized to the 21 for an illegal substitution just before Linden's kick.

The Alabama scoring drive began as Leon Fuller made a diving interception of a Houston pass on the Cougar 41. Quarterback Pat Trammel and fullback Carl Hopson moved to a first down on the 16 in six carries.

Three more line plays by Hopson and halfback Gary O'Steen placed the ball on the 9 for Sington's second field goal try.

BATON ROUGE, La. — In a day of upsets, LSU escaped with only a mild scare, scoring twice in the second quarter, halting TCU on the one-yard line in the fourth period, and taking a 10-0 victory over the Southwest Conference champions before 67,000 in Tiger Stadium Saturday night.

TCU won the toss and elected to receive. Rabb took it on the 29 and fumbled at the LSU 37 with Jack Spikes recovering.

Marvin Lasater and Spikes picked up five yards and Larry Dawson passed to Bubba Meyer for seven and a first down in the LSU 26.

With Lasater gaining three, Harris one, and another Dawson-to-Meyer pass going to 16, the Horned Frogs were mounting a quick threat.

However, Harris and Lasater could only gain four in two tries and Dawson's pass to Gilmore was incomplete.

With fourth and six at 12, Dawson tried to pass once more but was rushed badly, finally being pulled down by Micky Mangham back on the 31, a 19 - yard loss.

TCU unveiled its spread formation midway of the first period with its No. 3 unit in. It was rather unsuccessful and the two clubs were still 0-0 at the end of the tood over after a TCU punt on period.

Late in the first period, LSU the 50 and the Go team went in. With Harris and Gros racking up good gains, they moved to the 27 before the period ended.

As the second period opened, TCU burried its starters back into the game but Gros and Purvis moved the ball to the 13. Matherne gained nothing around end and the White Team trotted in but Harris stayed in.

With fourth and six on the 13, Harris booted the ball from the 29 thrbugh the goal posts for the first points of the game and LSU led, 3-0.

Midway of the second period, LSU took over after a punt on its 28. With the Bandits moving offensively, they carried the ball to the TCU 45 in six plays, a 23-yard jaunt by Tommy Neck the big gainer.

At the 45, the White Team came on and scored on their first play, Rabb dropping back and hitting Robinson up the middle at the 12. He went in without a hand being laid on him.

Harris kicked the PAT and it was 10-0 at the half.

LSU had a big edge in first half statistics, getting eight first downs to TCU's four and racking up 105 yards rushing to 20. The Tigers completed only two of six passes but made them go for 50 yards while the Frogs threw nine times, completed three for 18 yards.

The nation's no. 1 team, outplayed in the first stanza, scored early in the second quarter when, after a Go Team drive, Wendel Harris kicked a 29-yard field goal for a 3-0 lead.

Later in the second, after the Chinese Bandits, per orming ably on offense, had driven from the LSU 28 to the Horned Frogs' 45, White Team Quarterback Warren Rabb passed to Johnny Robinson on the 16 and the halfback, all alone, sprinted into the end zone.

Harris kicked the extra point to make it 10-0.

After LSU had halted two TCU drives in the fourth period, one on the one-yard line, All-America Billy Cannon, used sparingly all night, intercepted a Horned Frog pass on his 15 and sprinted it back 78 yards to the TCU 7.

After three plays, two of them passes, Frog quarterback Lerry Dawson intercepted a Rabb pass in the end zone and ran out the clock.

Texas Christian's big Frogs, matching LSU in depth, used three teams and 39 players in trying to climax the day's series of upsets with the biggest one of all.

Coach Abe Martin unveiled a spread formation for the first time throwing three ends into the game, one of them in the backfield. Used by the Frog third team with one back deep and three spread to the right, the formation was rather unsuccessful and the TCU second team did most of the damage, mounting the Frog's last half threats.

The victory was LSU'S 14th in a row over three seasons and should keep them firmly in college football's first place.

Played in 79-degree temperature and 90 per cent humidity, the game was LSU'S second of the year. Paul Dietzel Tigers opened with a 6-3 win over Rice last week.

Ferriday's Max Fugler led LSU'S grudging defense along with excellent flankman Mickey Mangham.

TCU threatened in the first half and gave the Bengals a real scare in the fourth period. Starting a drive late in the third from the LSU 44, the TCU second until moved to the one-foot line in 12 plays.

Fullback Merlin Priddy was the top rusher in the drive and quarterback Donald George completed clutch passes to Harry Moreland, a wobbly throw that went for 23 yards to put the ball on the 19, and to Paul Peebles one play later after the fourth period had begun for 12 yards and a first down on the LSU six.

Priddy ground to the four and then smashed off guard against an eight-man line for one. With third and one, Priddy again ran up the middle to the one-foot line.

On fourth down and the crowd on its feet, George sent Priddy up the middle again and he met a brick wall, bouncing back to the one-yard line.

After LSU took over and punted on third down, the Frogs launched another threat, this time with the first team in.

Taking over on the LSU 44 again, TCU drove to the 31 from where Larry Dawson passed to the 15. Halfback Marvin Lasater and three Tigers were there and a Tiger, Scotty McClain, intercepted, falling forward to the 16.

Later on in the period, TCU began its fourth and final threatening drive, taking over after a punt on the TCU 22 and going to the LSU 29 with the second unit in.

At the 29, with first and 10, George passed and Cannon intercepted at the 15 and sprinting down the right sidelines before Larry Terrell finally drove him out of bounds at the seven.

Rabb missed on a pass to McClain, Cannon lost two at right tackle, Rabb threw again to McClain, and missed and then fired one into the end zone that Dawson picked off.

TCU, on the strength of its last half drives, had the edge in first downs for the game, 14 to 11. The Frogs threw 21 times and completed eight for 90 yards but LSU had the advantage in overall yards, 206 to 177.

Cannon, who did not carry the ball until 4:45 was gone in the second quarter, was LSU'S top ground gainer with 35 yards in nine carries for a 3.9 average. Harris picked up 27 yards on five carries.

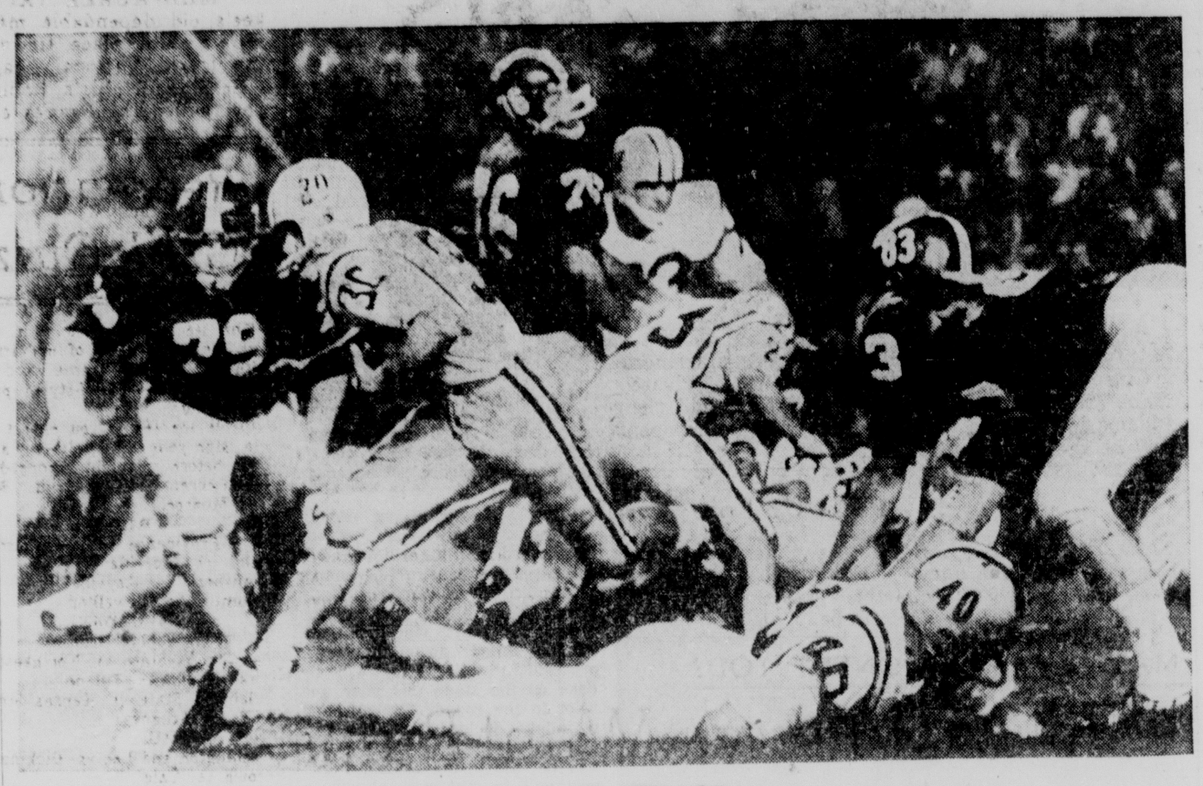
TCU'S All-American candidate, fullback Jack Spikes, was the Frogs' top gainer with 38 yards in 10 tries. Priddy got 33 in 14 rushes.

Dawson threw 10 times, completed four and George passed eight times, completing four.

Coach Dietzel said after shaking the hand of each of his football players and congratulating them on their brilliant victory:

"TCU played real fine football, brilliant football and we are glad to have won over such a fine squad. The fine goal line stand which the Tigers put up was comparable to the one against Ole Miss and made it possible for us to maintain our record of not yielding at the goal line.

"I felt that TCU was getting stronger all the time and am just thankful for that tremendous goal line stand the boys put up. I think they played well throughout, as did the boys from TCU."



Louisiana On The Move

Halfback Wendell Harris (30) gains four yards for Louisiana State University on an end run on first quarter against Texas Christian at Baton Rouge last night. Coming in for tackle is TCU's David McSpedden (79). On ground is LSU fullback Earl Gros (40). Play stopped on TCU 38. LSU won game, 10-0. (AP Wirephoto)

Redskins Tumble By 14-13 Margin

By JIM CALHOUN
Staff Sports Writer

Northeast's usually conservative Indians pushed over a touchdown in the waning minutes of play here Saturday night, then unsuccessfully shot the works on an attempted two-point conversion as Delta State's Statesmen held on for a well-earned 14-13 victory.

Delta State, moving well on a second half passing offensive, took to lead 14-7 shortly after the final quarter began, but with quarterback Bob Randel at the helm, the Indians finally began to move. After a State drive ran out of steam midway in the final stanza, the Tribe began to click.

The clincher came on a 12-yard aerial from Randel to end Robert Earle in the end zone for a six-pointer which made it 14-13. The hosts gambled on a two-pointer to win but Randel's pass to Earle fell short.

Northeast scored the first time it got its hands on the ball in the first period but the Statemen came back for a second quarter score to know it up at 7-7 at intermission.

On the first play of the game from scrimmage State's James Hubbert fumbled and Curtis Cook dropped on the loose pigskin on the enemy 33.

Cook and Terry Reeves carried in three plays to the 11. A penalty set the Redskins back to the 25 and two plays later Cook connected with Reeves on a 12-yard toss to the 8. Jim Ladadio cracked down to the three in two tries and fullback Smokey Stover bulled the rest of the way for the opening score.

Ladadio split the uprights with the conversion to make it 7-0.

Delat started rolling late in the first period and halfback Gale Davis, a thorn in the Northeast defense with his quick opening bursts, climaxed an 80-yard march to tie the score.

Grinding out a few yards at a time, the Statesmen took 16 plays in the drive, but were aided by six penalties against the hosts. With a fourth and two situation of the Northeast ten, Davis was stopped by end Jerry Head short of a first down.

However, the Indians were charged with an infraction of the rules and awarded a first down on the five. Jim Trotter plunged to the one and Davis crashed on over with 9:08 left in the half. Quarterback Bob Brumfield converted to deadlock the game at intermission.

Kansas City Rips Tribe By 8-4 Count

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Kansas City Athletics bounced back with seven runs in the final two innings Saturday and walloped the Cleveland Indians 8-4.

Right-hander Ken Johnson got credit for the victory, his first in the major leagues, although he left the game in the eighth with the A's trailing 2-1.

Until then, the only Kansas City tally was Dick Williams' fourth-inning homer, his 16th.

Two singles off loser John Briggs and an error by rookie Gene Leek at second base brought home the tying run for Kansas City. Bob Cerv cracked a double, scoring Roger Maris and a sacrifice fly by Williams brought home the third run of the inning.

Jerry Lumpe greeted reliever Gary Bell with a double to open the ninth. Hal Smith walked and centerfielder Russ Snyder banged a two-run triple to right. Snyder came home on a single by Maris. Another single and a sacrifice fly by Cerv ended the Athletics scoring.

Steelers Put On Last Half Show To Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bobby Layne turned on a brilliant second half show with his passing, running and kicking as Pittsburgh's Steelers pulled out a 17-7 triumph over the Cleveland Browns Saturday night in a National Football League opener.

Layne figured in every scoring play. He hit Jimmy Orr and Pete Brewster with touchdown heaves, kicked a field goal and booted two conversions.

The Browns scored their lone touchdown in the second quarter after a 21-yard pass interception return by Ken Konz. Quarterback Milt Plum sneaked over from the 1 to climax a 53-yard march. Lou Groza converted.

The Steelers, listless in the first half although they got the better of the statistics, stormed back in the second half behind Layne.

The 32-year-old signal - caller kicked a 25-yard field goal to narrow the deficit to 7-3 in the third quarter and minutes later put the Steelers ahead to stay with a 20-yard touchdown pass to Orr.

Orr, an elongated end, grabbed the ball on the 5 and slipped to the turf. He quickly picked himself up and with two Browns hanging on his neck, bolted into the end zone for the score.

LETNER KICKS IT

Tennessee Field Goal Puts Skids Under Auburn, 3 To 0

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Cotton Letner, a rangy junior end from Ten Mile, Tenn., kicked a 20-yard field goal in the second period Saturday to give Tennessee a 3-0 victory over beefy Auburn that snapped the nation's longest football unbeaten streak at 24 games.

The razor - sharp Vols, out weighed nearly 20 pounds a man up front, tuned their triumph over the nation's seventh-ranked team to a tenacious defense and the traditional Tennessee wait-for-the breaks game. The Vols snatched up a Tiger fumble to get into position for the winning field goal.

Beginning what is their toughest football schedule in years, the Vols' hard - tackling and crisp blocking kept the bigger Tigers off balance. It was a victory for Coach Bowden Wyatt worthy of Tennessee teams of old when the Vols were the scourge of the Southeast.

Auburn had not been beaten in 24 consecutive games, although the string was marred by a 7-7 tie with Georgia Tech in the middle of last season. The Plainsmen finished last year's campaign with six straight wins but were ineligible for bowl play.

Tennessee suffered one of the worst seasons in Vol history last year, winning only four games while losing six.

Blocking back Ken Sadler recovered the fumble by Auburn fullback Ed Dyas at the Auburn 45. Then tailback Bill Majors ripped off gains of 21 and six yards and passed 11 yards to end Mike Lasorsa. When two more majors passes fell incomplete, Letner kicked the field goal perfectly from the three.

The Vols turned Auburn's newly-found passing attack into frustration with interceptions, one of which set up an unsuccessful first period field goal attempt by Letner. Sadler picked off an aerial by Auburn quarterback Bryant Harvard at midfield and raced to the Tiger 25.

Defensively, guard Wayne Grubb and tackle Jack Schaffer spearheaded the charge that dept the huge Auburn line rocked back all afternoon.

The Vols, wiping out last year's humiliation in which they failed to make a first down against Auburn, threatened several times but were unable to push over a touchdown.

Tailback Gene Etter passed to end Marvin Phillips in the first period on the Auburn 15 and Etter carried to the nine, but Auburn stiffened and the Vols tried the first Letner field goal attempt from there.

In the second half, Tennessee played its brand of conservative football to protect the lead. Auburn managed to complete only four of 14 passes.

Techmen Blast Arkansas State

RUSTON, La. (Special) —Louisiana Tech turned in a fine running attack and a stout defense to shut out Arkansas State College 35-0 in a opener here Saturday night.

Held scoreless the first quarter, the Tech Bulldogs broke loose for two touchdowns in the second quarter, two in the third, and one in the fourth. They did it on runs of 7, 4, 15, and 15 yards, and a 42-yard pass.

Tech's first score came on a well - executed 42 - yard play with nine minutes before the half.

Bulldog quarterback Taylor McNeel found end Robbie Smith all alone on the goal line. J. W. Slack's try for extra point was wined.

The next score came just seconds before the half when Slack scooted seven yards, for the TD, to make the score 12-0. McNeel's pass to Jerry Hudson for the extra point was knocked down.

Bulldogs hit pay dirt early in the third period when halfback Paul Hynes circled left end for four yards. Fullback Mack Rudd plunged over for points after touchdown.

The second third quarter score was made by half- back Jack Lesgage, who took a pitchout and skirted right end for fifteen yards. Quarterback Johnny Hudson passed to David Williamson for 2 points to make it Tech, 28, Arkansas 0.

With ten minutes left in the contest, Bulldog Halfback Andy Farless skipped fifteen yards through the left side of the line for scoreing. Jack Howard kicked the point - after touchdown to make the final score, Tech 35, Arkansas 0.

Tech's rugged defense was evident all through the game as the Bulldogs didn't allow the Arkansas Indians to pass midfield till the fourth quarter. The Redskins got only to the Tech 35, with a lost ball on the down. Tech's malicious tackling allowed the staters only four first downs in the games, while the canines picked up 14.

The Bulldogs drove 250 yds. on the ground and 229 for the air. The Indians managed only 57 rushing and 25 passing.

Tech had a scoring threat stopped in the second quarter when the bulldogs drove to the Arkansas three yd. mark, only to lose the ball on down. On the last play of the game, Tech's Speedy Hynes intercepted an Arkansas pass and raced the 53 yards before he was stopped on the Indian 5-yd. line.

Rutgers Scores Early To Shade Princeton, 8-6

PRINCETON N.J. (AP) — Rutgers cashed in on an early touchdown pass by Bill Wolff and a rock-ribbed defense Saturday and turned back Princeton 8-6 for it second straight opening day football victory over the Tigers.

It was the 50th game of this 90-year-old series that started intercollegiate football in 1869 and marked only the second time Rutgers has been able to win two in a row.

Rutgers got its touchdown midway through the first quarter just after a penalty that seemed to have ruined any scoring chance. Wolff, one of the alternating Rutgers' tailbacks, looped a high soft pass to wingback Arny Byrd, who caught it in the end zone. A Wolff-to-Bob Clark pass added two more points and that was about the end of the Rutgers attack.

Porkers Ride To 13-7 Win Over O-State

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The Arkansas Razorbacks scored the first two times they got the ball, then rode out a thunderstorm for a 13-7 victory over Oklahoma State Saturday night.

Twelve Oklahoma State fumbles, three of which Arkansas recovered, and brilliant play by Arkansas' sophomores played big parts in the Porkers' second victory in as many starts this season.

All-Southwest Conference halfback Jim Mooty single-handedly stopped a late Oklahoma State drive by grabbing a dumble on his own 21-yard-line, then one play later, running 27 yards to put the ball back in Cowboy territory.

Sophomore fullback Curtis Cox played a major part in the Razorback first touchdown. He gained 53 yards in an 88-yard drive, scoring finally from the 2.

Tackle Kicks 'Bama To 3-0 Grid Triumph

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Fred Sington, 230-pound tackle from Birmingham, kicked a 25-yard third quarter field goal Saturday night to give Alabama a 3-0 intersectional football victory over the University of Houston.

Houston made a brief threat late in the final period but a crowd of 27,000 otherwise had few thrills as the two young teams made little headway before a 32-yard Bama drive set up Sington's kick with only two minutes remaining in the third period.

The Alabama line turned back the final Houston threat, stopping the Cougars short of a first down four plays after John Semian, third string center had intercepted a Bama pass and returned 13 yards to the 18.

With nine sophomores among the 22 starting players, the only other serious scoring threats of the game ended with unsuccessful first half field goal attempts by each team.

Sington's 19-yard effort after a 30-yard first quarter Alabama drive was wide. A 38-yard attempt by Houston's Enroll Linden was wide and low. Houston had moved 67 yards to the Alabama 6 only to be penalized to the 21 for an illegal substitution just before Linden's kick.

The Alabama scoring drive began as Leon Fuller made a diving interception of a Houston pass on the Cougar 41. Quarterback Pat Trammel and fullback Carl Hopson moved to a first down on the 16 in six carries.

Three more line plays by Hopson and halfback Gary O'Steen placed the ball on the 9 for Sington's second field goal try.

Sub Sparks Irish Past Tar Heels

SOUTH BEND, Ind., (AP) — Don White, a quarterback who moved up from the reserves, led Notre Dame to a 25-8 victory over North Carolina Saturday.

It was the first game for the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame under their new coach, Joe Kuharich. His squad showed the 56,746 spectators a varied, hard-charging offense. The key man in the attack was White, a 21-year-old senior from Haverhill, Mass., who filled in a quarterback for the injured star George Izo. White performed his stand-in role with skill and poise.

Late in the first quarter Notre Dame recovered a fumble on the North Carolina 24 and whizzed to its first touchdown in four plays. The big gainer was a 19-yard pass from White to Bob Scarpitto. Scarpitto scored on the next play on a 2 yard run.

A short punt gave the Irish the ball on the Tar Heel 29 in the second period. On the fourth play in the series Jim Crotty loped around his left end for 19 yards and a TD.

Another short punt put Notre Dame in gear on the North Carolina 30 later in the same period. Five plays, including a 15-yard pass from White to George Sefcik, put the ball on the 3 and Crotty took it over on a plunge.

Notre Dame, which used the T formation with variations in its first half offensive touchdown drives, turned the scoring over to an alert defense in the last half.

Monty Stickles, a tall end, blocked Henry Clement's punt behind the goal line and the ball bounded out of the end zone for a safety.

Then Ray Ratkowski intercepted a pass by Wade Smith and galloped 43 yards for a TD.

North Carolina put on a sustained 65-yard drive late in the fourth period. The big booster was a 29 yard pass from Ray Farris to Dan Lotz. Moyer Smity plunged the final yard for the TD.

Notre Dame rolled up 223 yards rushing and 86 passing. North Carolina was held to 100 yards on the ground and 60 in the air in a game played in intermittent rain.

Indiana Sophs Master Illini Is 20-0 Scrap

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Indiana hauled the cover off a five crop of sophomores Saturday and defeated fumbling Illinois 20-0 in the Big Ten football opener for both teams. Rain poured all afternoon.

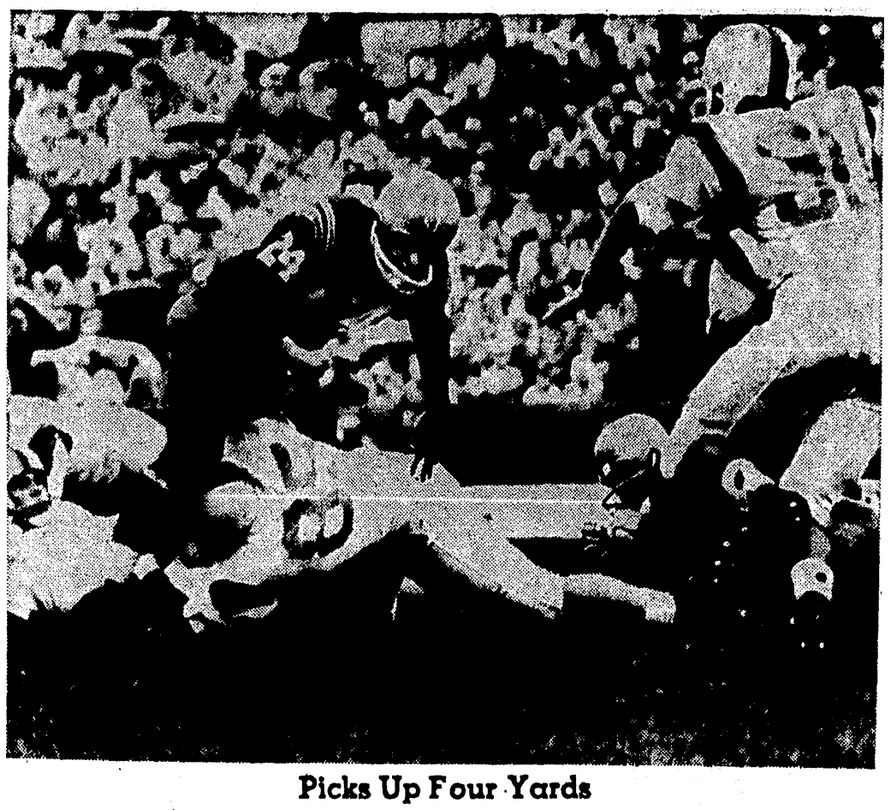
Ted Smith, veteran Indiana tailback, knocked Illinois off balance with a 51-yard runback of the opening kickoff, scored 10 plays later from the Illini 1 and then let the sophomores strut.

Willie Hunter, a 195-pound tailback from Memphis, plowed 16 yards the first time he got the ball and tallied Indiana's second touchdown from the Illini 7 at the start of the second quarter.

John Henry Jackson, another sophomore tailback from Columbus, Ga., passed 18 yards to junior Earl Faison for the Hoosiers' last touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Senior Ron Miller kicked extra points on the first and third touchdowns but missed on the middle one. He had to boot the first one from the 28-yard line after a Hoosier penalty.

Illinois lost the ball five times on fumbles and twice on interceptions. Indiana never gave up the ball except to punt, and it used the quick kick to deadly advantage.



Picks Up Four Yards

er against the Dodgers at Wrigley Field.

When the Dodgers absorbed a 12-2 pasting at the hands of the Chicago Cubs, Milwaukee regained the ground it had lost Friday night in dropping the series opener to the last-place Phillies.

Spahn's victory, No. 267 of his illustrious career, set a record for left-handers in the National League. It topped the old mark held by Eppa Rixey that the 38-year-old southpaw tied Monday night in Pittsburgh.

While the Braves were easing out this thinly cut decision over the last-place Phils, the Dodgers were reeling around Wrigley Field, as the Chicago Cubs battered their pitchers.

San Francisco still had a chance to tie if they won their last three games and the Braves and Dodgers lose Sunday.

Just as the Braves dashed from their dugout to start the game, it was reported that Al Dark of the Cubs had hit a three-run homer.

All afternoon the radios scattered through the stands brought back glad tidings from Chicago and more and more runs by the Cubs. When the game finally ended at County Stadium with a light rain falling, the Dodgers were losing by a 12-2 score with time called for rain after seven innings.

Spahn allowed only two hits in the first five innings but they were home runs by Gene Freese and Wally Post so he was fortunate to be tied with Roberts at that stage. An unearned run had pulled the Braves even in the fourth on a wild peg by Freese.

As the game wore on, Spahn seemed to get stronger. Although he was pulled out of a deep jam in the seventh by fine defensive play and saved again by a nice play by shortstop Johnny Logan, he finished with a flourish.

After Milwaukee finally crashed through for a third run off Roberts in the last of the eighth, Spahn struck out both Eddie Bouchee and Post and made Freese loft a game-ending fly ball to Lee Maye in left.

Singles by Eddie Mathews and Hank Aaron, a sacrifice bunt by Joe Adcock and an intentional walk to Maye loaded the bases against Roberts in the eighth. The tie-breaking run scored as Bobby Avila forced Maye at second, Mathews scoring.

Thus the sizzling race came right down to the final day of the season. The Braves finish at County Stadium against the last-place Phillies and the Dodgers wind up at Chicago. If the teams are tied after Sunday's games they will start a best-of-three playoff Monday afternoon in Milwaukee.

Manager Eddie Sawyer of the Phils named right-hander Jim Owens (12-11) to pitch the last game. He has a 1-0 record against Milwaukee. Manager Fred Haney if the Braves was undecided but was expected to name right-hander Bob Buhl (14-9) who holds a 17-8 lifetime edge over the Phils.

Roberts and Spahn battled through the cloudy afternoon as the Phils and Braves matched runs in the second and fourth innings. Freese, who hit a three-run homer in Friday night's 6-3 Philadelphia victory, came through with his 23rd homer with the bases empty in the second. It was his sixth against the Braves.

Milwaukee came right back in its half of the inning when Maye doubled off the right field fence, took third on Avila's sacrifice and scored on Logan's single to center.

Post put the Phils out front again when he hit a Spahn pitch over the left center field fence with two out and nobody on in the fourth.

The Braves tied it with an unearned run in the fourth. Avila doubled down the left field line and scored when Freese threw over Bouchee's head after fielding Del Crandall's grounder.

Spahn escaped serious trouble in the seventh after Post doubled off the fence in left center and Freese walked with nobody out. Del Crandall picked Post off second base with a perfect peg to Logan who held the ball for the putout although he was knocked down by Post's charge. Dave Philley then popped up and Maye made a running catch of George Anderson's drive.

Then came the break in the eighth when Mathews and Aaron singled. Adcock's sacrifice bunt moved the runners along and Maye was walked intentionally.

When Avila forced Maye at second, Mathews scored with the winning run.

Logan who returned to the starting line - up Friday night after missing six games due to an infected toe, had a great day in the field. In addition to the pickoff of Post in the seventh, he went deep to his right into the hole to get Joe Koppe's grounder in time to force Roberts, who had singled in the eighth.

TEXAS A&M, 9-7

Aggie Milstead Stuns Spartans

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—A senior engineering student from Texas A&M out-engineered a statiscally - superior Mighigan State football team Saturday to give the Texans a 9-7 victory.

The loss shattered Michigan State's hopes of making a comeback this year after finishing in the Big Ten basement with a disappointing record last season.

Almost single-handedly Texas A&M quarterback Charley Milstead outsmarted the Spartans to put his team into an early lead. Then he rallied his teammates to hold off a determined but futile effort by Michigan State late in the game.

Milstead set up the only Texas touchdown early in the game with a quick kick from his own 22 the first time the Aggies got their hands on the ball.

After Milstead's quick kick, Michigan State was unable to get out of its own territory and, when the Augies took over, the senior quarterback moved his team to the one-yard line, scoring himself on a plunge with 39 seconds remaining in the period.

The clincher was a field goal by right half Randy Sims from the 21 early in the second quarter.

Michigan State's Art Brandstetter failed on field goal attempts from the 35 and the 16 in the second quarter.

Michigan State failed to score three times when they got inside the Aggies 20 in the third quarter but came to life mid way in the third period.

The Spartans struck with a 66-yard drive that produced a touchdown when fullback Blanche Martin plunged over from the one, capping a 14-play drive, sparked by the running of halfback Herb Adderley.

Stanford Sags To Wisconsin Thrusts, 16-14

MADISON, Wis., (AP) — Wisconsin's highly touted football machine combined bruising power and alertness for a 16-14 victory over Stanford Saturday in a game turned into a mud bath by a second half downpour.

Junior fullback Tom Weisner scored two touchdowns on short line smashes and Karl Holzwarth booted a 26-yard field goal as the Badgers launched their 1959 campaign to the cheers of 41,892 fans at Camp Randall Stadium.

After Weisner's second touchdown, on a four-yard slant off left tackle in the third period, Stanford broke into the scoring column on the brilliant passing of Dick Norman.

The slick quarterback lobbed a high pass to Chris Burford for a 54-yard scoring play at the nine minute mark of the third quarter.

Then, with the rain still so heavy it resembled snow, Norman directed his charges on a 72-yard touchdown mark in the closing minutes. Fullback Skip Face capped the advance by skirting left end from two yards out.

Wisconsin's first touchdown came after recovery of a fumble. A pickoff of a fumble in mid-air by Dale Hackbart started the drive that ended with Holzwarth's field goal. The second touchdown was pushed across after Weisner stole the ball from Burford who had taken a pass from Norman.

3 Second Half TDs Bag Wake Forest Victory

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Wake Forest's dashing football Deacons exploded for three second half touchdowns Saturday to wallop Virginia Tech 27-18.

In winning its second game, while handing Tech its second loss Wake Forest came alive with a vengeance after a sluggish first half that ended with Tech leading 18-7.

A 70-yard scoring march in the third quarter and another of equal length in the fourth put Wake Forest ahead. The Deacons iced it by covering 48 yards in the closing minutes after Tech gambled on a fourth and one situation and lost the ball on downs.

Jockey Killed When Thrown From Mount

ASCOT, England AP) — Manny Mercer, one of Britain's leading jockeys, was thrown from his mount and killed at the start of a race at Ascot Saturday.

Mercer, who had ridden in the United States, was unseated from his mount, Priddy Fair, just before the start of the Red Deer Handicap. It was thought he was kicked in the face as he fell.

He was taken to a track first aid room and a few minutes later a doctor came out and told Trainer Harry Wragg, Mercer's father-in-law, that the jockey was dead. Wragg walked away with tears streaming down his face.

"No one appears to know quite what happened," said Trainer Jack Jarvis, for whose stable Mercer rode. "I have been told that the horse whipped around and threw Mercer against the rails."

Mercer won the first running of the Washington D.C. International race at Laurel, Md., in 1952 with the British horse, Wilwyn. He rode Wilwyn again in the 1953 International but the horse finished out of the money.

Penn Crushes Lafayette, 26-0

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jack Hanlon ran 33 yards for a touchdown and Penn capitalized on Lafayette fumbles for three other scores Saturday to win with unexpected ease 26-0.

The Ivy Leaguers dominated so completely that Lafayette never moved beyond the Penn 39-yard line. It was Penn's first opening game win since 1953.

Chisox Players Want Bums In Series For Greater Pay

By TED SMITS

CHICAGO (AP) — The Go-Go White Sox of Chicago stand poised Saturday for the World Series of baseball—but against whom? and when?

Only Sunday's games in the National League can determine whether the American League champions will take the field in Comiskey Park here Wednesday, Sept. 30, against the duly constituted National League champions or must wait for a playoff to settle the pennant.

In contention still in the National League are the Milwaukee Braves, last year's winners, and the Los Angeles Dodgers—with the San Francisco Giants sinking fast.

In the event of a two-way National League tie, the title will be settled by a best two out of three series starting Monday with no time out for travel but with a day of rest before the Series starts. That would make the opening day here in Chicago either Thursday, Oct. 1 or Friday, Oct. 2, weather permitting, depending on whether the playoff lasts two or three games.

The first game of a tie playoff between Los Angeles and Milwaukee would be held Monday at Milwaukee with the second on Tuesday at Los Angeles, and the third, if needed,als o there on Wednesday.

Al Lopez, the popular manager of the White Sox, says he doesn't care who wins in the National League.

But the White Sox players have a different view. County Stadium in Milwaukee seats 43,827. The Los Angeles Coliseum is listed at 94,600. A World Series between the White Sox (Comiskey Park seats 46,500), and the Dodgers might well set records for the size of the purse to be divided between the winning and losing teams.

Only twice before since the start of the National League in 1876 have their been ties at the end of the regular 154-game season.

In 1946 the St. Louis Cardinals and then Brooklyn Dodgers were all even. The Cards beat the Dodgers in the playoff and then beat the Boston Red Sox in the series.

In 1951, the then New York Giants and then Brooklyn Dodgers were knotted, and this time the Giants won the playoff (remember Bobby Thomson's ninth inning homer that did it?) but lost to the New York Yankees in the Series.

But assuming there are no complications, the best four-out-of-seven Series starts here Wednesday with a second game on Thursday. If a Coast team is involved on the National League side there will be a day out for travel and the series will resume on Saturday in the National League park for the third and fourth games. If it still has not been decided, a fifth game will be played there.

Then there would be another day for travel, assuming the issue was still in doubt, and the Series would return to Chicago for a sixth and possibly even a seventh game.

If Milwaukee is in the Series the same pattern will be followed but there will be no time off for travel.

For Chicago this series is charged with emotion. It was 40 years ago that a White Sox team last won the American pennant and that one turned out to be the most notorious of all baseball teams—the Black Sox of tainted memory. Now a fast, slick fielding, light hitting team of assorted youngsters and oldsters is out to erase the stain.

It's a team that is strong down the middle, where baseball men say teams must be strong.

Behind the plate is Sherman Lollar, the best long ball hitter on the club. On the mound are Early Wynn, a veteran right - hander; Bob Shaw, a youngster of great promise; and Billy Pierce and Dick Donovan with Turk Lown and Gerry Staley in the bullpen.

But the pride of the Sox is centered on the second-base combination of Nelson Fox at second and the agile Luis Aparicio at short. Jim Landis in centerfield completes the middle combination.

As usual, the Series games will be televised and broadcast starting daily at 12:45 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, for those in Chicago; at 1:45 p.m., for those in Milwaukee; and at 3:45 p.m. if played on the Coast.

Virginia Feels Clemson Teeth In 47-0 Rout

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI) Ninth-ranked Clemson, paced by halfback Bill Mathis and substitute quarterback Lowndes Shingler covered 204 yards in four scoring plays Saturday in a 47-0 rout of Virginia before 13,000 fans.

Mathis took a 10-yard pass from quarterback Harvey White and sprinted 44 yards for one touchdown and added another with a 45 - yard end run climaxed by a neat dodge of Virginia's last defender.

Shingler, White's fill - in, fired two touchdown passes in plays covering 52 and 53 yards, respectively, as the Tigers handed the Cavaliers their worst setback since 1943 when Duke won a 49-0 romp.

Clemson's other three touchdowns came on short runs including a two - yard dash by third-string fullback Hal Knott who set it up with a 40-yard ramble to the Virginia six.

The victory, accomplished with near - ridliculous ease, followed Clemson's 20-18 win over North Carolina last week and gave the Tigers an early inside track on the Atlantic Coast Conference championship.

The Tigers, stymied at first by an unexpectedly tough Virginia line, switched to the air with White and Shingler shuttling back and forth at the quarterback slot and cracking the Cavalier secondary repeatedly.

The first pass attempt was White's touchdowns pitch to Mathis on the third play of the game.

Clemson, alternating three wave of backs, started to roll after a sluggish second period. The Tigers rammed through four touchdowns in the third period, including Mathis' long sprint and two short, crushing drives which followed Virginia fumbles.

Halfback George Usry rambled 5 yards to score after the Tigers grabbed a Cavalier fumble on the Virginia 27. Virginia fumbled again after receiving the kickoff and Clemson coasted 31 yards in five plays with third-string halfback Jim Wilson scoring from the three.

One Virginia drive reached Clemson's 18 but abruptly ended before a charging Tiger line. The Cavliers only reached Clemson territory once more, making it to the Tiger 46 in the third period where they promptly lost the ball.

Scoring summary:

Clemson — Mathis 54 pass from White (Cline kick); Bost 52 pass from Shingler (Shingler kick); Mathis 45 run (Cline kick); Usry 5 run (pass failed); Wilson 3 run (pass failed); King 53 pass from Shingler (Shingler run); Knott 2 run (pass failed).

Bosox Stop Senators On Homers, 5-4

BOSTON (AP) — Jackie Jensen lashed a home run high into the left field screen with two men out in the 11th inning Saturday to bring the Boston Red Sox a 5-4 decision over Washington.

Jensen forced the game into extra innings with a two-run double in the ninth as Boston surged from behind with a three - run burst off Camilo Pascual and tied it 4-4.

His 11th inning home run, off Bill Fischer (9-11), was his 28th. His three runs batted in gave him 112 for the season and pushed him into the American League lead.

Harmon Killebrew's 41st home run, a three-run blast high off the left field light tower, powered Washington out to a 4-1 lead before Boston rallied.

Nelson Chittum, who came on in the 10th, got credit for the win, his third without a loss.

5 TD'S ON 5 ERRORS

Huskers Enjoy Gopher Fumbles

By JIM KLOBUCHAR

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Underdog Nebraska feasted on Minnesota fumbles and boomeranging passes Saturday for a 32-12 victory at sodden Memorial Stadium behind the three-touchdown salvo of Clay White.

The tough, alert Cornhuskers reduced the Gophers to jittery inceptness and turned Gopher mistakes into five touchdowns. In the process they wrecked the heralded debut of Gopher sophomore quarterback Sandy Stephens, who fumbled four times and had a pass intercepted.

White, a stumpy, churning runner, scored on runs of 34 and four yards and on a three-yard pass from Harry Tolly. Pat Fischer and Tolly got the other Nebraska touchdowns.

Underdogs by 10 points, the Huskers spotted Minnesota a first period touchdown and then struck for two quick scores midway through the second period for a 13-12 halftime lead. White took over after intermission to score three times, his 34-yard cutback scamper in the fourth period breaking the Gophers' back.

Minnesota fumbled eight times and lost the ball on five occasions. They also had two passes intercepted that led to Nebraska touchdowns.

Although he pitched a 19 yard touchdown pass, scored on a 55-yard return of an intercepted pass and carried a kickoff 78 yards, Stephens had an unhappy day.

Two of his fumbles and one of his intercepted passes preceded Nebraska touchdowns. Another fumble, on the Nebraska 3 cost Minnesota an apparent touchdown.

Cornell Rallies To Nip Colgate

HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP) — A tightly played game broke wide open in the fourth period here Saturday as Cornell, almost down to its last out, rallied for a 20-18 opening victory over Colgate.

The pacesetter for three periods, Cornell needed a gallant last ditch rally to nip an aroused Colgate club that sprang to life in the fourth period and moved ahead with 5:26 to play.

As some 10,000 spectators stood shrieking the Big Red drove 80 yards in 18 plays, scoring on a fourth down pass with 19 seconds remaining. The toss went into the right flat from quarterback Marcello Tino to fullback Phil Taylor, who barely made it 6 yards into the end zone against Raider defenders.

Colgate ripped 59 and 56 yards earlier in the fourth period to score twice in their first real show of strength.

SMASHING DEFEAT

Wildcats Crush Oklahoma Behind Burton, Thornton

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

EVANSTON (AP)—Dick Thornton's heady quarterbacking and passing, and Ron Burton's electrifying runs Saturday charged up Northwestern for a shattering 45-13 defeat of Oklahoma, the nation's second-ranked football team.

It was the Sooners' worst licking since Oklahoma A&M handed them a 47-0 trouncing in 1945. It also marked the worst Oklahoma drubbing under Coach Bud Wilkinson—the previous being a 34-13 setback by Texas in 1947, Wilkinson's first year.

The second quarter of the nationally televised game before a capacity crowd of 50,000 was played in a near cloudburst.

In the curtain of rain that at times obliterated the field, both sides packed the game's highlights into the quarter.

Oklahoma scored a touchdown on a 45-yard thrust in 11 plays that cut Northwestern's lead to 13-7. The score came on a hoopla pass involving three of the five Sooner regulars stricken two days ago with food poisoning.

From the Northwestern 7, Bobby Boyd slipped a backward pass to Jim Carpenter, who tossed to Brewster Hobby in the end zone. Jim Davis, another of those who had been sick, booted the extra point.

All regular players who had the gastric upset played most of the game.

Northwestern, rated No. 10, then scored twice to clamp a lid on the outcome with a 27-7 halftime bulge, spoiling Wilkinson's first venture against a Big Ten team since taking over at Oklahoma.

Halfback Burton slashed 62 yards for a touchdown. Later, Wayne Chamberlain recovered an Oklahoma fumble by Jackie Holt on the Sooners' 3. The first play, Thornton passed to Paul Yanke—a dripping, blurred figure in the end zone.

A Thornton run and a Thornton pass failed for the extra two points after each touchdown.

Bull Stalwart Of Baylor's 15-7 Triumph

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Sophomore Ronnie Bull jarred his way to a 74-yard broken field touchdown run and caught a 10-yard scoring pass to give the speedy Baylor Bears a 15-7 football victory over Colorado Saturday.

The Bishop, Tex., halfback was the Baylor star, running, catching passes and playing great pass defense.

The Bears, playing their season opener under new Coach John Bridgers, were jittery and green in the first period, but gained poise in the final three quarters, soundly outplaying the Coloradoans.

Colorado scored first midway in the first period. The touchdown was set up by a Baylor fumble on the Bears' 3. Two plays later quarterback Gale Weidner sneaked over from the 1. Joe Dowler converted.

Baylor took the lead in the second period on Bull's brilliant run that started over a guard position from scrimmage. A pass from quarterback Ronnie Stanley to halfback Tommy Minter gave Baylor a two-point conversion and an 8-7 lead.

Early in the third period Stanley and Bull played pitch and catch to score again for the Bears. With Stanley throwing and Bull the receiver, the Bear team moved to the Colorado 10. From this point Bull took a Stanley pass in the end zone for his second touchdown.

Harvard Trips Massachusetts

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A well-balanced Harvard football team had its own way for three periods Saturday in a 38-22 win over the University of Massachusetts but the inspired Redmen came back with three touchdowns in the fourth period to make it a real thriller.

Syracuse In 35-21 Victory Over Kansas

By JAMES KOCH
Associated Press Staff Writer

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Syracuse's football team unleashed a mighty ground game and surprising passing Saturday to wear down battling Kansas 35-21 despite two touchdowns by brilliant sophomore Johnny Hadl.

Hadl returned a kickoff 97 yards and twice surprised Syracuse with quick kicks of 63 and 59 yards to keep the Jayhawkers in a game where Syracuse commanded virtual control of the ball.

Helped by its massive line, Syracuse rolled for 32 first downs to four for the sophomore-studded Kansans.

Syracuse finally broke loose for four touchdowns in the second half after Kansas capitalized on a fumble and Hadl's run to lead 15-12 midway in the third period.

Quarterback Ger Schwedes slammed over from the 6 - inch line and again from the 3 to put Syracuse ahead for keeps early in the fourth quarter. Syracuse led by 26 points, 35-15, before Hadl scored from the 12 with three minutes remaining.

25 TO 8

Sub Sparks Irish Past Tar Heels

SOUTH BEND, Ind., (AP) — Don White, a quarterback who moved up from the reserves, led Notre Dame to a 25-8 victory over North Carolina Saturday.

It was the first game for the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame under their new coach, Joe Kuharich. His squad showed the 56,746 spectators a varied, hard-charging offense. The key man in the attack was White, a 21-year-old senior from Haverhill, Mass., who filled in a quarterback for the injured star George Izo. White performed his stand-in role with skill and poise.

Late in the first quarter Notre Dame recovered a fumble on the North Carolina 24 and whizzed to its first touchdown in four plays. The big gainer was a 19-yard pass from White to Bob Scarpitto. Scarpitto scored on the next play on a 2 yard run.

A short punt gave the Irish the ball on the Tar Heel 29 in the second period. On the fourth play in the series Jim Crotty loped around his left end for 19 yards and a TD.

Another short punt put Notre Dame in gear on the North Carolina 30 later in the same period. Five plays, including a 15-yard pass from White to George Sefcik, put the ball on the 3 and Crotty took it over on a plunge.

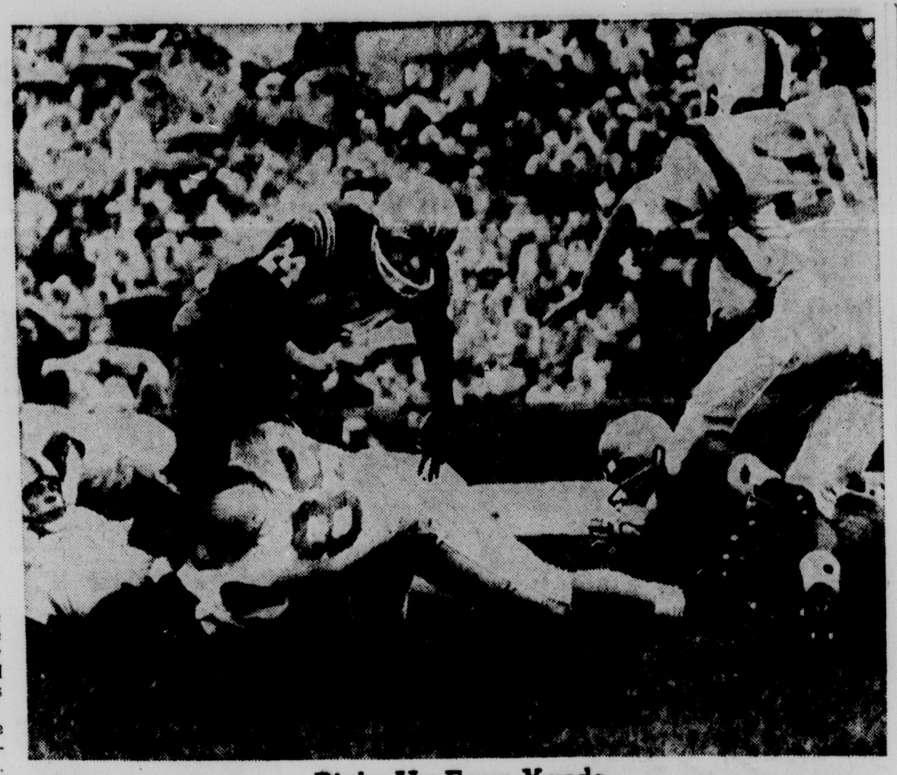
Notre Dame, which used the T formation with variations in its first half offensive touchdown drives, turned the scoring over to an alert defense in the last half.

Monty Stickles, a tall end, blocked Henry Clement's punt behind the goal line and the ball bounded out of the end zone for a safety.

Then Ray Ratkowski intercepted a pass by Wade Smith and galloped 43 yards for a TD.

North Carolina put on a sustained 65-yard drive late in the fourth period. The big booster was a 29 yard pass from Ray Farris to Dan Lotz. Moyer Smity plunged the final yard for the TD.

Notre Dame rolled up 223 yards rushing and 86 passing. North Carolina was held to 100 yards on the ground and 60 in the air in a game played in intermittent rain.



Picks Up Four Yards

Notre Dame halfback Jim Crotty (24) comes through the line to pick up four yards in the first quarter against North Carolina yesterday. Rabe Walton (85), North Carolina end, makes a shoestring tackle to stop Crotty. At right is Lenny Beck (30), North Carolina halfback. (AP Wirephoto)

Indiana Sophs Master Illini Is 20-0 Scrap

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Indiana hauled the cover off a five crop of sophomores Saturday and defeated fumbling Illinois 20-0 in the Big Ten football opener for both teams. Rain poured all afternoon.

Ted Smith, veteran Indiana tailback, knocked Illinois off balance with a 51-yard runback of the opening kickoff, scored 10 plays later from the Illini 1 and then let the sophomores strut.

Willie Hunter, a 195-pound tailback from Memphis, plowed 16 yards the first time he got the ball and tallied Indiana's second touchdown from the Illini 7 at the start of the second quarter.

John Henry Jackson, another sophomore tailback from Columbus, Ga., passed 18 yards to junior Earl Faison for the Hoosiers' last touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Senior Ron Miller kicked extra points on the first and third touchdowns but missed on the middle one. He had to boot the first one from the 28-yard line after a Hoosier penalty.

Illinois lost the ball five times on fumbles and twice on interceptions. Indiana never gave up the ball except to punt, and it used the quick kick to deadly advantage.

Then there would be another day for travel, assuming the issue was still in doubt, and the Series would return to Chicago for a sixth and possibly even a seventh game.

If Milwaukee is in the Series the same pattern will be followed but there will be no time off for travel.

For Chicago this series is charged with emotion. It was 40 years ago that a White Sox team last won the American pennant and that one turned out to be the most notorious of all baseball teams—the Black Sox of tainted memory. Now a fast, slick fielding, light hitting team of assorted youngsters and oldsters is out to erase the stain.

It's a team that is strong down the middle, where baseball men say teams must be strong.

Behind the plate is Sherman Lollar, the best long ball hitter on the club. On the mound are Early Wynn, a veteran right - hander; Bob Shaw, a youngster of great promise; and Billy Pierce and Dick Donovan with Turk Lown and Gerry Staley in the bullpen.

But the pride of the Sox is centered on the second-base combination of Nelson Fox at second and the agile Luis Aparicio at short. Jim Landis in centerfield completes the middle combination.

As usual, the Series games will be televised and broadcast starting daily at 12:45 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, for those in Chicago; at 1:45 p.m., for those in Milwaukee; and at 3:45 p.m. if played on the Coast.

Spahn Hurls Braves Past Phils; Lead Deadlocked

By JACK HAND

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Warren Spahn, Milwaukee's old dependable meal ticket, boosted the Braves into a first place tie with Los Angeles Saturday in the torrid National League race. Spahn's 3-2 victory over Philadelphia's Robin Roberts in a tight pitching duel pulled the Braves even with one game to go.

Spahn's victory, No. 267 of his illustrious career, set a record for left-handers in the National League. It topped the old mark held by Eppa Rixey that the 38-year-old southpaw tied Monday night in Pittsburgh.

While the Braves were easing out this thinly cut decision over the last-place Phils, the Dodgers were reeling around Wrigley Field, as the Chicago Cubs battered their pitchers.

San Francisco still had a chance to tie if they won their last three games and the Braves and Dodgers lose Sunday.

Just as the Braves dashed from their dugout to start the game, it was reported that Al Dark of the Cubs had hit a three-run homer against the Dodgers at Wrigley Field.

When the Dodgers absorbed a 12-2 pasting at the hands of the Chicago Cubs, Milwaukee regained the ground it had lost Friday night in dropping the series opener to the last-place Phillies.

All afternoon the radios scattered through the stands brought back glad tidings from Chicago and more and more runs by the Cubs. When the game finally ended at County Stadium with a light rain falling, the Dodgers were losing by a 12-2 score with time called for rain after seven innings.

Spahn allowed only two hits in the first five innings but they were home runs by Gene Freese and Wally Post so he was fortunate to be tied with Roberts at that stage. An unearned run had pulled the Braves even in the fourth on a wild peg by Freese.

As the game wore on, Spahn seemed to get stronger. Although he was pulled out of a deep jam in the seventh by fine defensive play and saved again by a nice play by shortstop Johnny Logan, he finished with a flourish.

After Milwaukee finally crashed through for a third run off Roberts in the last of the eighth, Spahn struck out both Eddie Bouchee and Post and made Freese loft a game-ending fly ball to Lee Maye in left.

Singles by Eddie Mathews and Hank Aaron, a sacrifice bunt by Joe Adcock and an intentional walk to Maye loaded the bases against Roberts in the eighth. The tie-breaking run scored as Bobby Avila forced Maye at second, Mathews scoring.

Thus the sizzling race came right down to the final day of the season. The Braves finish at County Stadium against the last-place Phillies and the Dodgers wind up at Chicago. If the teams are tied after Sunday's games they will start a best-of-three playoff Monday afternoon in Milwaukee.

Manager Eddie Sawyer of the Phils named right-hander Jim Owens (12-11) to pitch the last game. He has a 1-0 record against Milwaukee. Manager Fred Haney if the Braves was undecided but was expected to name right-hander Bob Buhl (14-9) who holds a 17-8 lifetime edge over the Phils.

Roberts and Spahn battled through the cloudy afternoon as the Phils and Braves matched runs in the second and fourth innings. Freese, who hit a three-run homer in Friday night's 6-3 Philadelphia victory, came through with his 23rd homer with the bases empty in the second. It was his sixth against the Braves.

Milwaukee came right back in its half of the inning when Maye doubled off the right field fence, took third on Avila's sacrifice and scored on Logan's single to center.

Post put the Phils out front again when he hit a Spahn pitch over the left center field fence with two out and nobody on in the fourth.

The Braves tied it with an unearned run in the fourth. Avila doubled down the left field line and scored when Freese threw over Bouchee's head after fielding Del Crandall's grounder.

Spahn escaped serious trouble in the seventh after Post doubled off the fence in left center and Freese walked with nobody out. Del Crandall picked Post off second base with a perfect peg to Logan who held the ball for the putout although he was knocked down by Post's charge. Dave Philley then popped up and Maye made a running catch of George Anderson's drive.

Then came the break in the eighth when Mathews and Aaron singled. Adcock's sacrifice bunt moved the runners along and Maye was walked intentionally.

When Avila forced Maye at second, Mathews scored with the winning run.

Logan who returned to the starting line - up Friday night after missing six games due to an infected toe, had a great day in the field. In addition to the pickoff of Post in the seventh, he went deep to his right into the hole to get Joe Koppe's grounder in time to force Roberts, who had singled in the eighth.

5 TD'S ON 5 ERRORS

Huskers Enjoy Gopher Fumbles

By JIM KLOBUCHAR

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Underdog Nebraska feasted on Minnesota fumbles and boomeranging passes Saturday for a 32-12 victory at sodden Memorial Stadium behind the three-touchdown salvo of Clay White.

The tough, alert Cornhuskers reduced the Gophers to jittery inceptness and turned Gopher mistakes into five touchdowns. In the process they wrecked the heralded debut of Gopher sophomore quarterback Sandy Stephens, who fumbled four times and had a pass intercepted.

White, a stumpy, churning runner, scored on runs of 34 and four yards and on a three-yard pass from Harry Tolly. Pat Fischer and Tolly got the other Nebraska touchdowns.

Underdogs by 10 points, the Huskers spotted Minnesota a first period touchdown and then struck for two quick scores midway through the second period for a 13-12 halftime lead. White took over after intermission to score three times, his 34-yard cutback scamper in the fourth period breaking the Gophers' back.

Minnesota fumbled eight times and lost the ball on five occasions. They also had two passes intercepted that led to Nebraska touchdowns.

Although he pitched a 19 yard touchdown pass, scored on a 55-yard return of an intercepted pass and carried a kickoff 78 yards, Stephens had an unhappy day.

Two of his fumbles and one of his intercepted passes preceded Nebraska touchdowns. Another fumble, on the Nebraska 3 cost Minnesota an apparent touchdown.

Cornell Rallies To Nip Colgate

HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP) — A tightly played game broke wide open in the fourth period here Saturday as Cornell, almost down to its last out, rallied for a 20-13 opening victory over Colgate.

The pacesetter for three periods, Cornell needed a gallant last ditch rally to nip an aroused Colgate club that sprang to life in the fourth period and moved ahead with 5:26 to play.

As some 10,000 spectators stood shrieking the Big Red drove 80 yards in 18 plays, scoring on a fourth down pass with 19 seconds remaining. The toss went into the right flat from quarterback Marcello Tino to fullback Phil Taylor, who barely made it 6 yards into the end zone against Raider defenders.

Colgate ripped 59 and 56 yards earlier in the fourth period to score twice in their first real show of strength.

TEXAS A&M, 9-7

Aggie Milstead Stuns Spartans

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—A senior engineering student from Texas A&M out-engineered a statiscally - superior Mighigan State football team Saturday to give the Texans a 9-7 victory.

The loss shattered Michigan State's hopes of making a comeback this year after finishing in the Big Ten basement with a disappointing record last season.

Almost single-handedly Texas A&M quarterback Charley Milstead outsmarted the Spartans to put his team into an early lead. Then he rallied his teammates to hold off a determined but futile effort by Michigan State late in the game.

Milstead set up the only Texas touchdown early in the game with a quick kick from his own 22 the first time the Aggies got their hands on the ball.

After Milstead's quick kick, Michigan State was unable to get out of its own territory and, when the Augies took over, the senior quarterback moved his team to the one-yard line, scoring himself on a plunge with 39 seconds remaining in the period.

The clincher was a field goal by right half Randy Sims from the 21 early in the second quarter.

Michigan State's Art Brandstetter failed on field goal attempts from the 35 and the 16 in the second quarter.

Michigan State failed to score three times when they got inside the Aggies 20 in the third quarter but came to life mid way in the third period.

The Spartans struck with a 66-yard drive that produced a touchdown when fullback Blanche Martin plunged over from the one, capping a 14-play drive, sparked by the running of halfback Herb Adderley.

Stanford Sags To Wisconsin Thrusts, 16-14

MADISON, Wis., (AP) — Wisconsin's highly touted football machine combined bruising power and alertness for a 16-14 victory over Stanford Saturday in a game turned into a mud bath by a second half downpour.

Junior fullback Tom Weisner scored two touchdowns on short line smashes and Karl Holzwarth booted a 26-yard field goal as the Badgers launched their 1959 campaign to the cheers of 41,892 fans at Camp Randall Stadium.

After Weisner's second touchdown, on a four-yard slant off left tackle in the third period, Stanford broke into the scoring column on the brilliant passing of Dick Norman.

The slick quarterback lobbed a high pass to Chris Burford for a 54-yard scoring play at the nine minute mark of the third quarter.

Then, with the rain still so heavy it resembled snow, Norman directed his charges on a 72-yard touchdown mark in the closing minutes. Fullback Skip Face capped the advance by skirting left end from two yards out.

Wisconsin's first touchdown came after recovery of a fumble. A pickoff of a fumble in mid-air by Dale Hackbart started the drive that ended with Holzwarth's field goal. The second touchdown was pushed across after Weisner stole the ball from Burford who had taken a pass from Norman.

3 Second Half TDs Bag Wake Forest Victory

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Wake Forest's dashing football Deacons exploded for three second half touchdowns Saturday to wallop Virginia Tech 27-18.

In winning its second game, while handing Tech its second loss Wake Forest came alive with a vengeance after a sluggish first half that ended with Tech leading 18-7.

A 70-yard scoring march in the third quarter and another of equal length in the fourth put Wake Forest ahead. The Deacons iced it by covering 48 yards in the closing minutes after Tech gambled on a fourth and one situation and lost the ball on downs.

Jockey Killed When Thrown From Mount

ASCOT, England AP) — Manny Mercer, one of Britain's leading jockeys, was thrown from his mount and killed at the start of a race at Ascot Saturday.

Mercer, who had ridden in the United States, was unseated from his mount, Priddy Fair, just before the start of the Red Deer Handicap. It was thought he was kicked in the face as he fell.

He was taken to a track first aid room and a few minutes later a doctor came out and told Trainer Harry Wragg, Mercer's father-in-law, that the jockey was dead. Wragg walked away with tears streaming down his face.

"No one appears to know quite what happened," said Trainer Jack Jarvis, for whose stable Mercer rode. "I have been told that the horse whipped around and threw Mercer against the rails."

Mercer won the first running of the Washington D.C. International race ot Laurel, Md., in 1952 with the British horse, Wilwyn. He rode Wilwyn again in the 1953 International but the horse finished out of the money.

Penn Crushes Lafayette, 26-0

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jack Hanlon ran 33 yards for a touchdown and Penn capitalized on Lafayette fumbles for three other scores Saturday to win with unexpected ease 26-0.

The Ivy Leaguers dominated so completely that Lafayette never moved beyond the Penn 39-yard line. It was Penn's first opening game win since 1953.

Virginia Feels Clemson Teeth In 47-0 Rout

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI) Ninth-ranked Clemson, paced by halfback Bill Mathis and substitute quarterback Lowndes Shingler covered 204 yards in four scoring plays Saturday in a 47-0 rout of Virginia before 13,000 fans.

Mathis took a 10-yard pass from quarterback Harvey White and sprinted 44 yards for one touchdown and added another with a 45 - yard end run climaxed by a neat dodge of Virginia's last defender.

Shingler, White's fill - in, fired two touchdown passes in plays covering 52 and 53 yards, respectively, as the Tigers handed the Cavaliers their worst setback since 1943 when Duke won a 49-0 romp.

Clemson's other three touchdowns came on short runs including a two - yard dash by third-string fullback Hal Knott who set it up with a 40-yard ramble to the Virginia six.

The victory, accomplished with near - ridiculous ease, followed Clemson's 20-18 win over North Carolina last week and gave the Tigers an early inside track on the Atlantic Coast Conference championship.

The Tigers, stymied at first by an unexpectedly tough Virginia line, switched to the air with White and Shingler shuttling back and forth at the quarterback slot and cracking the Cavalier secondary repeatedly.

The first pass attempt was White's touchdowns pitch to Mathis on the third play of the game.

Clemson, alternating three wave of backs, started to roll after a sluggish second period. The Tigers rammed through four touchdowns in the third period, including Mathis' long sprint and two short, crushing drives which followed Virginia fumbles.

Halfback George Usry rambled 5 yards to score after the Tigers grabbed a Cavalier fumble on the Virginia 27. Virginia fumbled again after receiving the kickoff and Clemson coasted 31 yards in five plays with third-string halfback Jim Wilson scoring from the three.

One Virginia drive reached Clemson's 18 but abruptly ended before a charging Tiger line. The Cavliers only reached Clemson territory once more, making it to the Tiger 46 in the third period where they promptly lost the ball.

Bosox Stop Senators On Homers, 5-4

BOSTON (AP) — Jackie Jensen lashed a home run high into the left field screen with two men out in the 11th inning Saturday to bring the Boston Red Sox a 5-4 decision over Washington.

Jensen forced the game into extra innings with a two-run double in the ninth as Boston surged from behind with a three - run burst off Camilo Pascual and tied it 4-4.

His 11th inning home run, off Bill Fischer (9-11), was his 28th. His three runs batted in gave him 112 for the season and pushed him into the American League lead.

Harmon Killebrew's 41st home run, a three-run blast high off the left field light tower, powered Washington out to a 4-1 lead before Boston rallied.

Nelson Chittum, who came on in the 10th, got credit for the win, his third without a loss.

SMASHING DEFEAT

Wildcats Crush Oklahoma Behind Burton, Thornton

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

EVANSTON (AP)—Dick Thornton's heady quarterbacking and passing, and Ron Burton's electrifying runs Saturday charged up Northwestern for a shattering 45-13 defeat of Oklahoma, the nation's second-ranked football team.

It was the Sooners' worst licking since Oklahoma A&M handed them a 47-0 trouncing in 1945. It also marked the worst Oklahoma drubbing under Coach Bud Wilkinson—the previous being a 34-13 setback by Texas in 1947, Wilkinson's first year.

The second quarter of the nationally televised game before a capacity crowd of 50,000 was played in a near cloudburst.

In the curtain of rain that at times obliterated the field, both sides packed the game's highlights into the quarter.

Oklahima scored a touchdown on a 45-yard thrust in 11 plays that cut Northwestern's lead to 13-7. The score came on a hoopla pass involving three of the five Sooner regulars stricken two days ago with food poisoning.

From the Northwestern 7, Bobby Boyd slipped a backward pass to Jim Carpenter, who tossed to Brewster Hobby in the end zone. Jim Davis, another of those who had been sick, booted the extra point.

All regular players who had the gastric upset played most of the game.

Northwestern, rated No. 10, then scored twice to clamp a lid on the outcome with a 27-7 halftime bulge, spoiling Wilkinson's first venture against a Big Ten team since taking over at Oklahoma.

Halfback Burton slashed 62 yards for a touchdown. Later, Wayne Chamberlain recovered an Oklahoma fumble by Jackie Holt on the Sooners' 8. The first play, Thornton passed to Paul Yanke—a dripping, blurred figure in the end zone.

A Thornton run and a Thornton pass failed for the extra two points after each touchdown.

Bull Stalwart Of Baylor's 15-7 Triumph

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Sophomore Ronnie Bull jarred his way to a 74-yard broken field tiuchdown run and caught a 10-yard scoring pass to give the speedy Baylor Bears a 15-7 football victory over Colorado Saturday.

The Bishop, Tex., halfback was the Baylor star, running, catching passes and playing great pass defense.

The Bears, playing their season opener under new Coach John Bridgers, were jittery and green in the first period, but gained poise in the final three quarters, soundly outplaying the Coloradoans.

Colorado scored first midway in the first period. The touchdown was set up by a Baylor fumble on the Bears' 3. Two plays later quarterback Gale Weidner sneaked over from the 1. Joe Dowler converted.

Baylor took the lead in the second period on Bull's brilliant run that started over a guard position from scrimmage. A pass from quarterback Ronnie Stanley to halfback Tommy Minter gave Baylor a two-point conversion and an 8-7 lead.

Early in the third period Stanley and Bull played pitch and catch to score again for the Bears. With Stanley throwing and Bull the receiver, the Bear team moved to the Colorado 10. From this point Bull took a Stanley pass in the end zone for his second touchdown.

Harvard Trips Massachusetts

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A well-balanced Harvard football team had its own way for three periods Saturday in a 36-22 win over the University of Massachusetts but the inspired Redmen came back with three touchdowns in the fourth period to make it a real thriller.

Syracuse In 35-21 Victory Over Kansas

By JAMES KOCH
Associated Press Staff Writer

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Syracuse's football team unleashed a mighty ground game and surprising passing Saturday to wear down battling Kansas 35-21 despite two touchdowns by brilliant sophomore Johnny Hadl.

Hadl returned a kickoff 97 yards and twice surprised Syracuse with quick kicks of 63 and 59 yards to keep the Jayhawkers in a game where Syracuse commanded virtual control of the ball.

Helped by its massive line, Syracuse rolled for 32 first downs to four for the sophomore-studded Kansans.

Syracuse finally broke loose for four touchdowns in the second half after Kansas capitalized on a fumble and Hadl's run to lead 15-12 midway in the third period.

Quarterback Ger Schwedes slammed over from the 6 - inch line and again from the 3 to put syracuse ahead for keeps early in the fourth quarter. Syracuse led by 20 points, 35-15, before Hadl scored from the 12 with three minutes remaining.

MEREDITH SHINES

Wells' Boots Spur Tech To Upset Win Over SMU

By DAVID M. MOFFIT

ATLANTA (UPI) — Placekick specialist Tommy Wells' 28-yard fourth period field goal and a second period extra point stole the shine from a Don Meridith-Fred Braselton passing duel Saturday and gave Georgia Tech a 16-12 upset triumph over SMU.

SMU's Meredith and Tech's Braselton each threw a pair of touchdown passes. The Mustangs from the Southwest appeared goalward-bound in the last two minutes of play until Tech guard Jack Moss intercepted a Meredith pass.

This insured the second victory of the season for the always-tough Engineers and their first in Atlanta, a "jinx" gridiron for SMU. A crowd of 44,000 fans watched to the end, delighting in two stubborn goal line stands by Tech in the first half.

Even in the fading seconds of play, the game's thrills weren't over. Mustang halfback Frank Jackson took a punt on his three-yard line and returned 50 yards, almost breaking into the clear at the final gun.

Meredith lived up to billing, completing 15 of 23 passes for 191 yards. He passed 22 yards to Jackson and 37 to halfback Glynn Gregory for SMU's two touchdowns in the second period. Two other apparent touchdown passes, one early in the first period and the other early in the second, were dropped.

Braselton completed seven of 11 passes for 73 yards and ran for 58 more. He completed five of seven for 50 yards late in the second period as he drove Tech to its first touchdown. The score came on a 13-yard pass from Braselton to end Jim Powell.

Tech marched 70 yards midway through the third period for its second touchdown. Braselton set up the score with a 33-yard run, then passed 10 yards to end Fred Murphy for the touchdown.

This was the finale in a 10-game series between Tech and SMU. Tech won the series with a 7-2-1 mark and maintained its record of never losing to the Mustangs here.

Southern Methodist had a scoring opportunity at the start of the game when Tech fumbled the kickoff. But the Tech defense held on its six yard line and Meredith's field goal attempt was wide.

The Mustangs marched 77 yards to the Tech four, mainly on a 50-yard pass from quarterback Ken Lowe to halfback Tirey Wilemon, but Tech held again. The third time the Mustangs got close, Meredith was not to be denied.

Georgia Topples Vanderbilt, 21-6

By GEORGE BAYLESS

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — Fred Brown, a sophomore halfback from Atlanta who went AWOL from the squad for several days last week, scored one touchdown and set up another Saturday to lead the University of Georgia to a 21-6 victory over Vanderbilt.

A crowd of 31,000 watched the Georgia Bulldogs rack up their second consecutive Southeastern Conference decision and their first victory over Vandy in four years.

Francis Tarkenton, Georgia's No. 2 quarterback, tossed a 32-yard pass to Brown midway in the first period that carried to the Vandy 20. Tarkenton scored from the three after Brown picked up 13 around end and old reliable Bill Godfrey plowed for 3.

Godfrey applied the clincher for the Bulldogs in the fourth period. Georgia drove from the Vandy 43 and Godfrey made a three - yard jump over the middle of the line to score. Durward Pennington converted for his third straight good kick.

Godfrey also produced a 33-yard runback of a Vanderbilt kickoff after the Commodores scored their only touchdown. An 11 - yard pass from Vandy quarterback Jim McKee to workhorse Tom Moore early in the fourth period brought the Commodores, tally.

The Tarkenton-to-Brown passing combination, which netted 75 yards in the first half, kept the Commodores off balance all afternoon.

In the second period Tarkenton hit Brown for 21 yards to set up Georgia's second score. Godfrey got three and then Tarkenton hit Brown with a 21-yard pass for a touchdown.

The Commodores' only offensive spurt came when tackle Larry Wagner recovered Tommy Lewis' fumble on the Georgia 28. This was followed up by Moore's touchdown pass from McKee early in the fourth period.

Georgia's ends, Gorden Kelly and Jimmy Vickers, kept Vandy contained on the outside series.

Brown left the Georgia squad for personal reasons a week before the Alabama game and was declared AWOL by Coach Wally Butts.

Score by Periods

Georgia	7	7	0	7	—21
Vanderbilt	0	0	0	6	—6

Scoring Summary:

Georgia — Tarkenton 3 run (Pennington kick); Brown 21 pass from Tarkenton (Pennington kick) Godfrey 3 run (Pennington kick).

Vanderbilt — More 11 pass from McKee (kick failed).

Ohio State Aerials Beat Duke, 14-13

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio State's ground-eating Buckeyes were forced into the airways Saturday to pull out a 14-13 victory over Duke's Blue Devils in an intersectional game before 82,834.

The defeat wrecked Duke's tradition of never having lost to a Big Ten team. After Ohio State had scored on its first attempt, going 59 yards in eight plays to send sophomore halfback Bob Ferguson in for a score the game was a drab affair until the explosive fourth quarter when Duke scored twice and Ohio once.

The Buckeyes, who seldom use an aerial attack, won the game with 1:51 to play on a 23-yard pass from second-string quarterback Tom Matte to second-string end Charles Bryant. After Duke had gone ahead 13-7 with about four minutes to play Ohio marched 64 yards in nine plays for the winner. The score came on a fourth down do-or-die pass after Matte had hit Bryant for 16 yards and Jim Herbstreit for 15.

Jack Wilson, a 20-year-old sophomore from Raleigh, N. C., sparked Duke to its first score as he ate up 57 yards in seven tries, the last six in a row for the score. He went in from the 3-yard line to make it Ohio 7, Duke 6. The gambling Blue Devils tried a pass for a two-point conversion but it failed.

Southern U. At Grambling Next Saturday

GRAMBLING, La. (Special) — It took eleven years, but Grambling and Southern and ready to add another chapter to football's over stocked tome of grippig events.

A crowd of 20,000 — one of the largest in small-college football — will watch the arch foes premier here next Saturday night, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Under ordinary circumstances picking a winner would be a thankless task. However, Grambling's wide-open defense can't match Southern's wide-open attack, and the Jaguars are conceivably a touchdown or two better.

The Tigers are opposed to this theory. They have sustained incentive and one of the best backfields in the school's history is raring to have responsiblity heaped on its shoulders.

All-American Jamie Caleb, Curtis Cotton, Samuel Preston and Henry Johnson can offer strong offensive arguments, but early defensive improvement is manditory. Grambling is short on experienced linemen in all direction

Coach Eddie Robinson has a squad composed of 22 freshmen, 19 sophomores, nine juniors and four seniors. Robbie feels that the boys are at least a year away from full development.

Southern ranked second nationally last fall and should romp home unscathed this season.

All-American quarterback John Thomas will plot the general strategy on the field and devil the Tigers with his sensational passing and ball handling.

Thomas and his understudy Cyrus Lancaster accounted for 1,926 yards in 1958. Both are quick, cool and almost unstoppable.

Coach Arnett Mumford plans to alternate two rapid-fire units against Grambling. Both are strong on defense, but this phase of Southern's play is generally overshadowed by colorful offense.

Al Lands 7 On Sporting News Squad

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The American League took seven of the ten places on a rookie all-star baseball team announced Saturday by The Sporting News.

The two pitchers named to the squad were Jim Perry of Cleveland and Jerry Casale of Boston.

The other American Leaguers are outfielders Bob Allison of Washington, Jim McAnany of the Chicago White Sox and Russ Snyder of Kansas City, third baseman Jim Baxes of Cleveland, and catcher John Romano of the White Sox.

The National League rookies are first baseman Willie McCovey of San Francisco, and the Philadelphia double play combination of shortstop Joe Koppe and second baseman George Anderson.

ATHLETIC FAMILY

Hintons Standard Equipment At Tech

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Will Louisiana Tech's football team ever run out of those hard-hitting Hintons?

That is a question Bulldog opponents have probably asked the past few years because there have been from one to three outstanding gridders by the name of Hinton in the Tech line each season for the last seven years.

The 1959 season is no exception as the number one Tech unit features two stalwart Hintons playing side by side. Holding down the left guard position is Joe Hinton and next to him at left tackle is a cousin, Bobby Hinton, both Ruston students.

Both Joe and Bobby come from football families. Two brothers preceded Joe on the Bulldog team and they left impressive records. They were Pat, who started the present Hinton span in 1953, and Tommy, who arrived the following year. These two formed a pair of the finest tackles ever to don a Tech uniform.

Each was team co-captain his senior year and each was named to numerous All-Gulf States Conference teams. Both Pat and Tommy landed spots on Williamson Rating System's Mid-Bracket All-American first team and Tommy played in the annual Blue-Gray grid game at Montgomery, Ala., in Dec. 1957.

Tackle Bobby Hinton also comes by football naturally. He is the son of Berry Hinton, Tech's baseball coach who played halfback for the Bulldogs from 1927 until 1929. Coach Hinton also lettered in baseball and basketball, was captain of the 1930 basketball team and won a spot on the All-Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association cage team. Bobby's brother, Dickie, was an outstanding infielder for the Techmen and was named to the All-GSC baseball team in 1955.

A 195-pound junior who carries his weight well, Joe Hinton lettered as a freshman in 1957 and again last fall. He's a fellow who can always be counted on to do his part and more too. Although he is lighter than his brothers Pat and Tommy, Joe is considered by Tech fans to be just as good as his two brothers who left him an excellent record at which to shoot. Last year Joe was selected to the All-GSC third team. At Ruston High School he played in the backfield.

Bobby Hinton filled at end spot at Ruston High and continued in that position as a Tech freshman in 1956. The following year he was switched over to tackle to fill a vacancy there and has done a good job in that place since. The 6-0, 205 pound senior lettered at tackle in 1957 and 1958 and is a mainstay at the left side of the Tech line again this season.

This season rounds out Bobby's fourth one on the squad. Now in his junior season, Joe is slated to be on hand for his old job at guard for the 1960 schedule.

After 1960 Tech will likely run out of Hintons but it will be a long time before their prowess on the gridiron will be forgotten. The Hintons had a big hand in helping the Bulldogs win the Gulf States Conference football championship or co-championship in 1953, 1955, 1957 and 1958.

Belkas, Firpo Again Clash For Crown

State heavyweight champion Chris Belkas and challenger Firpo Zybysko continue their tug of war for the crown in the main event of a three - card attraction at the B&B Arena Monday night.

Belkas put his title on the line against Firpo last week here and after a full hour, neither grappler was able to win a single fall. The bout was declared a draw and Belkas kept a firm hold on the championship.

This time, the time limit has been extended to 90 minutes with two falls needed to win.

Things got a bit rough between the two brawlers last week. In the slam - bang affair, several slats were broken under the ring floor.

A special event pitting Bill Barney and Carlos Mendoza will precede the championship scrap. Popular Bill of West Monroe tangle with the Mexico City native over a 45- minute limit.

Jerry Miller and Duke Scarbo start the night's action with a 20-minute warmup.

Dancer Tops Round Table, Hillsdale In Woodward

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Mighty little Sword Dancer from the Brookmeade Stable of Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane won one of the great races of all time Saturday. Eddie Arcaro brought him up along the rail in the final strides to defeat Hillsdale by a head at Aqueduct in the $109,800 Woodward Stakes as Round Table ran third.

A crowd of 53,290, a record for the new $33,000,000 Aqueduct plant, bet the Kerr Stable's Round Table down to 7 to 10 favoritism, but when Sword Dancer entered the winner's circle they cheered him like the champion he proved himself to be this bright autumn afternoon. Great rounds of applause followed Arcaro and Sword Dancer, only 3-year-old in the race, until they left the track.

Arcaro, the master, gave one of his finest exhibitions of horsemanship as he laid off the pace set by C. W. Smith's Hillsdale. Round Table was second until they hit the stretch, where Sword Dancer went into a drive that first put away the world's greatest money winning horse.

But, there was Hillsdale still out in front, and the crowd roared as Sword Dancer gradually measured his final rival in what turned out to be just what was expected —a three horse race.

Actually, four started, but the D&M's Stable's Inside Tract was never in the act, and finished fourth, five lengths behind Round Table, ridden by Willie Shoemaker.

Hillsdale, the top money winning horse of the year, was ridden by Tommy Barrow, and he made Sword Dancer show his fighitng heart and forced Arcaro to exhibit every riding trick he ever learned.

Having won the Aqueduct Handicap on opening day, Hillsdale had run up a record of seven straight victories, and was 9-for-11 this year with winnings of $480,130. He started as second choice at odds of $2.40 for $1.

Only straight and place betting was allowed, and Sword Dancer returned $7.80 and $4. Hillsdale paid $3.70 to place.

The time for the 1¼ miles was 2:04 2-5. This was a record for the new track, two weeks old. Castlestone set the mark of 2:05 4-5 two days ago.

This was the third time Sword Dancer had whipped older horses. The handsome chestnut son of Sunglow-Highland Fling beat them in the Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont and the Monmouth Park Handicap. He also whipped horses of his own age in the Belmont Stakes and the Travers, after finishing second in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness.

Turning for home at the head of the stretch with a quarter mile to go, Hillsdale led Round Table by a head, and Sword Dancer, two lengths back moved inside to the rail. It was suddenly evident that Round Table didn't have it. He tired, and slowly gave way.

But all eyes were on Hillsdale, who kept his head in front of the oncoming Sword Dancer an eighth of a mile out. Suddenly with a sixteenth of a mile to go, Arcaro began whipping like a windmill. Sword Dancer just managed to get the job done in the final 70 yards.

Sword Dancer carried 120 pounds, the older horses 126 in the weight for age conditions.

Sword Dancer netted $70,170, giving him total winnings of $526,743.

Cadets Trounce Boston College

By TED SMITS

WEST POINT, N.Y., (AP) — Army rolled over Boston College, 44-8, Saturday on four touchdown passes by Joe Caldwell and the hard running of Bob Anderson, Steve Waldrop and Don Donko.

It was Dale Hall's debut as Army football coach. Earl Blaik retired in mid-winter after 18 brilliant years.

This looks like another strong Army team. Conspicious in the offence was the lonely end, originated by Blaik and effectively played by Bill Carpenter.

Army jumped into a 14-0 lead in the first period on two touchdown passes by Caldwell, one for 12 to Carpenter and the other for 7 to Anderson, at which point Jim Sullivan, study Boston sophomore, scared the crowd of 22,500 with a 63-yard kickoff return. He scored moments later on a 24-yard pass from John Amabile.

The Boston Eagles promptly charged to a first down on Army's 7 but Amabile's fumble ended things and from then on Army couldn't be stopped.

Army tallied in the second period on a 42-yard pass from Caldwell to Waldrop, added two more in the third period feature by a 25-yard run by Anderson and a 67-yard gallop by Bonko, and punched over a fourth period counter on a 9-yard pass from Caldwell to Carpenter.

After an initial period of fumbling, Army settled down to its task in the season's opener with grim precision. Only the study little Sullivan could dent Army's strong defense effectively. By way of comparison, Navy defeated Boston College last week 24-8.

Mountaineers Tip Richmond On Field Goal

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) —Johnny Thackston's 34 - yard field goal in the fourth period lifted West Virginia past Richmond, 10-7, Saturday for the Mountaineers' 29th straight Southern Conference football victory.

Thackston's long, low kick sailed over the crossbar shortly after Richmond had stormed 50 yards to gain a 7-7 tie with the heavily favored Mountaineers.

Thackston, 21 - year - old senior placekicking specialist, earlier had made the extra point after fullback Bob Benke smashed over from the three to put the Mountaineers ahead 7-0 in the second period. About 10,000 spectators saw the game played on a hot, sunny day.

The Spiders, sparked by the passing of quarterback Frank Gagliano and the running of slippery halfback Bob Dunnington, erupted with a second half comeback that threatened for a time to produce one of the biggest upsets in Conference Annals.

SECOND-STRINGER STARS

Middies Storm Past W&M, 29-2

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) —An 85-yard run by fullback Joe Matalavage delivered the knockout in a one-two punch Navy threw at William and Mary Saturday for a 29-2 football victory dedicating the new Middie football stadium.

Matalavage, playing on the second unit, took off on his long distance jaunt in the second period to hike Navy's lead to 22-2.

The junior from Mahanoy City, Pa., also scored on a one-yard plunge in the opening period after halfback Joe Bellino of the first unit led off with a 54-yard touchdown jolt.

Second team quarterback Jim Maxfield passed and ran Navy to near the Williams four yard line and took the ball over from a few feet out in the third quarter to wrap up the scoring for Navy's second straight victory.

William and Mary made only one serious attempt to come on a drive of 69 yards starting in the first quarter and carrying over to the second. The Indians from Virginia fumbled a kick from the goal and settled for a safety on a second kick by punter Bellino.

Coach Wayne Hardin of Navy was content to start almost the first game unit rotating the third quarter and sending the third unit to play early. The managers, he changed his mind at midfield as reserve in the last few minutes.

Chatham Hosts Eureka Team In Delta Finals

Chatham hosts Eureka in the first game of the Delta League playoff finals this afternoon.

The finals will be a two-out-three series.

Eureka, third in the regular season, beat Farmerville, 7-2, last Sunday to gain the finals. Jery Lovett was the winning pitcher over Bob Albritton and Ralph Ervin of the winners and Pete Taylor of Farmerville got two hits each.

During the regular season, Chatham finished first.

'PEEK-A-BOO' DEFENSE

Ingemar's Antics Losing Friends

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ingemar Johansson's irresistible offense won him the heavyweight title, but the "peek-a-boo" defense he apparently borrowed from Floyd Patterson isn't earning him any friends.

During a 12-hour stay in New Orleans, the 26-year-old Swedish slammer managed to:

(1) Indicate ex-champ Rocky Marciano is back in training.

(2) Rub a city councilman and local boxing officials the wrong way.

(3) Take a hurried trip to Bourbon Street and a glimpse of the strip tease queens.

He side-stepped questions if he knew Marciano was on top as a future opponent. Marciano was here several weeks ago and all but squelched the thought of any return to the ring.

"All I can say is I know he's back in training," Johansson said.

"Sure I'd like to meet him," he said breaking into a broad smile. "I'd fight anybody for a big gate."

"Yes, I agree with Marciano, it would be a hell of a fight," he added, and he wasn't smiling.

Johansson is skipping around the country in a private plane with his brother Rolf and Detroit industrialist Gustav von Reis, who hails from Johansson's home town of Goteborg, Sweden.

Johansson kept two reporters waiting outside his lavish hotel suite yesterday while he ate breakfast ("that man sho likes that coffee," a waiter said as tray after tray went into the suite).

When he arrived late Thursday night, Johansson all but ignored a welcoming delegation headed by city councilman Paul Burke and several local boxing figures. He told them he was tired and wanted to go directly to bed.

But he gave them the slip when he arrived at the downtown hotel and took in some of the city's better known luminaries, such as Blaze Starr and The Panther Girl, until 4 a.m.

Secretary Emile Bruneau of the Louisiana State Athletic Commission was particularly miffed.

Wells' Boots Spur Tech To Upset Win Over SMU

By DAVID M. MOFFIT

ATLANTA (UPI) — Placekick specialist Tommy Wells' 28-yard fourth period field goal and a second period extra point stole the shine from a Don Meridith-Fred Braselton passing duel Saturday and gave Georgia Tech a 16-12 upset triumph over SMU.

SMU's Meredith and Tech's Braselton each threw a pair of touchdown passes. The Mustangs from the Southwest appeared goalward-bound in the last two minutes of play until Tech guard Jack Moss intercepted a Meredith pass.

This insured the second victory of the season for the always-tough Engineers and their first in Atlanta, a "jinx" gridiron for SMU. A crowd of 44,000 fans watched to the end, delighting in two stubborn goal line stands by Tech in the first half.

Even in the fading seconds of play, the game's thrills weren't over. Mustang halfback Frank Jackson took a punt on his three-yard line and returned 50 yards, almost breaking into the clear at the final gun.

Meredith lived up to billing, completing 15 of 23 passes for 191 yards. He passed 22 yards to Jackson and 37 to halfback Glynn Gregory for SMU's two touchdowns in the second period. Two other apparent touchdown passes, one early in the first period and the other early in the second, were dropped.

Braselton completed seven of 11 passes for 73 yards and ran for 58 more. He completed five of seven for 50 yards late in the second period as he drove Tech to its first touchdown. The score came on a 13-yard pass from Braselton to end Jim Powell.

Tech marched 70 yards midway through the third period for its second touchdown. Braselton set up the score with a 33-yard run, then passed 10 yards to end Fred Murphy for the touchdown.

This was the finale in a 10-game series between Tech and SMU. Tech won the series with a 7-2-1 mark and maintained its record of never losing to the Mustangs here.

Southern Methodist had a scoring opportunity at the start of the game when Tech fumbled the kickoff. But the Tech defense held on its six yard line and Meredith's field goal attempt was wide.

The Mustangs marched 77 yards to the Tech four, mainly on a 50-yard pass from quarterback Ken Lowe to halfback Tirey Wilemon, but Tech held again. The third time the Mustangs got close, Meredith was not to be denied.

Score By Periods

Georgia Tech	0	7	6	3	— 16
SMU	0	12	0	0	— 12

Scoring Summary:

SMU — Jackson 22 pass from Meredith (kick failed); Gregory 37 pass from Meredith (run failed).

Georgia Topples Vanderbilt, 21-6

By GEORGE BAYLESS

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — Fred Brown, a sophomore halfback from Atlanta who went AWOL from the squad for several days last week, scored one touchdown and set up another Saturday to lead the University of Georgia to a 21-6 victory over Vanderbilt.

A crowd of 31,000 watched the Georgia Bulldogs rack up their second consecutive Southeastern Conference decision and their first victory over Vandy in four years.

Francis Tarkenton, Georgia's No. 2 quarterback, tossed a 32-yard pass to Brown midway in the first period that carried to the Vandy 20. Tarkenton scored from the three after Brown picked up 13 around end and old reliable Bill Godfrey plowed for 3.

Godfrey applied the clincher for the Bulldogs in the fourth period. Georgia drove from the Vandy 43 and Godfrey made a three - yard jump over the middle of the line to score. Durward Pennington converted for his third straight good kick.

Godfrey also produced a 33-yard runback of a Vanderbilt kickoff after the Commodores scored their only touchdown. An 11 - yard pass from Vandy quarterback Jim McKee to workhorse Tom Moore early in the fourth period brought the Commodores, tally.

The Tarkenton-to-Brown passing combination, which netted 75 yards in the first half, kept the Commodores off balance all afternoon.

In the second period Tarkenton hit Brown for 21 yards to set up Georgia's second score. Godfrey got three and then Tarkenton hit Brown with a 21-yard pass for a touchdown.

The Commodores' only offensive spurt came when tackle Larry Wagner recovered Tommy Lewis' fumble on the Georgia 28. This was followed up by Moore's touchdown pass from McKee early in the fourth period.

Georgia's ends, Gorden Kelly and Jimmy Vickers, kept Vandy contained on the outside series.

Brown left the Georgia squad for personal reasons a week before the Alabama game and was declared AWOL by Coach Wally Butts.

Score by Periods

Georgia	7	7	0	7	—21
Vanderbilt	0	0	0	6	—6

Scoring Summary:

Georgia — Tarkenton 3 run (Pennington kick); Brown 21 pass from Tarkenton (Pennington kick) Godfrey 3 run (Pennington kick).

Vanderbilt — More 11 pass from McKee (kick failed).

Ohio State Aerials Beat Duke, 14-13

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio State's ground-eating Buckeyes were forced into the airways Saturday to pull out a 14-13 victory over Duke's Blue Devils in an intersectional game before 82,834.

The defeat wrecked Duke's tradition of never having lost to a Big Ten team. After Ohio State had scored on its first attempt, going 59 yards in eight plays to send sophomore halfback Bob Ferguson in for a score the game was a drab affair until the explosive fourth quarter when Duke scored twice and Ohio once.

The Buckeyes, who seldom use an aerial attack, won the game with 1:51 to play on a 23-yard pass from second-string quarterback Tom Matte to second-string end Charles Bryant. After Duke had gone ahead 13-7 with about four minutes to play Ohio marched 64 yards in nine plays for the winner. The score came on a fourth down do-or-die pass after Matte had hit Bryant for 16 yards and Jim Herbstreit for 15.

Jack Wilson, a 20-year-old sophomore from Raleigh, N. C., sparked Duke to its first score as he ate up 57 yards in seven tries, the last six in a row for the score. He went in from the 3-yard line to make it Ohio 7, Duke 6. The gambling Blue Devils tried a pass for a two-point conversion but it failed.

Cadets Trounce Boston College

By TED SMITS

WEST POINT, N.Y., (AP) — Army rolled over Boston College, 44-8, Saturday on four touchdown passes by Joe Caldwell and the hard running of Bob Anderson, Steve Waldrop and Don Donko.

It was Dale Hall's debut as Army football coach. Earl Blaik retired in mid-winter after 18 brilliant years.

This looks like another strong Army team. Conspicious in the offence was the lonely end, originated by Blaik and effectively played by Bill Carpenter.

Army jumped into a 14-0 lead in the first period on two touchdown passes by Caldwell, one for 12 to Carpenter and the other for 7 to Anderson, at which point Jim Sullivan, study Boston sophomore, scared the crowd of 22,500 with a 63-yard kickoff return. He scored moments later on a 24-yard pass from John Amabile.

The Boston Eagles promptly charged to a first down on Army's 7 but Amabile's fumble ended things and from then on Army couldn't be stopped.

Army tallied in the second period on a 42-yard pass from Caldwell to Waldrop, added two more in the third period feature by a 25-yard run by Anderson and a 67-yard gallop by Bonko, and punched over a fourth period counter on a 9-yard pass from Caldwell to Carpenter.

After an initial period of fumbling, Army settled down to its task in the season's opener with grim precision. Only the study little Sullivan could dent Army's strong defense effectively. By way of comparison, Navy defeated Boston College last week 24-8.

Mountaineers Tip Richmond On Field Goal

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) —Johnny Thackston's 34 - yard field goal in the fourth period lifted West Virginia past Richmond, 10-7, Saturday for the Mountaineers' 29th straight Southern Conference football victory.

Thackston's long, low kick sailed over the crossbar shortly after Richmond had stormed 50 yards to gain a 7-7 tie with the heavily favored Mountaineers.

Thackston, 21 - year - old senior placekicking specialist, earlier had made the extra point after fullback Bob Benke smashed over from the three to put the Mountaineers ahead 7-0 in the second period. About 10,000 spectators saw the game played on a hot, sunny day.

The Spiders, sparked by the passing of quarterback Frank Gagliano and the running of slippery halfback Bob Dunnington, erupted with a second half comeback that threatened for a time to produce one of the biggest upsets in Conference Annals.

SECOND-STRINGER STARS

Middies Storm Past W&M, 29-2

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) —An 85-yard run by fullback Joe Matalavage delivered the knockout in a one-two punch Navy threw at William and Mary Saturday for a 29-2 football victory dedicating the new Middie football stadium.

Matalavage, playing on the second unit, took off on his long distance jaunt in the second period to hike Navy's lead to 22-2.

The junior from Mahanoy City, Pa. also scored on a one-yard plunge in the opening period after halfback Joe Bellino of the first unit led off with a 54-yard touchdown jolt.

Second team quarterback Jim Maxfield passed and ran Navy to near the William and Mary goal and took the ball over from a few feet out in the third quarter to wrap up the scoring for Navy's second straight triumph.

William and Mary made only one serious advance. It came on a drive of 63 yards starting in the first quarter and carrying over to the second. The Indians from Virginia fumbled a foot from the goal and settled for a safety on a blocked kick by end Ben Johnson.

Coach Wayne Hardin of Navy was content to coast during the last quarter and permitted his third unit to play about nine minutes. He cleared his bench of miscellaneous reserves in the last few minutes.

Chatham Hosts Eureka Team In Delta Finals

Chatham hosts Eureka in the first game of the Delta League playoff finals this afternoon.

The finals will be a two-out-three series.

Eureka, third in the regular season, beat Farmerville, 7-2, last Sunday to gain the finals. Jery Lovett was the winning pitcher over Bob Albritton and Ralph Ervin of the winners and Pete Taylor of Farmerville got two hits each.

During the regular season, Chatham finished first.

'PEEK-A-BOO' DEFENSE

Ingemar's Antics Losing Friends

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ingemar Johansson's irresistible offense won him the heavyweight title, but the "peek-a-boo" defense he apparently borrowed from Floyd Patterson isn't earning him any friends.

During a 12-hour stay in New Orleans, the 26-year-old Swedish slammer managed to:

(1) Indicate ex-champ Rocky Marciano is back in training.

(2) Rub a city councilman and local boxing officials the wrong way.

(3) Take a hurried trip to Bourbon Street and a glimpse of the strip tease queens.

He side-stepped questions if he knew Marciano was on tap as a future opponent. Marciano was here several weeks ago and all but squelched the thought of any return to the ring.

"All I can say is I know he's back in training," Johansson said.

"Sure I'd like to meet him," he said breaking into a broad smile. "I'd fight anybody for a big gate."

"Yes, I agree with Marciano, it would be a hell of a fight," he added, and he wasn't smiling.

Johansson is skipping around the country in a private plane with his brother Rolf and Detroit industrialist Gustav von Reis, who hails from Johansson's home town of Goteborg, Sweden.

Johansson kept two reporters waiting outside his lavish hotel suite yesterday while he ate breakfast ("that man sho likes that coffee," a waiter said as tray after tray went into the suite).

When he arrived late Thursday night, Johansson all but ignored a welcoming deleg a t i o n headed by city councilman Paul Burke and several local boxing figures. He told them he was tired and wanted to go directly to bed.

But he gave them the slip when he arrived at the downtown hotel and took in some of the city's better known luminaries, such as Blaze Starr and The Panther Girl, until 4 a.m.

Secretary Emile Bruneau of the Louisiana State Athletic Commission was particularly miffed.

"I've been in the company of Rocky Marciano and other champions under s i m i l a r circumstances," he said, "and they've always had time for the press and the man in the street."

The legal entanglements enveloping the heavyweight picture, he said, have him mystified.

"I would like the title kept clean, not engaged with bad people," he said in the press conference. "The title should be kept under fair control, but how it will work I don't know."

His immediate agenda called for a trip to Miami today for business and a visit to his sister, a television show on Oct. 4 (Dinah Shore, NBC) and an exhibition tour of South America probably in December.

The scrip calls for him to do a bit of singing on the TV show.

"But I'm not sure," he said. "I'm a boxer, not a singer. I like to sing but maybe the people would have more fun if I didn't."

Series Umpires Are Appointed

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford C. Frick today named the six umpires who will work in the 1959 World Series.

The American League umpires are Bill Summers, Ed Hurley and John Rice and the National Leaguers Frank Dascoli, Frank Secory and Hal Dixon.

Rice and Dixon are the alternates who will work on the outfield foul lines.

16-HIT BARRAGE

Cubs Drop Bums Into Tie For First With 12-2 Victory

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs, playing the role of spoilers again, dealt Los Angeles a crushing 12-2 defeat Saturday and dropped the Dodgers into a first place tie with Milwaukee.

While the Cubs were scoring 12 times in the first four innings, Milwaukee eked out a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia leaving the Dodgers and Braves tied for first place with each having one game to play.

Milwaukee closes its season at home Sunday with the last-place Phillies while the Dodgers again must contend with the hard-hitting Cubs who stymied San Francisco's pennant chances earlier in the week.

The Cubs pounded out 16 hits and gave right-hander Dave Hillman a comfortable cushion to work on. Before the Dodgers could score on Hillman with a pair of runs in the sixth, the Cubs had manhandled starter Johnny Podres and a string of relievers for a commanding 12-0 lead.

The game was delayed 12 minutes because of rain in the top of the eighth but by then the Dodgers had had their fill from all corners as the Milwaukee final had been posted on the scoreboard.

The Dodgers, who can ill afford to lose Sunday, will send Roger Craig (10-5) against Bob Anderson (12-12) in a battle of right-handers.

The Cubs opened their assault in the second inning when Bobby Thomson, a Dodger destroyer from way back, singled with one out. Art Schult followed with a single and Al Dark homered into the left field bleachers. It was Dark's sixth homer, three of which have been at the expense of Los Angeles.

Podres, the first of six Dodger pitchers, appeared to have settled down in the third when both Tony Taylor and George Altman struck out.

But before Altman made the third out in the inning, the Cubs scored six runs and disposed of Podres and reliever Chuck Churn.

With two out in the third, Lee Walls singled and Ernie Banks was hit by a pitch. Thomson singled Walls home and Schult greeted Churn with a run scoring single. Dark walked to load the bases and Cal Neeman walked to force in a run.

Clem Labine took over the pitching chores but Hillman dropped a single in right for two more runs and Tony Taylor also singled home a run before Altman flied out to end the inning.

The Cubs hammered across three more runs in the fourth inning on singles by Banks, Thomson and Schult, an infield out and a bases loaded walk to Tony Taylor.

Hillman, who was completed only four games this season scored his eighth victory against 11 losses.

He had a two-hitter going until the sixth when the Dodgers scored twice on Sandy Amoros' pinch single. Jim Gilliam's double and a single by Wally Moon.

The Cubs, who finished 12-10 against San Francisco and 10-12 against Milwaukee, now hold an 11-10 edge over the Dodgers.

Touchdown From The Five

Don Horn (30), Iowa fullback, is nailed, but not soon enough, as he scores against University of California in first period of game at Berkeley, Calif., yesterday. He racked his way from the five. Identifiable Iowans: Sherwyn Thorson (66), and Mark Manders (69). No. 61, behind Horn, is California's Don Piestrup. Iowa won, 42-12. (AP Wirephoto)

Wynn, Callison Pace 10-5 Victory

DETROIT (AP) — Early Wynn pitched his 22nd victory Saturday and John Callison batted in five runs with a grand slam homer and a double as the Chicago White Sox defeated the Detroit Tigers 10-5.

Wynn, Chicago's probable choice to pitch the World Series opener, warmed up by working only five innings giving up four hits.

Gerry Staley, who set a club record with his 67th appearance, and Turk Lown followed Wynn to the mound.

Chicago got four runs in the first inning off Jim Proctor, making his first major league start. Callison hit his third home run of the year for four runs off Ray Narleski in the eighth. Bill Goodman added four hits and Jim Landis three to the White Sox 15-hit attack.

Ted Lepcio hit a two-run homer for Detroit off Wynn, and Frank Bolling hit a two-run homer off Lown.

Reds Hand Buccaneers 7-6 Setback

CINCINNATI (AP) — Two-out singles by Vada Pinson and Gus Bell drove in the runs in the ninth inning Saturday that gave the Cincinnati Reds a 7-6 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Until that, the game had been marked by home runs—three by each side.

The decision kept alive Cincinnati's hopes for a fifth place tie with Chicago.

In the deciding ninth, Eddie Kasko's single was followed by a pair of outs and then the singles by Pinson and Bell for two runs. On Pinson's blow, which scored Kasko with the tying run, there also was an error on a throw to the plate.

The Pirates spotted the Reds three first-inning home runs before moving into a lead they held until the ninth.

Johnny Temple, Frank Thomas and rookie Buddy Gilbert hit homers for Cincinnati.

Dick Stuart, R. C. Stevens and Hank Foiles homered for the Pirates.

Lions Romp As Brookins Leads Way

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Hurryin' Harvey Brookins ran wild behind a hard-hitting Columbia line for 14 points and a 21-6 Ivy League football victory over favored Brown Saturday.

Brookins, the 5-foot-8 senior halfback whose speed and power were frustrated by poor blocking a year ago, carried the ball 105 yards in the first half compared to 287 in the 1958 season. His efforts put the Lions ahead 13-6 at intermission.

After that, the Negro pre-medical student, acted as a decoy as the Lions turned to the air lines to complete the upset of Brown which had entered the game a one-touchdown pick.

The smartly drilled Columbia team which had won only two of its previous 18 starts outdid Brown's newly installed side-saddle T with the "muddle huddle" but it was old fashioned blocking and tackling which paid off.

Brookins scored in each of the first two periods from a yard out.

He accounted for 45 of 61 yards as the Lions marched to score with the opening kickoff. When Columbia got the ball at the Brown 24 as a result of a short punt in the second quarter, Brookins sprinted 13 yards on a quick handoff, blocked for Don Savini on a 10-yard smash, then powered into the end zone.

Iowa Smashes Golden Bears By 42-12 Edge

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Mighty Iowa, striking by land and air, smothered California 42-12 Saturday in a Rose Bowl replay that turned into another nightmare for the Bears.

Cal scored after two plays, a 56-yard pass from Larry Parque to Bob Wills and a 10-yard run by Grover Garvin.

The Hawkeyes then took over and steamrollered Coach Pete Elliott's team with an awesome display of running and passing before a crowd of 45,000 in sunny Memorial Stadium.

Olen Treadway and Wilburn Hollis did the Iowa throwing. Ray Jauch, Bob Jeter, Don Horn, Gene Mosley and John Brown did the running and catching. Ends Curt Merz, Don Norton and Jeff Langston also snagged passes from one end of the gridiron to the other.

Horn scored first on a five yard dive, winding up a 10-play, 71-yard drive. The plunging fullback scored again in the third quarter on a three-yard run.

Hollis, Brown and Mosley carried the load for the second score, Hollis running in from the 1.

Jeter and Jauch, both troublesome to Cal in the Rose Bowl debacle, made hash of the Bear line again. Jeter made the third Iowa touchdown on a four-yard dash in the second quarter.

On the next drive, Mosley ran for 20, Hollis hit him for 31 and again for a five-yard touchdown heave.

Early in the fourth quarter, Brown, the Big 10s 440-yard run champion, sprinted 60 yards to pay dirt without a hand laid on him.

The Bears picked up a second touchdown in the third quarter when quarterback Wayne Crow romped 36 yards. Cal's first kick attempt was blocked and a pass conversion try went wild.

Lucas Passes Penn State To 21-0 Win

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) —Penn State quarterback Richie Lucas lived up to his glowing preseason notices, passing for two touchdowns in a 21-0 football victory Saturday over Virginia Military Institute.

The lighter Cadets played a tremendous game from tackle to tackle against State's strong two-platoon legions. The Southerners finally wilted under the pressure of the heavier home team.

Lucas passed for the only score of the first half with less than a minute and a half to play. He spotted John Bozick in the end zone from nine yards out and laid the ball in the receiver's lap. Sam Stellatella place kicked the extra point to give State a 7-0 halftime lead. The Nittany Lions moved 50 yards on four plays for the score.

Lucas, who had a hand in all three state scores, completed 8 of 11 passes for 119 yards.

Sub Halfback Shining Star For Missouri

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Second - string quarterback Bob Haas pushed over from one-yard out to score the winning touchdown in the last two seconds of play Saturday and gave Missouri a 20-15 victory over Michigan.

Michigan, which was playing its first game under new coach Bump Elliott, had kicked a field goal with two minutes and 48 seconds left to take a 15-14 lead.

But Missouri's Tigers, beaten 19-8 last week by Penn State, returned the kickoff to their own 22 - yard line and launched the winning touchdown drive. Behind the passing and running of Haas, Missouri drove to the one-yard line. The big play of that march was a 36-yard pass from Haas to Don Smith which took the ball to the Michigan two.

Left halfback Mel West punched into the line twice for no gain. Then Haas, in a stand-up drive, edged the ball over the goal line with two seconds left on the clock.

A Michigan victory seemed assured a couple of minutes earlier when end John Halstead recovered a fumble on the Missouri 23 and four plays later booted a 22-yard field goal.

Michigan trailed most of the way, however. Wolverine quarterback Stan Noskin had four passes intercepted by the Tiger defense, each one killing off a Michigan drive.

Missouri struck for the first touchdown of the game in an otherwise scoreless first half when West rambled 46 yards up the sidelines midway in the first period.

'FRISCO SACKS CARDS, 4-0

Jones Spins No-Hit Chore To Keep Giants' Hopes Up

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Unpredictable Sam Jones of the still-hopeful San Francisco Giants pitched the second no-hitter of his major league career Saturday night. He throttled the St. Louis Cardinals 4-0 for his 21st victory in a game halted in the eighth inning by high winds and heavy rains.

Jones' magnificent effort in the first game of a scheduled twi - night doubleheader kept alive the Giants' thread-thin chance for a tie in the piping hot National League pennant race.

The second game was postponed and reset as part of a doubleheader Sunday. There were two out in the eighth when play was interrupted.

Bill Rigney's Giants now trail the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Milwaukee Braves—in a dead heat for the National League lead—by 1½ games. They still have two to play while the Dodgers and Braves have one each to go.

The Giants' only hope is for both of the leaders to lose Sunday while San Francisco sweeps a pair from the Red Birds.

The 33-year-old Jones, in the seventh season of a checkered major league pitching career, that includes a nine-inning no-hitter over Pittsburgh in 1955, walked two and struck out five in registering the first no-hitter against the Cards in 40 years.

His only lapses were walks to Joe Cunningham in the first and to Alex Grammas in the sixth.

Only one runner—Grammas — reached second as funnel clouds danced in the area and the storm raced toward the stadium.

Jones had plenty of extra base support in notching his first victory since Sept. 12. Three of his 15 defeats came while he was in quest of victory No. 21.

Willie Mays weighed in with his 34th homer and Willie McCovey hit his 13th.

Mays' homer cleared the left field wall at the 353 - foot mark after Felipe Alou's double play ball erased Jose Pagan, on base with a leadoff single in the first period.

McCovey's single, an error and a walk loaded the bases but Ed Bressoud hit into a force out to end the frame.

Cepeda's double, behind a walk and a forceout, gave the Giants a 2-0 edge in the third. It was only the third extra base hit for last year's NL Rookie of the Year in his last 67 times at bat. All four runs were off starter and loser Vinegar Bend Mizell, now 13-10.

Ernie Briglio came on in the seventh and promptly gave up two runs. He struck out Pagan and Alou, but Stan Musial let Mays' scorcher get through him for a two-base error and then McCovey unloaded his homer to put the Giants ahead 4-0.

Tigers Rout Yankees With Rally In 11th

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Ginsberg's two-run single in the 11th inning started the Baltimore Orioles toward a 7-2 comeback victory over the New York Yankees Saturday. The triumph kept alive Baltimore's chances of sharing fifth place with Boston, which leads by one game with each having one to play.

Eli Grba, third Yankee pitcher, was the loser and Skinny Brown the winner in relief. Ginsberg's single scored Willie Tasby, who had opened the inning with a single, and Billy Gardner, who had doubled, to break a 2-2 tie. Al Pilarcik wrapped it up with a three-run homer after two were out.

Gators Nip State On Blocked Punt

By JIM WARTERS

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — End Dan Edgington scopped up a blocked punt and ran 21 yards for a touchdown and Dick Allen passed for a two-point conversion in the last four minutes of play Saturday for a stirring 14 - 13 Florida victory over Mississippi State before 34,000 fans.

Gator tackle Danny Royal started the thrilling finale by crashing the line to block Bill Schoenrock's punt on State's 41.

Edgington grabbed the bounding ball and raced untouched to the end zone, bringing the Gators to within one point and needing only an extra point to tie it, or a two-pointer to go ahead.

Florida then lined up in pass formation, and Allen, senior quarterback from Atlanta, Ga., tossed a strike to end Perry McGriff in the left corner of the end zone.

Mississippi State, in its opening Southeastern Conference game, was bottled up after the following kickoff and the game ended with Florida driving back onto Maroon territory.

State held a 13-6 lead from midway in the third period on a one-yard plunge by Willie Daniel. The big Maroon line had held the Gators practically paralyzed — Florida failed to penetrate State territory in the second half until after Edgington's sudden game-winning scoring.

It was the second straight Southeastern Conference victory for the Gators and their first against Mississippi State since 1956.

Florida's first touchdown came early in the first period on a four - yard run by Bobby Joe Green, the game's outstanding punter with a 50-yard average in three kicks.

State scored in the second and third period, once on a one-yard plunge by Bobby Bethune and again on a one-yarder by Willie Daniel.

Quarterback Wayne Williamson set up the Gators' first score with two passes for 24 yards to the 16-yard line. Green scored four plays later.

State made its first score on a 60-yard drive, highlighted by a 24-yard keeper play by quarterback Billy Tohill. Bethune set up the touchdown on a 10-yard run and then plunged over.

State drove 76 yards in 16 plays for its final score, which partially was set up by a 15-yard penalty.

16-HIT BARRAGE

Cubs Drop Bums Into Tie For First With 12-2 Victory

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs, playing the role of spoilers again, dealt Los Angeles a crushing 12-2 defeat Saturday and dropped the Dodgers into a first place tie with Milwaukee.

While the Cubs were scoring 12 times in the first four innings, Milwaukee eked out a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia leaving the Dodgers and Braves tied for first place with each having one game to play.

Milwaukee closes its season at home Sunday with the last-place Phillies while the Dodgers again must contend with the hard-hitting Cubs who stymied San Francisco's pennant chances earlier in the week.

The Cubs pounded out 16 hits and gave right-hander Dave Hillman a comfortable cushion to work on. Before the Dodgers could score on Hillman with a pair of runs in the sixth, the Cubs had manhandled starter Johnny Podres and a string of relievers for a commanding 12-0 lead.

The game was delayed 12 minutes because of rain in the top of the eighth but by then the Dodgers had had their fill from all corners as the Milwaukee final had been posted on the scoreboard.

The Dodgers, who can ill afford to lose Sunday, will send Roger Craig (10-5) against Bob Anderson (12-12) in a battle of right-handers.

The Cubs opened their assault in the second inning when Bobby Thomson, a Dodger destroyer from way back, singled with one out. Art Schult followed with a single and Al Dark homered into the left field bleachers. It was Dark's sixth homer, three of which have been at the expense of Los Angeles.

Podres, the first of six Dodger pitchers, appeared to have settled down in the third when both Tony Taylor and George Altman struck out.

But before Altman made the third out in the inning, the Cubs scored six runs and disposed of Podres and reliever Chuck Churn.

With two out in the third, Lee Walls singled and Ernie Banks was hit by a pitch. Thomson singled Walls home and Schult greeted Churn with a run scoring single. Dark walked to load the bases and Cal Neeman walked to force in a run.

Clem Labine took over the pitching chores but Hillman dropped a single in right for two more runs and Tony Taylor also singled home a run before Altman flied out to end the inning.

The Cubs hammered across three more runs in the fourth inning on singles by Banks, Thomson and Schult, an infield out and a bases loaded walk to Tony Taylor.

Hillman, who was completed only four games this season scored his eighth victory against 11 losses.

He had a two-hitter going until the sixth when the Dodgers scored twice on Sandy Amoros' pinch single, Jim Gilliam's double and a single by Wally Moon.

The Cubs, who finished 12-10 against San Francisco and 10-12 against Milwaukee, now hold an 11-10 edge over the Dodgers.

Jones Spins No-Hit Chore To Keep Giants' Hopes Up

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Unpredictable Sam Jones of the still-hopeful San Francisco Giants pitched the second no-hitter of his major league career Saturday night. He throttled the St. Louis Cardinals 4-0 for his 21st victory in a game halted in the eighth inning by high winds and heavy rains.

Jones' magnificent effort in the first game of a scheduled twi - night doubleheader kept alive the Giants' thread-thin chance for a tie in the piping hot National League pennant race.

The second game was postponed and reset as part of a doubleheader Sunday. There were two out in the eighth when play was interrupted.

Bill Rigney's Giants now trail the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Milwaukee Braves—in a dead heat for the National League lead—by 1½ games. They still have two to play while the Dodgers and Braves have one each to go.

The Giants' only hope is for both of the leaders to lose Sunday while San Francisco sweeps a pair from the Red Birds.

The 33-year-old Jones, in the seventh season of a checkered major league pitching career, that includes a nine-inning no-hitter over Pittsburgh in 1955, walked two and struck out five in registering the first no-hitter against the Cards in 40 years.

His only lapses were walks to Joe Cunningham in the first and to Alex Grammas in the sixth.

Only one runner—Grammas — reached second as funnel clouds danced in the area and the storm raced toward the stadium.

Jones had plenty of extra base support in notching his first victory since Sept. 12. Three of his 15 defeats came while he was in quest of victory No. 21.

Willie Mays weighed in with his 34th homer and Willie McCovey hit his 13th.

Mays' homer cleared the left field wall at the 358 - foot mark after Felipe Alou's double play ball erased Jose Pagan, on base with a leadoff single in the first period.

McCovey's single, an error and a walk loaded the bases but Ed Bressoud hit into a force out to end the frame.

Cepeda's double, behind a walk and a forceout, gave the Giants a 2-0 edge in the third. It was only the third extra base hit for last year's NL Rookie of the Year in his last 67 times at bat. All four runs were off starter and loser Vinegar Bend Mizell, now 13-10.

Ernie Briglio came on in the seventh and promptly gave up two runs. He struck out Pagan and Alou, but Stan Musial let Mays' scorcher get through him for a two-base error and then McCovey unloaded his homer to put the Giants ahead 4-0.

Wynn, Callison Pace 10-5 Victory

DETROIT (AP) — Early Wynn pitched his 22nd victory Saturday and John Callison batted in five runs with a grand slam homer and a double as the Chicago White Sox defeated the Detroit Tigers 10-5.

Wynn, Chicago's probable choice to pitch the World Series opener, warmed up by working only five innings giving up four hits.

Gerry Staley, who set a club record with his 67th appearance, and Turk Lown followed Wynn to the mound.

Chicago got four runs in the first inning off Jim Proctor, making his first major league start. Callison hit his third home run of the year for four runs off Ray Narleski in the eighth. Bill Goodman added four hits and Jim Landis three to the White Sox 15-hit attack.

Ted Lepcio hit a two-run homer for Detroit off Wynn, and Frank Bolling hit a two-run homer off Lown.

Reds Hand Buccaneers 7-6 Setback

CINCINNATI (AP) — Two-out singles by Vada Pinson and Gus Bell drove in the runs in the ninth inning Saturday that gave the Cincinnati Reds a 7-6 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Until that, the game had been marked by home runs—three by each side.

The decision kept alive Cincinnati's hopes for a fifth place tie with Chicago.

In the deciding ninth, Eddie Kasko's single was followed by a pair of outs and then the singles by Pinson and Bell for two runs. On Pinson's blow, which scored Kasko with the tying run, there also was an error on a throw to the plate.

The Pirates spotted the Reds three first-inning home runs before moving into a lead they held until the ninth.

Johnny Temple, Frank Thomas and rookie Buddy Gilbert hit homers for Cincinnati.

Dick Stuart, R. C. Stevens and Hank Foiles homered for the Pirates.

Iowa Smashes Golden Bears By 42-12 Edge

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Mighty Iowa, striking by land and air, smothered California 42-12 Saturday in a Rose Bowl replay that turned into another nightmare for the Bears.

Cal scored after two plays, a 56-yard pass from Larry Parque to Bob Wills and a 10-yard run by Grover Garvin.

The Hawkeyes then took over and steamrollered Coach Pete Elliott's team with an awesome display of running and passing before a crowd of 45,000 in sunny Memorial Stadium.

Olen Treadway and Wilburn Hollis did the Iowa throwing. Ray Jauch, Bob Jeter, Don Horn, Gene Mosley and John Brown did the running and catching. Ends Curt Merz, Don Norton and Jeff Langston also snagged passes from one end of the gridiron to the other.

Horn scored first on a five yard dive, winding up a 10-play, 71-yard drive. The plunging fullback scored again in the third quarter on a three-yard run.

Hollis, Brown and Mosley carried the load for the second score, Hollis running in from the 1.

Jeter and Jauch, both troublesome to Cal in the Rose Bowl debacle, made hash of the Bear line again. Jeter made the third Iowa touchdown on a four-yard dash in the second quarter.

On the next drive, Mosley ran for 20, Hollis hit him for 31 and again for a five-yard touchdown heave.

Early in the fourth quarter, Brown, the Big 10s 440-yard run champion, sprinted 60 yards to pay dirt without a hand laid on him.

The Bears picked up a second touchdown in the third quarter when quarterback Wayne Crow romped 36 yards. Cal's first kick attempt was blocked and a pass conversion try went wild.

Lions Romp As Brookins Leads Way

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Hurryin' Harvey Brookins ran wild behind a hard-hitting Columbia line for 14 points and a 21-6 Ivy League football victory over favored Brown Saturday.

Brookins, the 5-foot-8 senior halfback whose speed and power were frustrated by poor blocking a year ago, carried the ball 105 yards in the first half compared to 287 in the 1958 season. His efforts put the Lions ahead 13-6 at intermission.

After that, the Negro pre-medical student, acted as a decoy as the Lions turned to the air lines to complete the upset of Brown which had entered the game a one-touchdown pick.

The smartly drilled Columbia team which had won only two of its previous 18 starts outdid Brown's newly installed side-saddle T with the "muddle huddle" but it was old fashioned blocking and tackling which paid off.

Brookins scored in each of the first two periods from a yard out.

He accounted for 45 of 61 yards as the Lions marched to score with the opening kickoff. When Columbia got the ball at the Brown 24 as a result of a short punt in the second quarter, Brookins sprinted 13 yards on a quick handoff, blocked for Don Savini on a 10-yard smash, then powered into the end zone.

Lucas Passes Penn State To 21-0 Win

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) —Penn State quarterback Richie Lucas lived up to his glowing pre-season notices, passing for two touchdowns in a 21-0 football victory Saturday over Virginia Military Institute.

The lighter Cadets played a tremendous game from tackle to tackle against State's strong two-platoon legions. The Southerners finally wilted under the pressure of the heavier home team.

Lucas passed for the only score of the first half with less than a minute and a half to play. He spotted John Bozick in the end zone from nine yards out and laid the ball in the receiver's lap. Sam Stellatella place kicked the extra point to give State a 7-0 halftime lead. The Nittany Lions moved 50 yards on four plays for the score.

Lucas, who had a hand in all three state scores, completed 8 of 11 passes for 119 yards.

Sub Halfback Shining Star For Missouri

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Second - string quarterback Bob Haas pushed over from one-yard out to score the winning touchdown in the last two seconds of play Saturday and gave Missouri a 20-15 victory over Michigan.

Michigan, which was playing its first game under new coach Bump Elliott, had kicked a field goal with two minutes and 48 seconds left to take a 15-14 lead.

But Missouri's Tigers, beaten 19-8 last week by Penn State, returned the kickoff to their own 22 - yard line and launched the winning touchdown drive. Behind the passing and running of Haas, Missouri drove to the one-yard line. The big play of that march was a 36-yard pass from Haas to Don Smith which took the ball to the Michigan two.

Left halfback Mel West punched into the line twice for no gain. Then Haas, in a stand-up drive, edged the ball over the goal line with two seconds left on the clock.

A Michigan victory seemed assured a couple of minutes earlier when end John Halstead recovered a fumble on the Missouri 23 and four plays later booted a 22-yard field goal.

Michigan trailed most of the way, however. Wolverine quarterback Stan Noskin had four passes intercepted by the Tiger defense, each one killing off a Michigan drive.

Missouri struck for the first touchdown of the game in an otherwise scoreless first half when West rambled 46 yards up the sidelines midway in the first period.

Tigers Rout Yankees With Rally In 11th

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Ginsberg's two-run single in the 11th inning started the Baltimore Orioles toward a 7-2 comeback victory over the New York Yankees Saturday. The triumph kept alive Baltimore's chances of sharing fifth place with Boston, which leads by one game with each having one to play.

Eli Grba, third Yankee pitcher, was the loser and Skinny Brown the winner in relief. Ginsberg's single scored Willie Tasby, who had opened the inning with a single, and Billy Gardner, who had doubled, to break a 2-2 tie. Al Pilarcik wrapped it up with a three-run homer after two were out.

Employment Cutbacks To See Upswing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cutbacks in production and employment are likely to increase sharply by mid-October unless the steel strike is settled, the Labor Department reported Saturday.

In its fourth semimonthly survey of the impact of the strike, which started July 15, the department said some 660,000 workers now are off their regular jobs and have lost wages totaling 700 million dollars.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said in releasing the report that while the over-all economic situation continues strong, the impact of the shutdown is increasing on factory employment.

The survey, which covers the first half of September, showed that for the first time since the strike began manufacturing cutbacks accounted for more than half of the layoffs in steel-related industries.

The total number of secondary layoffs, estimated at 160,000 nationwide, increased by 9,200 in the first two weeks of September in 31 major steel-producing and steel consuming areas surveyed.

This compared with about 12,000 in the preceding half-month period and almost 60,000 during the first two weeks of the strike.

However, the report said factory layoffs, though still relatively small, had increased both in number and percentage of the total, rising from 5,000 to 6,100 and accounting for about two thirds of the total in the Sept. 1-15 period.

Most of the strike-related layoffs so far have been in nonmanufacturing industries, principally transportation, construction and mining.

The department said employers in most of the 31 areas surveyed reported that steel stocks are adequate to maintain employment near current levels through the end of this month but that "widening difficulties" are anticipated by mid-October.

There has been increasing speculation that the government will seek a Taft-Hartley Act injunction to halt the strike by that time. But Mitchell made on reference to this in releasing the Labor Department's latest survey of the situation.

Port Officials Blame Policy On Growth Lack

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP)—Three members of the Gulfport Port Commission contend a policy of caution is the reason no contract has been signed for state development of the port here.

They said Friday "hasty and ill-advised action at this point may delay development for many years."

Their statement came after charges that politics was delaying contract negotiations with the agricultural and industrial board. Former Gov. Hugh White, a member of the board, observed when Gulfport officials talked with the A&I group Tuesday that apparently some would like to delay negotiations until Gov.-Elect Ross Barnett takes over from Gov. J. P. Coleman in January.

Ten Airmen Unscathed In Accident

ASTORIA, Ore. (AP)—Ten naval airmen, plucked from rafts that bobbed like corks on a black, wind-raked sea, came into this port Saturday unscratched in the ditching of their twin-engine patrol plane.

The Coast Guard cutter Yocona found the men in their two tied-together rubber rafts 110 miles off the Columbia River mouth just before 1 a.m. The wind was whipped through the night at 30 to 35 knots, the men were drenched and chilled, and some were seasick from 11 hours of the violent lurching of the rafts.

"But not one had a scratch," said Lt. James B. Henson, 27, the plane commander from Pearcy, Ark.

Henson, speaking by radio telephone from the Yocona as it passed the lightship and headed into the river's mouth, said everyone was fine, and no medical attention was needed.

His plane, from Whidbey Island, Wash., Naval Air Station, was forced down on the foggy sea at midafternoon Friday after an engine had caught fire.

It sank, far out at sea nearly due west of Tillamook Head, but not before the crew of three officers and seven enlisted men had broken out the rafts and clambered into them.

They had food, water, radios, radar reflectors, paddles, a foul weather canopy, and flares.

Henson's S O S before going down started help quickly. At 5 p.m., about two hours after the ditching, a Coast Guard plane overhead radioed their position.

The Yocona, speeding out of the Columbia River, took up a course, held it seven hours, and finally saw flares almost dead ahead.

"The operation was relatively routine" from then on, said Cmdr. William L. Morrison of the Yocona.

"The men came up scramble nets, with some assistance from our men," he said, adding it was only because the airmen were stiffened from cold that they needed help.

"When they got on deck, one of them threw his arms on the shoulders of a Yocona crewman and said, 'I sure am glad to see you.'"

But, he added, the airmen knew from the outset that help was on the way, and it was only a question of how long they would have to wait.

The rescue operation, completed at 12:50 a.m., was carried out under the blazing beam of the Yocona's 24-inch searchlight. Four Navy and Coast Guard planes hovered overhead, sending down beams from their own lights.

The freighter Olympic Pioneer, which also had answered the S O S, stood by, then resumed its course to Seattle with a "well done" from the Coast Guard.

The rescue completed the airmen went to bed, said Henson.

The downed men radioed at one time that they were O.K.

"We're wet, that's all," they told the aircraft circling above them.

Crucial Weeks Awaiting Barnett

By JAMES SAGGUS
Associated Press Staff Writer

The most crucial weeks in Ross Barnett's political career lie just ahead of him.

Political veterans say the 61-year-old Jackson attorney, like all governors-elect, is at the height of his popularity now.

He has the support of those who backed him in his August campaigning. It addition, many people who mildly opposed him are now telling themselves they were for him all the time.

The greybearded politicians say this will all change in the next four or five months.

"He's going to lose popularity with most of the bandwagon-hoppers as soon as he does anything at all, regardless of whether it is the wisest course," they say. "So it is just a matter of time before these people leave him.

"He's sure to lose some support from those who voted for him because what will please some of them will make others mad. The trick is to hold this kind of loss to a minimum through salesmanship, selling his point of view before taking action.

"Much of his key support will be kept through patronage and that's what makes these next few weeks crucial. If he makes a mistake, he's lost support that frequently controls a good many votes."

One of the prime rules of politics is this: Most supporters of winning candidates expect to be rewarded when their man takes office. The more work, the bigger the reward must be. The more votes involved, the bigger the reward must be.

And in no case is someone who did less or brought in fewer votes to get a larger reward.

One of the big problems facing any new administration in any state is how to make the limited number of prized jobs cover the number of supporters who think they are entitled to them. There are dozens who want each job.

"I don't know of a single one of Barnett's precedessors in the governor's chair who has kept everybody happy by the way he handed out the jobs," said a Capitol veteran who has watched administrations come and go.

In addition, things get harder each year for an incoming governor.

More and more jobs are becoming dependent on federal funds, at least in part, and the federal government takes a dim view of governors shaking up these departments for patronage reasons.

The biggest plums remaining in Mississippi are the Agricultural and Industrial Board directorship, the motor vehicle comptroller and places on commissions and boards as terms of the present holders expire.

Around the nation, some governors have tried to provide more patronage jobs by creating new boards and agencies.

Lively Interest And Exhibits At Cub Scout Show

An indignant duck, a regal cat named Celopatra, a talkative parakeet, fish and assorted caterpillars — these were a few of the pets that vied for attention with hobby items at the monthly meeting of Cub Scout Pack 31.

The meeting was held last week at Georgia Tucker School. The four dens of Pack 31 reported a good turnout for their first indoor meeting of the season.

Among onlookers at the session were parents, brothers and sisters of the cubs, who viewed displays of planes, boats, scrap books, shells and handicrafts.

The following boys received awards for achievements in attaining their particular ranks: Den 1, Randy Biegenwald and Pat Hassion, Bobcats; Den 3, Charles Reynolds, Ted Kilpatrick, Bobcats and Lawrence Hunnicutt, Bear; Den 4, John Nowell, Bear.

A flag ceremony and song by Den 3 opened the meeting. The Pack meeting was directed by C. J. Carney, assistant cub master.

Den 2 closed the meeting with the Cub Scout Living Circle and Pledge to the Flag.

Alert Motorist Aids Police In Speedy Arrest

An alert motorist who heard the crash of a window being broken at a service station shortly after 1 a.m. yesterday notified police, and a Monroe man's attempt at burglary was cut short by officers who were on the scene within a few minutes.

After hearing the shatter of glass, around the Rickerson's Service Station at 100 Bridge Street in West Monroe, a motorist sped to the nearest phone and called local police.

Officers were on the scene within three or four minutes and found that a window on the east side of the station had been smashed open. They notified the owner, who arrived shortly from his home nearby, unlocked, and opened the front door.

Inside, hiding behind a counter, officers found Maurice Laird, 29, of 1707 College street, Monroe. He later confessed to officers that he had entered the station to get a gun that he believed the owner kept in a drawer behind the counter.

The on-the-scene arrest was a good example of the importance of a citizen's cooperation with the police department, according to Police Chief Jeff Caldwell.

"Thanks to that alert motorist who was passing by, our men were able to move in fast when time was important," Chief Caldwell said. "That's the kind of cooperation we need more of."

Seven Arrested On Charges Of Gambling Here

Seven Negro men were arrested on gambling charges and disturbing the peace last night by Monroe police. All were placed under $200 bond.

The seven were: Louis Bradshaw, 42, who gave his address as the Willie T. Hotel; Ernest Smith, 37, of the Forester Homes; K. C. Gix, 26, of 2714 Prospect; and the following four who posted bond: James Smith, 28, of Swartz; Grant Morehead, of Route 3, Monroe; James Kennedy Brew, 52, of Swartz; and Archie Blivens, 29, of 3405 Owl Street.

Bobbie Lea Webb, 45-year old white woman, was charged by police with atempted murder, aggravated battery and illegally carrying a dangerous weapon. She posted bond of $500, police reported.

Larry T. Giddens, 22, of 1610 South 6th street in Monroe, was arrested by police on three counts: vagrancy, resisting an officer of the law and disturbing the peace. He was placed under $500 bond.

George Smith, 48, who gave his address as Rochester, New York, was arrested by Monroe police yesterday on vagrancy charges. He was placed under $350 bond, police reported.

Reknown Talent Set For Monroe

Response to the membership drive of the Northeast State Concerts Association is "quite rewarding," Mrs. John D. Mullens, campaign manager, reported yesterday. She emphasized the interest being shown in the variety of attractions which the organization's program offers this season.

The newly-formed association, headed by Maurice Glazer, is cooperating with Northeast Louisiana State College in sponsoring a series of concerts and lectures.

TICKETS

Ticket sales, which opened Monday, will continue through October 3. Memberships may be obtained at the Frances Hotel lobby, headquarters, Central Savings Bank and its branches, the Rendezvous Restaurant after 5 p.m. or from any organization member.

Membership costs are $7.50 for adults and $3 for students. Season tickets will entitle the holder to such features as the world famous Philharmonia Hungarica Symphony Orchestra, Joan Blondell in "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians, the Julliard String Quartet, Dr. Freemont P. Wirth, lectuer on Soviet Russia, a famous military band, Julian Bryan, lecturer and world traveler, and others.

The Philharmonia Hungarica will appear in Monroe on October 21 as the second attraction, Dr. Harry Lemert, Dean of fine arts at Northeast State, announced.

Birth of this orchestra can be traced to the Hungarian revolt in 1956. The Philharmonia is considered the only symphony orchestra that had its beginnings in a bloody fight for freedom. The organization is composed entirely of Hungarians who were members of their country's foremost orchestras before they fled to neighboring Vienna, some of them carrying their instruments above their heads as they floundered through swamps and waded across canals.

BILLETED

While billeted in refugee camps awaiting the Austrian government's completion of the time consuming task of finding better accommodations for them, one or another of the musicians would invariably pass the time playing his violin, flute or clarinet.

After listening to a few such renditions, Zeltan Rozsnyai, himself a refugee musician (a conductor and master pianist, he had arrived in Austria without instruments) came upon the idea of organizing an orchestra as a means of providing work for numbers of gifted performers in the camps.

His colleagues were so enthusiastic about the plan that it was not long before Rezsnyai had collected a full size orchestra and become its first conductor.

As word of the enterprise spread through Austria, sympathetic citizens donated instruments for those musicians who had been forced to leave theirs in Hungary. Others contributed music scores and stands, as well as dark suits to make the orchestra presentable to paying concert goers.

Khrush Dines On Light Lunch

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — By Nikita Khrushchev's standards, he had a light lunch Saturday.

He and President Eisenhower, conferring at Camp David, south of here, were served boiled frankfurthers, baked beans, Boston brown bread, sliced tomato salad, crackers and iced tea.

This pales into insignificance when compared with even the usual Khrushchev breakfast during his strenuous U.S. tour. And as for ice in the tea—few Soviets go for that sort of thing.

Police Blotter

CHARGED

West Monroe police yesterday arrested Maurice Liard, 29, of 1707 College street in Monroe, and charged him with breaking and entering. Officers said Laird was charged with breaking into Rickerson's Service Station early Saturday morning.

Owners of the station said yesterday nothing was missing from the station.

ARRESTED

A 22 - year old Negro, William Henderson of 1200½ DeSiard Street, was arrested by Monroe police yesterday on charge of theft. He was placed under bond of $350, police reported.

I. V. Mize, 30, of North Violet street in West Monroe, was picked up by officers yesterday and charged with a warrant for issuing worthless checks. Mize was placed under $350 bond.

Woodrow Wilson, Monroe Negro, was charged with simple escape yesterday by police. He was placed under $100 bond.

NOTICE TO DUCK HUNTERS

WHAM BRAKE

INTERNATIONAL PAPER COMPANY thanks the sportsmen in the area for the cooperation of those hunting ducks in Wham Brake and hopes that all hunters will continue to abide by the regulations heretofore published.

Attention is called to the following matters under the hunting regulations for Wham Brake.

1. Hunters must secure a permit for the erection of a blind in Wham Brake from this Company and where required on leased lands from the owner of the lands.

2. Holders of permits for existing blinds do not need to secure a new permit but the blinds must show evidence of proper maintenance this year. Work on maintaining and renewing blinds must be complete by November 16, 1959. Otherwise, the Company reserves the right to revoke the permit and either destroy the blinds or assign the location to others.

3. Blinds must not be moved from the location given in the original permit unless a new permit is secured. Removing a blind without permission may cause the original permit to be revoked.

4. Holders of permits are requested, before November 16, 1959, to post or paint the permit number and their name, address and telephone number on the blind so that they can readily be identified.

5. Ouachita Farms Corporation (formerly Breece Lumber Company) c/o A. B. Freyer, Jr., Palais Royal, Shreveport, Louisiana, owns approximately 1200 acres in the Brake which are under lease to International Paper Company. They have notified us that a permit from Ouachita Farms Corporation will be required to maintain or hold a blind on their lands in addition to the permit from International Paper Company. Interested blind owners should contact them direct.

Anyone desiring a permit should contact Lindy Houston at International Paper Company, Bastrop, Louisiana, by letter or telephone him at 1013, Bastrop. Copies of the regulations may be secured from Mr. Houston.

Mr. Houston will be at the control structure at the south end of Wham Brake Basin on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, October 4, 5, and 6, and on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, October 11, 12 and 13 from 8:00 A.M. to 3:00 P.M. and may be contacted there at those times.

Reknown Talent Set For Monroe

Response to the membership drive of the Northeast State Concerts Association is "quite rewarding," Mrs. John D. Mullens, campaign manager, reported yesterday. She emphasized the interest being shown in the variety of attractions which the organization's program offers this season.

The newly-formed association, headed by Maurice Glazer, is cooperating with Northeast Louisiana State College in sponsoring a series of concerts and lectures.

TICKETS

Ticket sales, which opened Monday, will continue through October 3. Memberships may be obtained at the Frances Hotel lobby, headquarters, Central Savings Bank and its branches, the Rendezvous Restaurant after 5 p.m. or from any organization member.

Membership costs are $7.50 for adults and $3 for students. Season tickets will entitle the holder to such features as the world famous Philharmonia Hungarica Symphony Orchestra, Joan Blondell in "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians, the Julliard String Quartet, Dr. Freemont P. Wirth, lectuer on Soviet Russia, a famous military band, Julian Bryan, lecturer and world traveler, and others.

The Philharmonia Hungarica will appear in Monroe on October 21 as the second attraction, Dr. Harry Lemert, Dean of fine arts at Northeast State, announced.

Birth of this orchestra can be traced to the Hungarian revolt in 1956. The Philharmonia is considered the only symphony orchestra that had its beginnings in a bloody fight for freedom. The organization is composed entirely of Hungarians who were members of their country's foremost orchestras before they fled to neighboring Vienna, some of them carrying their instruments above their heads as they floundered through swamps and waded across canals.

BILLETED

While billeted in refugee camps awaiting the Austrian government's completion of the time consuming task of finding better accommodations for them, one or another of the musicians would invariably pass the time playing his violin, flute or clarinet.

After listening to a few such renditions, Zeltan Rozsnyai, himself a refugee musician (a conductor and master pianist, he had arrived in Austria without instruments) came upon the idea of organizing an orchestra as a means of providing work for numbers of gifted performers in the camps.

His colleagues were so enthusiastic about the plan that it was not long before Rezsnyai had collected a full size orchestra and become its first conductor.

As word of the enterprise spread through Austria, sympathetic citizens donated instruments for those musicians who had been forced to leave theirs in Hungary. Others contributed music scores and stands, as well as dark suits to make the orchestra presentable to paying concert goers.

Khrush Dines On Light Lunch

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — By Nikita Khrushchev's standards, he had a light lunch Saturday.

He and President Eisenhower, conferring at Camp David, south of here, were served boiled frankfurthers, baked beans, Boston brown bread, sliced tomato salad, crackers and iced tea.

This pales into insignificance when compared with even the usual Khrushchev breakfast during his strenuous U.S. tour. And as for ice in the tea—few Soviets go for that sort of thing.

Ten Airmen Unscathed In Accident

ASTORIA, Ore. (AP)—Ten naval airmen, plucked from rafts that bobbed like corks on a black, wind-raked sea, came into this port Saturday unscratched in the ditching of their twin-engine patrol plane.

The Coast Guard cutter Yocona found the men in their two tied-together rubber rafts 110 miles off the Columbia River mouth just before 1 a.m. The wind was whipped through the night at 30 to 35 knots, the men were drenched and chilled, and some were seasick from 11 hours of the violent lurching of the rafts.

"But not one had a scratch," said Lt. James B. Henson, 27, the plane commander from Pearcy, Ark.

Henson, speaking by radio telephone from the Yocona as it passed the lightship and headed into the river's mouth, said everyone was fine, and no medical attention was needed.

His plane, from Whidbey Island, Wash., Naval Air Station, was forced down on the foggy sea at midafternoon Friday after an engine had caught fire.

It sank, far out at sea nearly due west of Tillamook Head, but not before the crew of three officers and seven enlisted men had broken out the rafts and clambered into them.

They had food, water, radios, radar reflectors, paddles, a foul weather canopy, and flares.

Henson's S O S before going down started help quickly. At 5 p.m., about two hours after the ditching, a Coast Guard plane overhead radioed their position.

The Yocona, speeding out of the Columbia River, took up a course, held it seven hours, and finally saw flares almost dead ahead.

"The operation was relatively routine" from then on, said Cmdr. William L. Morrison of the Yocona.

"The men came up scramble nets, with some assistance from our men," he said, adding it was only because the airmen were stiffened from cold that they needed help.

"When they got on deck, one of them threw his arms on the shoulders of a Yocona crewman and said, 'I sure am glad to see you.'"

But, he added, the airmen knew from the outset that help was on the way, and it was only a question of how long they would have to wait.

The rescue operation, completed at 12:50 a.m., was carried out under the blazing beam of the Yocona's 24-inch searchlight. Four Navy and Coast Guard planes hovered overhead, sending down beams from their own lights.

The freighter Olympic Pioneer, which also had answered the S O S, stood by, then resumed its course to Seattle with a "well done" from the Coast Guard.

The rescue completed, the airmen went to bed, said Henson.

The downed men radioed at one time that they were O.K.

"We're wet, that's all," they told the aircraft circling above them.

The 10 were identified by officials at the Whidbey Island NAS as: Henson; Lt. (JG) Donald T. McClosky, 26, copilot, Bellville, N.J.; Lt. (JG) Walter E. White Jr., 25, navigator, Haverton, Pa.; Chief Aviation Machinists' Mate Jack Bostick, 34, Hoffman, N.C.; Aviation Machinists' Mate 1. C. Clarence R. Hart, 34, San Gabriel, Calif.; Aviation Electronics Technician 2. C. Daniel R. Coleman, 22, Verdale, Minn.; Aviation Electronics Technician 3. C. Billy L. Watson, 28, Chula Vista, Calif., Aviation Ordance man 2. C. Edmond H. Erland, 22, Canby, Ore.; Aviation Airman Ronald J. Eberle, 21, Maple Valley, Wash.; and Aviation Structural Mechanic 3. C. Richard V. Coesens, 22, Burlington, Wash.

POPULARITY HEIGHT

Crucial Weeks Awaiting Barnett

By JAMES SAGGUS
Associated Press Staff Writer

The most crucial weeks in Ross Barnett's political career lie just ahead of him.

Political veterans say the 61-year-old Jackson attorney, like all governors-elect, is at the height of his popularity now.

He has the support of those who backed him in his August campaigning. It addition, many people who mildly opposed him are now telling themselves they were for him all the time.

The greybearded politicians say this will all change in the next four or five months.

"He's going to lose popularity with most of the bandwagon-hoppers as soon as he does anything at all, regardless of whether it is the wisest course," they say. "So it is just a matter of time before these people leave him.

"He's sure to lose some support from those who voted for him because what will please some of them will make others mad. The trick is to hold this kind of loss to a minimum through salesmanship, selling his point of view before taking action.

"Much of his key support will be kept through patronage and that's what makes these next few weeks crucial. If he makes a mistake, he's lost support that frequently controls a good many votes."

One of the prime rules of politics is this: Most supporters of winning candidates expect to be rewarded when their man takes office. The more work, the bigger the reward must be. The more votes involved, the bigger the reward must be.

And in no case is someone who did less or brought in fewer votes to get a larger reward.

One of the big problems facing any new administration in any state is how to make the limited number of prized jobs cover the number of supporters who think they are entitled to them. There are dozens who want each job.

"I don't know of a single one of Barnett's precedessors in the governor's chair who has kept everybody happy by the way he handed out the jobs," said a Capitol veteran who has watched administrations come and go.

In addition, things get harder each year for an incoming governor.

More and more jobs are becoming dependent on federal funds, at least in part, and the federal government takes a dim view of governors shaking up these departments for patronage reasons.

The biggest plums remaining in Mississippi are the Agricultural and Industrial Board directorship, the motor vehicle comptroller and places on commissions and boards as terms of the present holders expire.

Around the nation, some governors have tried to provide more patronage jobs by creating new boards and agencies.

Lively Interest And Exhibits At Cub Scout Show

An indignant duck, a regal cat named Celopatra, a talkative parakeet, fish and assorted caterpillars — these were a few of the pets that vied for attention with hobby items at the monthly meeting of Cub Scout Pack 31.

The meeting was held last week at Georgia Tucker School. The four dens of Pack 31 reported a good turnout for their first indoor meeting of the season.

Among onlookers at the session were parents, brothers and sisters of the cubs, who viewed displays of planes, boats, scrap books, shells and handicrafts.

The following boys received awards for achievements in attaining their particular ranks: Den 1, Randy Biegenwald and Pat Hassion, Bobcats; Den 3, Charles Reynolds, Ted Kilpatrick, Bobcats and Lawrence Hunnicutt, Bear; Den 4, John Nowell, Bear.

A flag ceremony and song by Den 3 opened the meeting. The Pack meeting was directed by C. J. Carney, assistant cub master.

Den 2 closed the meeting with the Cub Scout Living Circle and Pledge to the Flag.

Alert Motorist Aids Police In Speedy Arrest

An alert motorist who heard the crash of a window being broken at a service station shortly after 1 a.m. yesterday notified police, and a Monroe man's attempt at burglary was cut short by officers who were on the scene within a few minutes.

After hearing the shatter of glass, around the Rickerson's Service Station at 100 Bridge Street in West Monroe, a motorist sped to the nearest phone and called local police.

Officers were on the scene within three or four minutes and found that a window on the east side of the station had been smashed open. They notified the owner, who arrived shortly from his home nearby, unlocked, and opened the front door.

Inside, hiding behind a counter, officers found Maurice Laird, 29, of 1707 College street, Monroe. He later confessed to officers that he had entered the station to get a gun that he believed the owner kept in a drawer behind the counter.

The on-the-scene arrest was a good example of the importance of a citizen's cooperation with the police department, according to Police Chief Jeff Caldwell.

"Thanks to that alert motorist who was passing by, our men were able to move in fast when time was important," Chief Caldwell said. "That's the kind of cooperation we need more of."

Port Officials Blame Policy On Growth Lack

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP)—Three members of the Gulfport Port Commission contend a policy of caution is the reason no contract has been signed for state development of the port here.

They said Friday "hasty and ill-advised action at this point may delay development for many years."

Their statement came after charges that politics was delaying contract negotiations with the agricultural and industrial board. Former Gov. Hugh White, a member of the board, observed when Gulfport officials talked with the A&I group Tuesday that apparently some would like to delay negotiations until Gov.-Elect Ross Barnett takes over from Gov. J. P. Coleman in January.

Seven Arrested On Charges Of Gambling Here

Seven Negro men were arrested on gambling charges and disturbing the peace last night by Monroe police. All were placed under $200 bond.

The seven were: Louis Bradshaw, 42, who gave his address as the Willie T. Hotel; Ernest Smith, 37, of the Forester Homes; K. C. Gix, 26, of 2714 Prospect; and the following four who posted bond: James Smith, 28, of Swartz; Grant Morehead, of Route 3, Monroe; James Kennedy Brew, 52, of Swartz; and Archie Blivens, 29, of 3405 Owl Street.

Bobbie Lea Webb, 45-year old white woman, was charged by police with atempted murder, aggravated battery and illegally carrying a dangerous weapon. She posted bond of $500, police reported.

Larry T. Giddens, 22, of 1610 South 6th street in Monroe, was arrested by police on three counts: vagrancy, resisting an officer of the law and disturbing the peace. He was placed under $500 bond.

George Smith, 48, who gave his address as Rochester, New York, was arrested by Monroe police yesterday on vagrancy charges. He was placed under $350 bond, police reported.

NOTICE TO DUCK HUNTERS

WHAM BRAKE

INTERNATIONAL PAPER COMPANY thanks the sportsmen in the area for the cooperation of those hunting ducks in Wham Brake and hopes that all hunters will continue to abide by the regulations heretofore published.

Attention is called to the following matters under the hunting regulations for Wham Brake.

1. Hunters must secure a permit for the erection of a blind in Wham Brake from this Company and where required on leased lands from the owner of the lands.

2. Holders of permits for existing blinds do not need to secure a new permit but the blinds must show evidence of proper maintenance this year. Work on maintaining and renewing blinds must be complete by November 16, 1959. Otherwise, the Company reserves the right to revoke the permit and either destroy the blinds or assign the location to others.

3. Blinds must not be moved from the location given in the original permit unless a new permit is secured. Removing a blind without permission may cause the original permit to be revoked.

4. Holders of permits are requested, before November 16, 1959, to post or paint the permit number and their name, address and telephone number on the blind so that they can readily be identified.

5. Ouachita Farms Corporation (formerly Breece Lumber Company) c/o A. B. Freyer, Jr., Palais Royal, Shreveport, Louisiana, owns approximately 1200 acres in the Brake which are under lease to International Paper Company. They have notified us that a permit from Ouachita Farms Corporation will be required to maintain or hold a blind on their lands in addition to the permit from International Paper Company. Interested blind owners should contact them direct.

Anyone desiring a permit should contact Lindy Houston at International Paper Company, Bastrop, Louisiana, by letter or telephone him at 1013, Bastrop. Copies of the regulations may be secured from Mr. Houston.

Mr. Houston will be at the control structure at the south end of Wham Brake Basin on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, October 4, 5, and 6, and on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, October 11, 12 and 13 from 8:00 A.M. to 3:00 P.M. and may be contacted there at those times.

On Dit'

by Denise

Ah, the football weekend! The weather this week was perfect for getting everyone in the mood; and what with the ratings being what they were, the game yesterday attracted more attention in these parts than some bowl games.

One group of football enthusiasts chartered a bus for the drive down to Baton Rouge yesterday morning and are due back today. In the party were the RALPH CALDWELLS, the BUDDY FREEMANS, TRUDY and DAVE ARON, the GEORGE WEAKS, PAT and JACK MADDEN, the S. A. ELLIOTTS, the TRAVIS MCLENDONS, GERRY and BURT SPERRY, IRIS and BRUCE BROOKS, the W. R. CROWS, the H. F. EASTERLINGS, MARGE and JOHN MULLENS, the EARL BRIMBERRYS, the O. B. WILSONS, JUNE and BREWER GODFREY, SARA and H. W. M'SHERRY, the J. S. DYERS, and the R. C. M'DOWELLS.

The LON HEUERS drove down early yesterday morning. In Baton Rouge, they were guests of LUCILLE and ALBERT CLARY.

Several couples went down on Friday: the DICK TOUCHSTONES, the SONNY DIXONS, the BOBBY OLIVERS, the JOHN CLAYS. This group were guests of MITZI and SQUEAKY SINGLETARY at a buffet supper Friday night.

Other Tiger supporters making the trip were the PAUL RANSOMS, the JOE DIXONS, the HAROLD WOODS, JR., the GRANT BOARDMANS, the D. V. LOFLINS, the JOHN SHERROUSES, SR., the BILL RILEYS, the IVY JORDANS, the JIMMY MOORES, the HAROLD WOODS, SR., and the CLAY WILSONS.

Last week end the DARRELL BRISBINS drove to Houston for the Ole Miss - Houston game. They spent Friday night in Alexandria, went on to Houston Saturday and came back Sunday. The children, LAURA LEAH, WADE and LEON, also made the trip.

Whatever the season, the new houses continue to spring up around town. This week we visited the new brown brick home of the BENNY GWINS on Pargoud Boulevard. The entrance hall is panelled with birch and floored with terrazzo. The terrazzo continues down three steps and into the living room, where the walls are white and the furniture in shades of browns and beiges. Sheer draperies draw across the back wall of glass which overlooks the terrace. Aqua accents and one bright aqua chair give color . . . A planter of brown brick separated the living room and the dining room, which is up three steps from the living room level. Aqua carpeting is used in the white-walled dining room.

A right turn from the entrance hall takes one into the family dining room, which is panelled in the same birch. An interesting wall paper with a silver and aqua pattern on a white ground is used in this room, and in the kitchen above the birch cabinets.

The guest room and the boys' bedroom are done in different combinations of the browns with aqua accents. The bath shared by these rooms is in aqua tile used with a waterproof paper of line drawings of ships and fish . . . The master bedroom has walls, draperies, and spread of a white called "pear mist," with aqua throw pillows for color. The closets are built - in wardrobes, flanked by hanging space.

And speaking of new houses, how about the "Playhouse", recently completed boat of the G. L. MORGANS? 'Tis properly named, and could convert one to full-time water living. Aqua railings and chairs are used on the shining white decks, upstairs and down. The upper deck is covered with an aqua and white awning.

"Downstairs" walnut panelling is used in the air conditioned living room, which is separated from the "cockpit" with a walnut folding door extending the width of the boat. Cinnamon silkron covers the three couches, which unfold to provide sleeping space. Two tangerine swivel chairs and harem pillows of aqua and tangerine provide extra seating space. Table tops are of mosaic tile in shades of tan and tangerine, and lamps are cork.

The galley is panelled in walnut, also, and features built in stove, refrigerator, freezer, dishwasher. The dining table is of walnut, the chairs having cane peel seats and backs . . . Two baths and a small stateroom at the back of the boat complete the equipment.

MRS. WILL WALTON of Jackson, Mississippi, has been here this week with her grandchildren, WAKE and WILL, while their parents, the BENTON WAKEFIELDS, JR., were in New York. Myrtis, always a popular visitor here, was honored at a luncheon hosted by KATHERINE JORDAN at home on Tuesday. Fifteen guests were seated at the table centered with yellow and bronze Fuji mums. The guest of honor looked most stylishly - fallish in a grey suit with a feather hat in shades of grey and brown.

On Friday MILDRED VANDERPOOL entertained for Myrtis with a luncheon at her home. The hostess used pink carnations and pink flocked greenery in a silver and crystal epergne as her centerpiece. A baked crab salad and lemon coconut chiffon pie were high points of the menu served to ten guests.

The Wakefields and their travelling companions, LYDIA NICHOLS and the DICK TROYS got back Friday night. They report a fabulous "big-city" time, including several trips to the theatre. They saw "The Music Man," "La Plume de ma Tante", and "My Fair Lady".

Back from New York is DAISY TERZIA, bringing her daughter SARA. After working in the city for three years, Sara came home to stay this week. Daisy went up to help her pack and move back.

The FLETCHER ASHCRAFTS are back this week end from a week of tripping. They left last Saturday by train, stopped off in Washington, D. C. for two days, and then went on to New York for two days. They saw "Destry Rides Again".

Leaving Wednesday night were the TIM ALLENS. They went to New Orleans, where they joined a group of friends flying to the West Coast. They will go to Los Angeles, Disneyland, and Las Vegas during the week they are gone.

BETTY JAGODITCH, A recent newcomer to Monroe, was honored at a coffee by SHIRLEYY group of intimates were invited to get acquainted over coffee and hot cinnamon rolls. Betty and Russ have just mmoved into their new home on Lakeside drivve.

On Thursday night the DICK DICKENHORSTS were hosts at a dinner party at their home. Jean created a lovely table setting with gold place mats on the mellow wood, and a centerpiece of gold Empress candles. Duck with wild rice dressing and a cherry dessert with ice cream was served to ten guests.

For her seventh birthday last week, HOLLY HEUER had a skating party, attended by some fifty youngsters. BECKY HEUNEFELD and SCOTTY DYER won the prizes. Doughnuts and soft drinks were refreshments, and yoyos were given as favors.

PETEY SMITH's tenth birthday was also the occasion for a skating party. Prizewinners at this affair were BILLIE COLE and SUSAN FARR. Cupcakes, soft drinks, and bubble gum were served to fifty-five guests.

When it comes to poetry, one can never go wrong with a sonnet of Will Shakespeare's:

Tired with all these, for restful death I cry,
As, to behold desert a beggar born,
And needy nothing trimmed in jollity,
And purest faith unhappily forsworn,
And gilded honor shamefully misplaced,
And maiden virtue rudely strumpeted,
And right perfection wrongfully disgraced,
And strength by limping sway disabled,
And art made tongue-tied by authority,
And folly, doctor - like, controlling skill,
And simple truth miscalled simplicity,
And captive good attending captain ill:
Tired with all these, from these would I be gone,
Save that, to die, I leave my love alone.

Charity Game Scheduled

The Highland Park Duplicate Club announces a one session ACBL sponsored charity game, to be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Highland Park Country Club. This is the second in a three game series planned by the club. A masterpoint game —all duplicate and rubber bridge players are invited. Reservations are not necessary. The proceeds will go to the American Red Cross Disaster Fund.

MR. AND MRS. ELDRIDGE FELIX KENNY announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Jewel Mae, Captain U. S. Air Force Nurse Corps to Carmelo John Marchese, son of Mrs. Sidonia Marchese and the late Carmelo J. Marchese of New Orleans. The wedding will be solemnized October 24, at 10 o'clock, in the morning at Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church with the Reverend Dave Dabria officiating.

Miss Genung Will Wed Mr. Busby In Late Fall

Of special interest here and in New Orleans is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Joanne Genung to Gerald Bernard Busby made known by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Arthur Genung Jr.

Mr. Busby is the son of Mrs. Ernest Busby and the late Mr. Busby of Dallas, Texas.

The wedding will be solemnized on Friday evening, November 27, at 7 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church with the Reverend W. H. McFadden officiating.

The bride - elect is the granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Tete of New Orleans and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Arthur Genung of Long Beach, Mississippi. A graduate of Eleanor McMain High School in New Orleans, she also attended Tulane University.

Mr. Busby is a graduate of Southern Methodist University where he was a member of Delta Sigma Phi social fraternity.

After the ceremony the young couple will make their home in Monroe.

Miss Carey Sue Turner Weds In Christ Church

Of interest here is the recent marriage of Miss Carey Sue Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Key Turner of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, formerly of Monroe, to Richare Dale Mackie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elton B. Mackie of New Orleans.

The wedding was solemnized in Christ Episcopal Church in Bay Saint Louis, members of the two families in attendance.

Mrs. Mackie graduated from Casady School in Oklahome City and is a student at Newcomb College. She is affiliated with Chi Omega social sorority.

Mr. Mackie will receive his bachelor of science degree at Tulane University in June. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

by Denise

Ah, the football weekend! The weather this week was perfect for getting everyone in the mood; and what with the ratings being what they were, the game yesterday attracted more attention in these parts than some bowl games.

One group of football enthusiasts chartered a bus for the drive down to Baton Rouge yesterday morning and are due back today. In the party were the RALPH CALDWELLS, the BUDDY FREEMANS, TRUDY and DAVE ARON, the GEORGE WEAKS, PAT and JACK MADDEN, the S. A. ELLIOTTS, the TRAVIS M'CLENDONS, GERRY and BURT SPERRY, IRIS and BRUCE BROOKS, the W. R. CROWS, the H. F. EASTERLINGS, MARGE and JOHN MULLENS, the EARL BRIMBERRYS, the O. B. WILSONS, JUNE and BREWER GODFREY, SARA and H. W. M'SHERRY, the J. S. DYERS, and the R. C. M'DOWELLS.

The LON HEUERS drove down early yesterday morning. In Baton Rouge, they were guests of LUCILLE and ALBERT CLARY.

Several couples went down on Friday: the DICK TOUCHSTONES, the SONNY DIXONS, the BOBBY OLIVERS, the JOHN CLAYS. This group were guests of MITZI and SQUEAKY SINGLETARY at a buffet supper Friday night.

Other Tiger supporters making the trip were the PAUL RANSOMS, the JOE DIXONS, the HAROLD WOODS, JR., the GRANT BOARDMANS, the D. V. LOFLINS, the JOHN SHERROUSES, SR., the BILL RILEYS, the IVY JORDANS, the JIMMY MOORES, the HAROLD WOODS, SR., and the CLAY WILSONS.

Last week end the DARRELL BRISBINS drove to Houston for the Ole Miss - Houston game. They spent Friday night in Alexandria, went on to Houston Saturday and came back Sunday. The children, LAURA LEAH, WADE and LEON, also made the trip.

Whatever the season, the new houses continue to spring up around town. This week we visited the new brown brick home of the BENNY GWINS on Pargoud Boulevard. The entrance hall is panelled with birch and floored with terrazzo. The terrazzo continues down three steps and into the living room, where the walls are white and the furniture in shades of browns and beiges. Sheer draperies draw across the back wall of glass which overlooks the terrace. Aqua accents and one bright aqua chair give color . . . A planter of brown brick separated the living room and the dining room, which is up three steps from the living room level. Aqua carpeting is used in the white-walled dining room.

A right turn from the entrance hall takes one into the family dining room, which is panelled in the same birch. An interesting wall paper with a silver and aqua pattern on a white ground is used in the kitchen above the birch cabinets.

The guest room and the boys' bedroom are done in different combinations of the browns with aqua accents. The bath shared by these rooms is in aqua tile used with a waterproof paper of line drawings of ships and fish . . . The master bedroom has walls, draperies, and spread of a white called "pear mist," with aqua throw pillows for color. The closets are built - in wardrobes, flanked by hanging space.

And speaking of new houses, how about the "Playhouse", recently completed boat of the G. L. MORGANS? 'Tis properly named, and could convert one to full-time water living. Aqua railings and chairs are used on the shining white decks, upstairs and down. The upper deck is covered with an aqua and white awning.

"Downstairs" walnut panelling is used in the air conditioned living room, which is separated from the "cockpit" with a walnut folding door extending the width of the boat. Cinnamon silkron covers the three couches, which unfold to provide sleeping space. Two tangerine swivel chairs and harem pillows of aqua and tangerine provide extra seating space. Table tops are of mosaic tile in shades of tan and tangerine, and lamps are cork.

The galley is panelled in walnut, also, and features built in stove, refrigerator, freezer, dishwasher. The dining table is of walnut, the chairs having cane peel seats and backs . . . Two baths and a small stateroom at the back of the boat complete the equipment.

MRS. WILL WALTON of Jackson, Mississippi, has been here this week with her grandchildren, WAKE and WILL, while their parents, the BENTON WAKEFIELDS, JR., were in New York. Myrtis, always a popular visitor here, was honored at a luncheon hosted by KATHERINE JORDAN at home on Tuesday. Fifteen guests were seated at the table centered with yellow and bronze Fuji mums. The guest of honor looked most stylishly - fallish in a grey suit with a feather hat in shades of grey and brown.

On Friday MILDRED VANDERPOOL entertained for Myrtis with a luncheon at her home. The hostess used pink carnations and pink flocked greenery in a silver and crystal epergne as her centerpiece. A baked crab salad and lemon coconut chiffon pie were high points of the menu served to ten guests.

The Wakefields and their travelling companions, LYDIA NICHOLS and the DICK TROYS got back Friday night. They report a fabulous "big-city" time, including several trips to the theatre. They saw "The Music Man," "La Plume de ma Tante", and "My Fair Lady".

Back from New York is DAISY TERZIA, bringing her daughter SARA. After working in the city for three years, Sara came home to stay this week. Daisy went up to help her pack and move back.

The FLETCHER ASHCRAFTS are back this week end from a week of tripping. They left last Saturday by train, stopped off in Washington, D. C. for two days, and then went on to New York for two days. They saw "Destry Rides Again".

Leaving Wednesday night were the TIM ALLENS. They went to New Orleans, where they joined a group of friends flying to the West Coast. They will go to Los Angeles, Disneyland, and Las Vegas during the week they are gone.

BETTY JAGODITCH, A recent newcomer to Monroe, was honored at a coffee by SHIRLEYY group of intimates were invited to get acquainted over coffee and hot cinnamon rolls. Betty and Russ have just mmoved into their new home on Lakeside drivve.

On Thursday night the DICK DICKENHORSTS were hosts at a dinner party at their home. Jean created a lovely table setting with gold place mats on the mellow wood, and a centerpiece of gold Empress candles. Duck with wild rice dressing and a cherry dessert with ice cream was served to ten guests.

For her seventh birthday last week, HOLLY HEUER had a skating party, attended by some fifty youngsters. BECKY HEUNEFELD and SCOTTY DYER won the prizes. Doughnuts and soft drinks were refreshments, and yoyos were given as favors.

PETEY SMITH's tenth birthday was also the occasion for a skating party. Prizewinners at this affair were BILLIE COLE and SUSAN FARR. Cupcakes, soft drinks, and bubble gum were served to fifty-five guests.

When it comes to poetry, one can never go wrong with a sonnet of Will Shakespeare's:

Tired with all these, for restful death I cry,
As, to behold desert a beggar born,
And needy nothing trimmed in jollity,
And purest faith unhappily forsworn,
And gilded honor shamefully misplaced,
And maiden virtue rudely strumpeted,
And right perfection wrongfully disgraced,
And strength by limping sway disabled,
And art made tongue-tied by authority,
And folly, doctor - like, controlling skill,
And simple truth miscalled simplicity,
And captive good attending captain ill:
Tired with all these, from these would I be gone,
Save that, to die, I leave my love alone.

Charity Game Scheduled

The Highland Park Duplicate Club announces a one session ACBL sponsored charity game, to be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Highland Park Country Club. This is the second in a three game series planned by the club. A masterpoint game —all duplicate and rubber bridge players are invited. Reservations are not necessary. The proceeds will go to the American Red Cross Disaster Fund.

The wedding will be solemnized October 24, at 10 o'clock, in the morning at Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church with the Reverend Dave Dabria officiating.

Miss Genung Will Wed Mr. Busby In Late Fall

Of special interest here and in New Orleans is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Joanne Genung to Gerald Bernard Busby made known by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Arthur Genung Jr.

Mr. Busby is the son of Mrs. Ernest Busby and the late Mr. Busby of Dallas, Texas.

The wedding will be solemnized on Friday evening, November 27, at 7 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church with the Reverend W. H. McFadden officiating.

The bride - elect is the granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Tete of New Orleans and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Arthur Genung of Long Beach, Mississippi. A graduate of Eleanor McMain High School in New Orleans, she also attended Tulane University.

Mr. Busby is a graduate of Southern Methodist University where he was a member of Delta Sigma Phi social fraternity.

After the ceremony the young couple will make their home in Monroe.

Miss Carey Sue Turner Weds In Christ Church

Of interest here is the recent marriage of Miss Carey Sue Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Key Turner of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, formerly of Monroe, to Richare Dale Mackie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elton B. Mackie of New Orleans.

The wedding was solemnized in Christ Episcopal Church in Bay Saint Louis, members of the two families in attendance.

Mrs. Mackie graduated from Casady School in Oklahome City and is a student at Newcomb College. She is affiliated with Chi Omega social sorority.

Mr. Mackie will receive his bachelor of science degree at Tulane University in June. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

MISS CAROLYN BENNET'S betrothal to Douglas D. McIntosh is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bennett. He is the son of Mrs. D. M. McIntosh and the late Mr. McIntosh. Both families of Oak Grove. The wedding will be solemnized on November 1, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, in the Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Oak Grove.

Glenn William Breedlove Is Marrie To Miss Loyd

WEARING a wedding gown of white satin and Venise lace, Miss Martha Loyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Loyd of Hughes Springs, Texas became the bride of Glenn William Breedlove of Monroe, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bredlove of Natchitoches, in the First Baptist Church of Hughes Springs, Texas.

Escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride complemented her waltz-length wedding dress with a bouquet of pale pink carnations surrounding a white cattleya orchid. Her dress was styled with a portrait neckline enhanced by an outline of Venise lace. Her fingertip-length veil of bridal illusion drifted from a tiara of seed pearls.

Attended by Bobby Breedlove, his brother, Mr. Breedlove awaited his bride at the altar where the Rev. Robert Lloyd officiated at the double - ring ceremony. Large baskets of white gladioli decorated the altar.

Miss Susan Parish, organist, provided music for the occasion. "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer" were sung by Carolyn and John Rushing.

The wedding guests were ushered to their places by Larry Loyd, brother of the bride, an Pil Abernathy, cousin of the bride.

Preceding the bride down the aisle was her cousin, who was her maid of honor, Miss Maybelle Abernathy. She was attired in a waltz - length dress of spring pink organdy. She carried a bouquet of white carnations.

For the occasion, Mrs. Loyd, mother of the bride, wore a gray suit with white accessories, and a white carnation corsage. Mrs. Breedlove, mother of the groom, wore a powder blue sheath dress with pink accessories, and a white carnation corsage.

The bride chose a black sheath dress with an orchid corsage for the wedding trip.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. Randell Harkey, Miss Sharlon Graham and Miss Kay Sue Fincher, all of Shreveport; Mr. Benny Brice, Miss Jimmy Hilburn, and Mrs. Dickie Gitchell, of Monroe.

The bride is a graduate of Hughes Springs High School, and is now attending Northwestern State College where she is a senior nursing student. The groom is a graduate of Natchitocres High school, and is now working in Monroe.

The couple will make their home in Monroe.

Barbara Wells Mr. Patterson Wed In Clayton

The Clayton Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Barbara Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Wells to Mr. Doyle Patterson son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Patterson on Friday evening at 6:00 p.m. Rev. Horace Carpenter performed the double ring ceremony. The church was decorated with an arbor of lighted cathedral tapers flanked on either side with baskets of white gladioli and fern trees.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a pink lace gown with a fitted bodice and flaring skirt with pink satin bows. Her headpiece was of pink satin and she carried a bouquet of white carnations atop a white Bible.

Miss Jackie Wells a cousin of the bride served as maid of honor. Her dress was of turquoise silk organza made with a veleteen bodice. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Mr. Tony Patterson, brother of the groom, served as best man.

During the ceremony Miss Patricia Dollar rendered the nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. G. J. McIntosh who sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Ushers were Mike Wells and Paul Patterson.

The bride's mother wore a beige linen embroidered dress with a beige feather hat. Her ensemble was accented with a corsage of yellow carnations. The mother of the bridegroom chose for her son's wedding a pink lace dress with navy accessories. Her corsage was of blue carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the annex of the church. The bride's table was decorated with an antique cloth and centered with a tiered wedding cake and epergne of white carnations. Mrs. H. I. Cross served at the punch bowl while Mrs. Victor Cross served the cake. Miss Charlotte Emfinger attended the bride's book. After a honeymoon to the coast the young couple will be at home in Natchez, Miss.

MRS. RUBE A. BOOK

Miss Emmons, Mr. Book Exchange Vows In Afternoon Ceremony

Sunday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, Miss Dewanna E. Emmons and Rube A. Book were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony at the Ridge Avenue Baptist Church. The Reverend A. T. Mitchell officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Emmons of West Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Book of St. Landry are the parents of the bridegroom.

White gladioli in tall baskets decorated the altar. A musical background for the exchanging of vows was provided by Miss Margie Norris. Miss Nancy Dodd was soloist.

The bride entered the church with her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of Chantilly lace and tulle over bridal satin, fashioned with a fitted bodice of lace with scalloped neckline and a voluminous skirt of tulle. A tiered circular shoulder length veil fell from a Juliet cap encrusted in seed pearls. She carried a white orchid surrounded by feathered carnations atop her white Prayer Book.

Miss Janice Emmons served her sister as maid of honor. Her street length frock was of burnt orange peau de soie made with rounded neckline and full skirt. In her hair she wore a headdress of matching material and carried a bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums.

Carlton Deville was best man and the ushers included Danny Emmons, nephew of the bride, and Larry Book, brother of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmons were hosts at a reception following the ceremony. Mrs. Emmons received her guests wearing a biege dress with matching shoes and bag. Her hat was pink and she wore a corsage of pink blossoms. She was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Book who chose a dress of navy blue with matching accessories, and a corsage of pink stephanotis.

The cake table was covered with a pink satin cloth with net overskirt. A tiered wedding cake placed on a reflector was placed at one end of the table and punch was served from a milk glass bowl at the opposite end. A rain tree was featured in the house decorations.

Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Book left for Santa Anna, California where they will reside. The bride traveled in a two piece suit of Hunters green with contrasting accessories.

Vaughn-Ashley Wedding Is Recent Event

Miss Pat Ashley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Ashley of Kilbourne, became the bride of James Vaughn, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Vaughn of the city, Friday, September, 11 in a double ring ceremony in the home of the bride's parents in Kilbourne.

The Reverend J. D. Bell performed the evening ceremony before an improvised altar of baskets of white gladioli and greenery.

The bride, wearing a transitional cotton of brown and black with three quarter length sleeve jacket and accessories of powder blue, was given in marriage by her father. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Lyn Harris. Her dress was of brown cotton made along simple princess lines with which she wore a corsage of white gladioli.

John Fogleman served as best man.

A reception followed the ceremony. Mrs. Ashley chose a navy blue sheath for her daughters wedding and Mrs. Vaughn was wearing a linen dress of black and white. They both wore corsages of white gladioli. Miss Elizabeth Hanks assisted in the hostess courtesies.

Following a wedding trip to Vicksburg, Mississippi. Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn were making their home at 605 South 5th St. in Monroe.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Fogleman, Miss Billie Ruth Humphries, Miss Eliabeth Hanks, Miss Doris Wyatt, and Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Vaughn all of Monroe.

Frank Thomas Is Married In Baton Rouge

The Our Lady of Mercy Catholic Church in Baton Rouge was the scene Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, September 19, of the marriage of Miss Roberta Landry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hypolite T. Landry and Frank L. Thomas.

Mr. Thomas is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Thomas of Monroe. The Rev. Louis Marionneaux officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Standards of white gladioli decorated the sanctuary of the church as the bride was escorted to the altar rail by her father. She was attended only by her niece, Miss Larry Jean Wilson, while Mr. Thomas had selected to be his best man Mr. Lenton Sartain Jr.

For her wedding the bride chose a street-length gown of sand beige silk organza. The gown featured the new full sleeves and a softly shirred skirt. A tiny collar of hand clipped Chantilly lace added a note of distinction to the gown. Upon her head was a tiny lace pillbox hat, especially designed for her. She carried an orchid interminglel with stock, and wore pearl earrings, a gift of the groom.

Miss Wilson wore a French blue dress of chiffon made with a very full skirt and short puffed sleeves. She wore a tiara of horsehair and a circular veil and carried a nosegay of sweetheart roses.

Guests and the bridal party gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hopkins on Donna Dr. following the ceremony. Here guests were received by the parents of the bride and by the newly married couple.

Mrs. J. S. Wilson presided at the guest register and others in the house party, assisting Mrs. Hopkins, were Mrs. Charles Gaiennie, Mrs. Daniel Schwartz, Mrs. Zola Windham, Mrs. A. M. Thomas, Mrs. George Thomas and Miss Ina Merle Thomas.

Tea girls were Misses Bernadine Walsh, Margaret McHardy, Sandra Couvillion and Catherine McIntyre.

Following their wedding trip, the coluple will make their home in Baton Rouge. The bride and groom are both graduates of LSU.

Among the out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. Hypolite Landry Jr., brother of the bride, who is a student at the LSU School of Medicine in New Orleans; Mrs. Daniel Schwartz, sister of the bride, from S. Sallsburg, N.Y., and her son Marlin; Mrs. Florence Daigle, Edward Daigle, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Gaskins, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Cambias and Mrs. Katherine Weir, all from New Orleans; Mr. Luke Babin, Mrs. Marie Elise Coffman from White Castle; Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Landry from Paradise; Dr. and Mrs. Albert M. Thomas from Houston; and Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas and Miss Ina Merle Thomas from Monroe.

For her wedding trip the bride wore an original fall print of imported cotton in blue and green with a small hat of the same print. Her accessories were blue.

MRS. RUBE A. BOOK

Miss Emmons, Mr. Book Exchange Vows In Afternoon Ceremony

Sunday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, Miss Dewanna E. Emmons and Rube A. Book were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony at the Ridge Avenue Baptist Church. The Reverend A. T. Mitchell officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Emmons of West Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Book of St. Landry are the parents of the bridegroom.

White gladioli in tall baskets decorated the altar. A musical background for the exchanging of vows was provided by Miss Margie Norris. Miss Nancy Dodd was soloist.

The bride entered the church with her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of Chantilly lace and tulle over bridal satin, fashioned with a fitted bodice of lace with scalloped neckline and a voluminous skirt of tulle. A tiered circular shoulder length veil fell from a Juliet cap encrusted in seed pearls. She carried a white orchid surrounded by feathered carnations atop her white Prayer Book.

Miss Janice Emmons served her sister as maid of honor. Her street length frock was of burnt orange peau de soie made with rounded neckline and full skirt. In her hair she wore a headdress of matching material and carried a bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums.

Carlton Deville was best man and the ushers included Danny Emmons, nephew of the bride, and Larry Book, brother of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmons were hosts at a reception following the ceremony. Mrs. Emmons received her guests wearing a biege dress with matching shoes and bag. Her hat was pink and she wore a corsage of pink blossoms. She was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Book who chose a dress of navy blue with matching accessories, and a corsage of pink stephanotis.

The cake table was covered with a pink satin cloth with net overskirt. A tiered wedding cake placed on a reflector was placed at one end of the table and punch was served from a milk glass bowl at the opposite end. A rain tree was featured in the house decorations.

Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Book left for Santa Anna, California where they will reside. The bride traveled in a two piece suit of Hunters green with contrasting accessories.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Phelps, and Airman Williams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Williams, both families of Conway community. The double ring ceremony was performed by Reverend Ted J. Lann. The altar was covered in bridal white and highlighthed by potted palms and double baskets of white gladioli and mums. Tall white candelabra containing burning cathedral tapers formed an arch.

While the guests were being seated by the ushers, Otis McDougal and Jerry aDniels, Mrs. Robert Dawkins played selections of nuptial music at the organ. After the mothers of the bride and bridegroom were seated in the family pews, marked with large white satin pew-bows, the candles were lighted by the ushers.. Mrs. Dawkins then accompanied Mrs. Ted Lann who sang "I Love You Truly."

The strains of the wedding ma marked the entrance of the wedding party. The minister, groom and his brother, Buddy Williams, who served as best man, entered the sanctuary and stood at the altar to await the bride. Miss Dawn Tucker, the only attendant, preceded the bride down the aisle. She wore a blue polished cotton sheath dress with matching accessories and a white carnation corsage at her shoulder.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father. She wore a ceil blue afternoon gown. The bodice featured an off shoulder effect with darker blue chiffon outlining the neckline. The tiny waist tapered to a bouffant ballerina length skirt. She wore a matching ceil blue hat with white nose veil and dainty white nylon gloves. She carried a bouquet of carnations and stephanotis with white streamers on a white Bible. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, and single pearl carrings.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Williams left for Oak Harbor, Washington, where they will make their home for the next two years.

Two Hostesses Entertain Literary Club

Mrs. Faye Bell and Mrs. Yvonne Deville entertained the members of the Mangham Literary Club Tuesday night in the home of Mrs. Bell.

Mrs. Marguerite Marlow, the president, called the meeting to order—the minutes were read and approved. The bulletin was read and discussed.

Mrs. Sallie Landrum gave a most interesting review on "Carmelite Janivier" beginning with a tragic accident which happened to her at the age of nine and how it led her into a wonderful life and work with handicapped children.

The club adjourned with the Club Collect. The October meeting to be with Mrs. Ruby Williamson and Mrs. Jeanie Noble.

A delicious iced dessert was served to the following: Miss Ola Cooper, Mrs. Traylor Jones, Mrs. Theo Jones, Mrs. Marlow, Mrs. Annette Coolege, Mrs. Adams Childress, Mrs. Herman Welch, Mrs. Emmette Landrum, Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. Marion Lyles, Mrs. Rosie Dee Landers, Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Deville.

Something New In Furs For Fall Fashions

WOMAN TO WOMAN
By MARY PRIME

NEW YORK (UPI)—Designer Bonnie Cashin has come up with something new in furs—a collection for the woman who doesn't want to feel like a "status seeker."

"I hope mostly to appeal to the kind of woman who really hasn't been interested in fur coats for years," Miss Cashin said. "She has plenty of money to buy the best, but the appetite has been missing."

Miss Cashin's first fur collection, designed for Fantasia Furs, will whet the appetite of women who want something fur yet elegant.

It also will appeal to women five-feet, three-inches tall or under who always have looked smothered in fur. Collars roll back from the neck, dip slightly lower in back, to create the illusion of greater neck length. Sleeves, though roomy, are not overpowering. Even sleeves of Japanese kimono styles are so well proportioned that they don't seem bulky.

Prices range from $595 and up for jackets to about $1,159 and up for coats. A raglan coat of beige otter—designed to fit a 10-year-old girl—costs about $1,195. The most expensive coat in the collection is a full-length beige otter, collared with brown persian lamb and lined in paisley silk. Price: more than $2,000.

Furs used were otter, beaver, and jaguar. Trimmings were fox, lynx, persian lamb. Colors included red, a dark olive green, blue, oyster, caramel, and black. Linings included silk tweeds, colored wool, and bright thaibok silk.

Silhouettes ranged from the kimono coat (worn either belted or loose) to three-quarter frock coats and short smock and straight jackets. One cape had giant patch pockets in front. A gently bell-shaped, full - length beaver coat was inspired by a Persian tunic. A sleeveless shell, done in green beaver, was adapted from a Chinese "fat man's vest" to be worn over a skinny - sleeved sheath.

The California-born Miss Cashin teamed coats with long, colorful silk stoles, or "Pacomas," worn by Siamese women.

For the woman who has everything—mostly nerve—was a jaguar jacket with kimono sleeves and wide neckline, lined in red wool jersey. It came with a separate hood made of a jaguar head.

MISS MARY JANE DILLARD

Mary Jane Dillard Will Wed Mr. McCoy Oct. 31

Mr. and Mrs. Wimberly Tonie Dillard of Ruston announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Jane, to Lemuel William McCoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Everett McCoy of Rayville.

Reverend G. Avery Lee will officiate at the ceremony to take place Saturday October 31 at 5 o'clock in the afternoon at the First Baptist Church in Ruston.

Mrs. J. Donald Hammock, of Ruston, a cousin of the bride, will be matron of honor and the bridesmaids are to be Mrs. Charles Farris, Jr., Mrs. Thomas A. Fromnerz, both of New Orleans, Mrs. James Foster Huff, Alexandria, Mrs. Theo C. McCoy, of Houston, Texas and Mrs. Martin Everett McCoy Jr., of Fairfax, Virginia, sisters-in-law of the bridegroom.

Mr. McCoy will be his son's best man and the groomsmen and ushers will include his brothers, Dr. Theo C. McCoy, of Houston, Major Martin Everett McCoy, Fairfax, Va. and John A. McCoy of Alto, J. Hubert Walker, New Orleans, and John C. Morris, Jr. and Carey J. Ellis Jr. both of Rayville.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Benjamin Edwards, of Ruston and the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lovett Dillard, Farmerville. She graduated from Newman High School in New Orleans and Newcomb College where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi fraternity.

Mr. McCoy is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Lattimore Shaw of Natchez, Mississippi and the late Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lemuel McCoy of Alto. He is a graduate of Rayville High School and Tulane University where he was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. He did graduate work in architecture at the University of Rome, in Italy.

After their marriage the young couple will live in New Orleans.

Mrs. Underwood Entertains Mangham Club

The Bono Nostrorum Club held its September meeting in the home of Mrs. C. N. Underwood in Mangham with Mrs. B. N. Hixon serving as co-hostess.

The leader, Mrs. Maude Parham, gave an interesting account of the life and works of Ellen Glasgow. Born in Richmond, Miss Glasgow wrote about the South with understanding. Her book, "Barren Ground," was reviewed by Mrs. M. K. McConnell.

In the absence of the president, the vice - president, Mrs. Underwood, presided. Mrs. Parham gave a report on the "Club Woman" magazine. An urgent appeal was made by Mrs. H. L. Murray on behalf of the Parish Library. Mrs. McConnell made a report on the new Year Book and program planned. A discussion of the club's project of civic improvement concluded the business portion of the meeeting.

During the social hour refreshments were served to: Mrs. E. D. Baker, Mrs. H. J. Brown, Miss Virgie Evans, Mrs. C. W. Jones, Mrs. McConnell, Mrs. T. J. McKay, Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Parham, Mrs. Kate Talbert, Mrs. H. G. Tillman and Miss Ethel Watson.

Mrs. Mulhearn Plans Program For Lakeshore

Mrs. Thomas Mulhearn, program chairman Lakeshore Parent-Teacher Association, planned a "Get - Together - Meet Your Neighbor - Teacher" program for the initial meeting Thursday evenin. Mrs. John P. Zoll, principal was the guest speaker. The teachers were introduced by grade groups. Two new teachers, Miss Ina Faye Owens, fourth grade and Mrs. Dick Troy, second grade, were added to the faculty. Mrs. Ann Chevalier serves three days a week as librarian.

Carl A. Davis, president, presided during the business session. The membership chairman, Mrs. Carl A. Davis reported a total of 467 members. Three teachers reported 100 per cent membership from their rooms. Thomas Mulhearn was introduced as the carnival chairman. The carnival date was set for October 23. Mrs. Louise Thacker's first grade won the room award with 80.7 per cent parents present. The hospitality committee served iced drinks and assorted cakes during the social hour to the 230 parents and teachers present.

Mink Stole Gets New Competition

IT'S NO LONGER fashionable to go about dripping in mink, says designer Dein Bacher. There's no law that says you have to have a stole long enough to reach your knees.

"The important thing is for a woman to have a fur that is exactly right for her type and needs," says Bacher, "It may be a cape, bolero, jacket or stole, but it should be properly proportioned and designed so that it stays put and doesn't have to be clutched in a death grip across the stomach."

There's more variety in the popular "little furs" this season than in many years, says Bacher. A few years ago the goal of practically every woman was to have a mink stole exactly like that of her next-door neighbor or best friend. The epidemic of identical stoles was almost frightening.

Today the brief cape, the little shrug, the bolero and the jacket in varied lengths give variety to the picture.

"The petite woman should wear a small fur, proportioned to her size," says Bacher. "The tall woman can get away with a long stole, if that's what she wants. But there's nothing worse than to see a little woman completely eclipsed by a big fur."

New mutations also give greater variety to the fur linup. There's a mink color to suit every taste and type these days, from palest beige and silvery tones to the deepest browns and blacks.

The little fur wrap nowadays has become a year-round necessity, what with air-conditioned restaurants and theaters in summer, heated cars and buildings in winter. A woman needs a light wrap at any time of year.

Mary Jane Dillard Will Wed Mr. McCoy Oct. 31

Mr. and Mrs. Wimberly Tonie Dillard of Ruston announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Jane, to Lemuel William McCoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Everett McCoy of Rayville.

Reverend G. Avery Lee will officiate at the ceremony to take place Saturday October 31 at 5 o'clock in the afternoon at the First Baptist Church in Ruston.

Mrs. J. Donald Hammock, of Ruston, a cousin of the bride, will be matron of honor and the bridesmaids are to be Mrs. Charles Farris, Jr., Mrs. Thomas A. Fromnerz, both of New Orleans, Mrs. James Foster Huff, Alexandria, Mrs. Theo C. McCoy, of Houston, Texas and Mrs. Martin Everett McCoy Jr., of Fairfax, Virginia, sisters-in-law of the bridegroom.

Mr. McCoy will be his son's best man and the groomsmen and ushers will include his brothers, Dr. Theo C. McCoy, of Houston, Major Martin Everett McCoy, Fairfax, Va. and John A. McCoy of Alto, J. Hubert Walker, New Orleans, and John C. Morris, Jr. and Carey J. Ellis Jr. both of Rayville.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Benjamin Edwards, of Ruston and the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lovett Dillard, Farmerville. She graduated from Newman High School in New Orleans and Newcomb College where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi fraternity.

Mr. McCoy is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Lattimore Shaw of Natchez, Mississippi and the late Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lemuel McCoy of Alto. He is a graduate of Rayville High School and Tulane University where he was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. He did graduate work in architecture at the University of Rome, in Italy.

After their marriage the young couple will live in New Orleans.

Mrs. Underwood Entertains Mangham Club

The Bono Nostrorum Club held its September meeting in the home of Mrs. C. N. Underwood in Mangham with Mrs. B. N. Hixon serving as co-hostess.

The leader, Mrs. Maude Parham, gave an interesting account of the life and works of Ellen Glasgow. Born in Richmond, Miss Glasgow wrote about the South with understanding. Her book, "Barren Ground," was reviewed by Mrs. M. K. McConnell.

In the absence of the president, the vice - president, Mrs. Underwood, presided. Mrs. Parham gave a report on the "Club Woman" magazine. An urgent appeal was made by Mrs. H. L. Murray on behalf of the Parish Library. Mrs. McConnell made a report on the new Year Book and program planned. A discussion of the club's project of civic improvement concluded the business portion of the meeeting.

During the social hour refreshments were served to: Mrs. E. D. Baker, Mrs. H. J. Brown, Miss Virgie Evans, Mrs. C. W. Jones, Mrs. McConnell, Mrs. T. J. McKay, Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Parham, Mrs. Kate Talbert, Mrs. H. G. Tillman and Miss Ethel Watson.

Mrs. Mulhearn Plans Program For Lakeshore

Mrs. Thomas Mulhearn, program chairman Lakeshore Parent-Teacher Association, planned a "Get - Together - Meet Your Neighbor - Teacher" program for the initial meeting Thursday evenin. Mrs. John P. Zoll, principal was the guest speaker. The teachers were introduced by grade groups. Two new teachers, Miss Ina Faye Owens, fourth grade and Mrs. Dick Troy, second grade, were added to the faculty. Mrs. Ann Chevalier serves three days a week as librarian.

Carl A. Davis, president, presided during the business session. The membership chairman, Mrs. Carl A. Davis reported a total of 487 members. Three teachers reported 100 per cent membership from their rooms. Thomas Mulhearn was introduced as the carnival chairman. The carnival date was set for October 23. Mrs. Louise Thacker's first grade won the room award with 80.7 per cent parents present. The hospitality committee served iced drinks and assorted cakes during the social hour to the 230 parents and teachers present.

Mink Stole Gets New Competition

IT'S NO LONGER fashionable to go about dripping in mink, says designer Dein Bacher. There's no law that says you have to have a stole long enough to reach your knees.

"The important thing is for a woman to have a fur that is exactly right for her type and needs," says Bacher, "It may be a cape, bolero, jacket or stole, but it should be properly proportioned and designed so that it stays put and doesn't have to be clutched in a death grip across the stomach."

There's more variety in the popular "little furs" this season than in many years, says Bacher. A few years ago the goal of practically every woman was to have a mink stole exactly like that of her next-door neighbor or best friend. The epidemic of identical stoles was almost frightening.

Today the brief cape, the little shrug, the bolero and the jacket in varied lengths give variety to the picture.

"The petite woman should wear a small fur, proportioned to her size," says Bacher. "The tall woman can get away with a long stole, if that's what she wants. But there's nothing worse than to see a little woman completely eclipsed by a big fur."

New mutations also give greater variety to the fur linup. There's a mink color to suit every taste and type these days, from palest beige and silvery tones to the deepest browns and blacks.

The little fur wrap nowadays has become a year-round necessity, what with air-conditioned restaurants and theaters in summer, heated cars and buildings in winter. A woman needs a light wrap at any time of year.

Women Going Wild Over Square Hair

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

"WOMEN WANT wild hairdos," says hairdresser Nancy Mace of New York, "and that's one reason I had to create the new square - top look."

Mild hairdos obviously make a woman feel more glamorous, in the sexy fashion of Italian girls with whom the hairdo originated, she says. But now they can be wild-coiffed in a ladylike sort of way. Says Nancy:

"The idea behind the square look is tamed wildness. The hairdo is flat at the ears, combed high in the manner of the old pompadour, but cut on simple lines into a wave wing. Variations could include pulling down a lock of hair from this controlled hair if a more carefree hairstyle is desired."

One important impression given by the square look is height, Miss Mace explains, and this helps slenderize and ovalize the face. The hair can how a slight indentation of part and fall away high from either side of it. Or the hair can fall over the forehead in bangs that originate well back on the head with a pompadour - type sweep rising behind it. This short hair is blunt-cut and loosely waved without curl.

This fall it's going to be the hair line that counts says Nancy Mace, whose Les Girls salon caters to the cream of the working girl set. Nancy can tell which way the wind is blowing fashionwise and when the breeze will change its course just by talking to her customers.

"A hairdresser doesn't really set the styles. She gives the customers what they want but she puts their coiffure desires in a hair pattern that flatters their features, and is becoming to the current dress modes of the moment."

Women Like Fancier Pants For Home Wear

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women not only insist on wearing the pants in the family today. But they want them a little fancier each season.

One firm specializing in form-fitting trousers for at-home wear showed a "14 carat" costume for winter evenings—a gold colored metallic knit, which was used for the clinging trousers, cummerbund and shirtwaist top.

The same manufacturer, Casino Classics, made skinny pants in white peau de soie (a fine ribbed silk), candlelight (off-white) brocade, brocade in emerald, red or green with overall gold embroidery, and medallion-printed peau de soie.

One lounging costume by Kenn Barr, the Casino designer, is of cotton plaid, its big square pattern outlined with colored sequins. The plaid is used for a long, straight skirt, for trousers and short cocktail apron. The top is black jersey.

Some of the trousers are in tweed, with subdued pattern, and bugle bead and pearl trim around the ankle. Others are in black velveteen or jersey with gold metallic embroidery or rhinestones and bead trim. Wool or matte (a clinging silk) eyjers tp otwsih (a clInging silk) jersey tops with matching "bracelets" embroidered on the sleeves are shown with these.

Other tops include white satin shirtwaists or golden peacock-patterned brocade smoking jackets, with belt casually tied.

A collection of fun pants for the holiday season included one pair in black faille with a jewel-trimmed sleigh of white felt set on the shank; and a pair in white faille with a rhinestone-decorated Christmas tree embroidered in heavy gold thread.

Also for fun: Pants in black velveteen trimmed with rhinestone dice—"the Las Vegas special"; said the firm's president, Harold Bauman; and a pair trimmed with the outlines of an oil well, also done in rhinestones.

"For Texas and Oklahoma women," said Bauman.

BETTER GRAVY

The old - fashioned way with gravy was to use browned flour for thickening. Result: Good color and flavor. To brown flour stir it in a skillet over low heat until a dark golden color. Flour prepared this way has less thickening power than a corresponding amount of regular flour.

Miss Everett Mr. Colson Exchange Vows

Miss Nancy Catherine Everett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Everett, of Altheimer, Arkansas, became the bride of Kenneth Francis Colson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett E. Colson of Oak Ridge. The vows were said on Friday, September 11 at 8 o'clock in the evening in the Wabbaseka Baptist Church with the Reverend Donald E. Wright officiating before an archway entwined with greenery and flanked with candelabra holding lighted tapers and baskets of white chrysanthemums. The candles were lighted by Ed Everett, brother of the bride and Jimmy Orton, both of Altheimer. The nuptial music was presented by Miss India Jones at the organ and Berlin Tiner, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk lace and net over bridal satin. Fashioned with a bodice of lace with a modified Sabrina neckline the bouffant skirt of net was finished with appliques of lace and swept into a cathedral train. Her fingertip veil fell from a tiara of lace trimmed with sequins and she carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. James Everett, a sister-in-law, served as matron of honor. The other attendants included Miss Kathleen Murphy and Miss Carolyn Sue Jones. They all wore dresses of pale blue taffeta with dainty headdresses of the same material and carried bouquets of white carnations. Pequita Everett, of Pine Bluff, a cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. Her dress was of the same shade of blue and she carried a basket of white flowers.

Eugene Colson was his brother's best man and the groomsmen and ushers were Reggie Hall, cousin of the bride, Lee Edward Taylor and Leroy Oardenne.

Mrs. Everett chose a dress of navy peau de soie with navy accessories and a white corsage for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Colson was dressed in a lighter shade of blue, fall cotton with dark blue trim. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett were hosts at a reception following the ceremony. Fall blossoms were used about the house and the bridal attendants flowers formed the decorations for the bride's table. Miss Donna Hall and Miss Lou Jones assisted in the courtesies.

For her wedding trip along the Gulf Coast the bride wore a two-piece suit of tan and green checked cotton with black kid accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Colson will live at 700 Laurel, Pine Bluff, Arkansas.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Colson, parents of the bridegroom and his grandmother, Mrs. Docia Colson, of Oak Ridge.

Paris Model Will Show High-Fashions

By MARY PRIME
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — In the next two weeks, American women will have a chance to see a high-fashion Paris model in action.

Blonde, lovely Ghislaine (pronounced Gee-laine) Arsac will tour five cities—New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Dallas and San Francisco — to model original numbers from Gabrielle Chanel's fall collection. The tour will be part of a celebration honoring the French designer in 110 stores across the country.

Adaptations of Chanel fashions, produced here by Andrew Arkin, also will be included in the shows.

For the trip, Miss Arsac brought 10 Chanel suits, four evening gowns, at least 20 pairs of shoes, and more than two handfuls of jewelry. "Enough clothes to cost $100 in overweight charges on the plane," she said in an interview.

The 28-year - old model, who stands five-feet, seven-inches tall and weighs 111 pounds, is far from the remote, gaunt, highly made-up mannequin one might expect. She wore little make-up, and was bubbly and casual.

"Chanel likes us to be natural, to be able to walk out on the street in our make-up as is — pale but not white. She can't stand too much black on the eyes," Miss Arsac said in English with just a trace of an accent.

She rarely diets, cuts her own hair, fishes, hunts, skis, rides horses, skates, golfs, swims and cooks.

How about sewing?

She smiled, went to the closet and thumbed through her evening dresses.

"Chanel ... Chanel ... Dior ... this is ME—I made it," she said, pointing to a black dress.

A veteran of eight years in the business, Miss Arsac earns 10,000 francs an hour, or about $25—the highest salary available to French models.

Although her life is glamorous, it is hard work, she explained. She spends four months a year with Chanel — July and August, January and February. Her work starts one month before the opening of a collection.

VITAMIN COUNT

Mackerel, salmon, shad, herring and swordfish are among the fish classified as "fat." Lean fish include cod, haddock, flounder, bluefish, bass, perch. Halibut comes somewhere between these two classifications.

Time To Start Knitting For Christmas

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

KNITTING has man appeal, one reason why many girls carry the needles to school, and even to parties.

Why are men captivated by the activity? For different reasons, we found out. One man pointed out that "knitting gives a girl poise, it gives her something to do with her hands." Another said, "it is an activity that is associated with femininity." Another remembered fondly that grandma, noted for her good cooking, also loved to knit.

But aside from man's interest in a girl who knits, it is a fine way to produce an inexpensive Christmas present. The fussiest member of the family who can't be pleased with a token gift will appreciate something created with the needles.

A charming gift for a friend, member of the family or even for yourself could be an afghan. Knitting and crochet enthusiasts can turn wool yarn into a lovely room accessory for a living room or den. If the color scheme of a room is kept in mind, so much the better. As an old - hand at afghans I am partial to the "shades of the same color" theme. A sunburst pattern starts with orange, winds up with yellow or a violet ends in lavendar. But these days many knitters like floral patterns that take their cue from Oriental rugs and needlepoint designs, perhaps because of the trend to traditional rooms.

Simple and chic is the striped pattern in afghans, from wide bands of contrasting color or shadings of one hue to zig - zag stripes and lovely ripple stripes. Checks vary from colorful checkerboard and window pane motifs to broad blocks of color overlaid on a solid background. Granny motifs are still popular with their old-fashioned air.

Do one square at a time, carrying your little balls of yarn in your pocketbook, and in no time at all you'll have enough squares to baste together. Experts in yarn stores and the hand knitting associations claim that this is a busy year for teen age knitting.

An afghan will be an investment of time as well as money, so plan it out properly. Smaler gifts that may be hand knit to make a hit with those you plan to shower at Christmas include weskits, socks, ties and sweaters for the boys, stoles, boleros, socks, sweaters for the girls, and bootees, bonnets, panties for the wee members of your family.

Directions for afghans may be obtained from any yarn supplier. But ask grandma, we'll bet she has a pattern that you'll love.

The filling used in a favorite lemon pie may be used without a crust if you turn it into custard cups. After the "puddings" have chilled, you may wish to add meringue to each and brown in a very hot oven for a minute or two.

Beauty Hints

If you are feeling low and are tired of your appearance, one of the best ways to give yourself a lift, is to change the shape of your eyebrows. You can actually change the expression of your face and give yourself a high fashion look by properly shaping your brows and giving them a new arch or slant.

If you are still wearing the heavy, darkly pencilled brows of a few years ago, take a look at the clean, natural - looking lines of the models in the latest high fashion magazines. First, pluck away the stray hairs which dart down toward your eyelids. Then draw on various patterns until you find one which is wonderfully becoming. Remove any extra hairs which detract from the new shape.

If you are feeling low and are tired of your appearance, one of the best ways to give yourself a lift, is to change the shape of your eyebrows. You can actually change the expression of your face and give yourself a high fashion look by properly shaping your brows and giving them a new arch or slant.

If you are still wearing the heavy, darkly pencilled brows of a few years ago, take a look at the clean, natural - looking lines of the models in the latest high fashion magazines. First, pluck away the stray hairs which dart down toward your eyelids. Then draw on various patterns until you find one which is wonderfully becoming. Remove any extra hairs which detract from the new shape.

Paris Model Will Show High-Fashions

By MARY PRIME
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — In the next two weeks, American women will have a chance to see a high-fashion Paris model in action.

Blonde, lovely Ghislaine (pronounced Gee-laine) Arsac will tour five cities—New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Dallas and San Francisco — to model original numbers from Gabrielle Chanel's fall collection. The tour will be part of a celebration honoring the French designer in 110 stores across the country.

Adaptations of Chanel fashions, produced here by Andrew Arkin, also will be included in the shows.

For the trip, Miss Arsac brought 10 Chanel suits, four evening gowns, at least 20 pairs of shoes, and more than two handfuls of jewelry. "Enough clothes to cost $100 in overweight charges on the plane," she said in an interview.

The 23-year - old model, who stands five-feet, seven-inches tall and weighs 111 pounds, is far from the remote, gaunt, highly made-up mannequin one might expect. She wore little make-up, and was bubbly and casual.

"Chanel likes us to be natural, to be able to walk out on the street in our make-up as is — pale but not white. She can't stand too much black on the eyes," Miss Arsac said in English with just a trace of an accent.

She rarely diets, cuts her own hair, fishes, hunts, skis, rides horses, skates, golfs, swims and cooks.

How about sewing?

She smiled, went to the closet and thumbed through her evening dresses.

"Chanel ... Chanel ... Dior ... this is ME—I made it," she said, pointing to a black dress.

A veteran of eight years in the business, Miss Arsac earns 10,000 francs an hour, or about $25—the highest salary available to French models.

Although her life is glamorous, it is hard work, she explained. She spends four months a year with Chanel — July and August, January and February. Her work starts one month before the opening of a collection.

VITAMIN COUNT

Mackerel, salmon, shad, herring and swordfish are among the fish classified as "fat." Lean fish include cod, haddock, flounder, bluefish, bass, perch. Halibut comes somewhere between these two classifications.

MR. AND MRS. L. W. WILLIAMS of West Monroe announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Patricia Ann, to Robert Alton Fairchild. Mr. Fairchild is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Fairchild of Transylvania. The wedding will be an event of late November.

MISS BRENDA RANDOLPH, of New Orleans, and Ronald W. Ellerbe, of Crossett, Arkansas were married in a double ring ceremony September 13th, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Truman A. Ellerbe, parents of the groom. The ceremony was performed by te Rev. J. W. Buckner. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Randolph, of New Orleans, and is a sophomore Music major at Louisiana Tech, Ruston. The groom is a senior Chemical Engineering student at the same school.

P.T.A. Meets For New Year

Mr. James Rutledge, administrator for the Cerebral Palsy School, was the guest speaker for the first P.T.A. meeting. He talked on "The Home and the School, a Winning Combination."

He introduced Miss Joyce Albritton, a new taecher and Mrs. West, the school nurse.

During the business session conducted by the president, Mrs. U. B. Smith, reports were heard from the various committee chairmen. Plans for the year's programs and projects were discussed.

It was announced that the topic for the October meeting would be "Your Child's Teeth" and the meeting would be held at night.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. W. M. Rasberry.

The Carltons Honored At Open House

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Carlton were entertained recently with open house in their new home on the Avant Road in West Monroe. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. D. M. Griffith and Mrs. G. C. Bedenbender. The guests were received by the honorees in the lovely family room of the new home, and were then shown through the remainder of the house.

Among those calling were, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Cockerham and Suzanne, Mrs. Addie Cockerham, Mrs. Myrtle Bedenbender, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Wiggins, Mrs. Lena Carlton, Mrs. Mary Reagan, Mr. and Mrs. David Eppinette, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hale, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Parker, Mrs. W. D. Heisler, Mr. Roy Fair, Mr. Warren Farris, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hollyfield, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin White, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McElroy, Sr., Mr. J. L. McElroy, [illegible], Mrs. George Clark, Mrs. Frank Martin Lillian Austin, and Mr. G. C. Bedenbender.

Gladioli decorated the serving room. The table was overlaid with white linen, with appointments of crystal candleholders and punch service.

Mrs. V. Willis Speaks To Y'Ves Of YWCA

The Y'ves of the Y. W. C. A. met Wednesday, September 23, at the Y building on Jackson St. In the absence of the president, Mrs. B. B. Seale presided at the meeting. After welcoming the guests she introduced Mrs. Vallye Willis who talked on the correct application of cosmetics. A nominating committee was appointed.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. A. W. Gerson and Mrs. F. L. Susor.

Those present were Mrs. William M. Johnson, Jr., Mrs. Robert S. Whitelaw, Mrs. Charles W. Overton, Mrs. J. R. Hood, Mrs. A. C. Herbert, Mrs. William Hochstetler, Mrs. Charles A. Heine, Jr., Mrs. Hollis A. Hayes, Mrs. Thomas A. Pitt, Mrs. Marion Perkins, Mrs. W. E. McGough, Mrs. Bill Ewing, Mrs. M. E. Conlin, Mrs. Fred Bradley, Mrs. C. R. Solomon, Mrs. Klein Crow, Miss Bess Sharp and Mrs. Ruth Hundley.

AFTER SCHOOL

Most mothers like their children to change their clothes when they come home from school. If you do, start from the first day training them where to put their good school clothes. Have them put shoes where they can find them the next morning.

If the children know to put their soiled school clothes in the clothes hamper, you will not have to go to their rooms and pick them up yourself.

EASIER CARVING

Allow a meat roast or meat loaf to rest in a warm place for about 15 minutes a ter coming out of the oven. Best carving or slicing this way!

TO BE WED ON FRIDAY evening October 9 at 7 o'clock in the Locharbor Baptist Church are Miss Emilie Hall and Huey Jinks. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Hall and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Jinks, all of Swartz. The ceremony will be performed by the Reverend Devere Sanson.

Legislation Topic For B&PW Meet

The Business and Professional Women's Club met Tuesday, September 22, at the Y. W. C. A. for their regular monthly program meeting.

The committee on legislation with Miss Maibel Hood as chairman was in charge of the program which was of a patriotic nature.

The meeting opened with Mrs. P. A. Poag at the piano, playing the National Anthem. Miss Hood then introduced Mrs. Rabun Wroten, who sang the National Anthem.

Miss Hood then introduced Mr. Lawrence Gibbs, state representative, who spoke on "How To Pass A Bill." At the end a lively question and answer period was introduced.

The membership of the committee composed of Lula Swinson, Opal Creasy, Mamie Ober, Alberta D'Amico and Alice Baur then repeated the allegiance to the flag.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Ruby McElroy, vice president who introduced a new member Mrs. Lyda Gates and a guest Mrs. J. B. Holland.

The committee on career advancement acted as hostess for the evening. Those on the committee were Mrs. Nethel McDermott, Mildred Truet, Lois Harrell, Zera Edwards, Irene Reid, Lilli Mae Carroll.

Refreshments were served from a linen covered table. The centerpiece was of red guernsey lilies with ribbons of red, white and blue and the American flag as table decorations.

Those present were: Mrs. Hood, Miss Mary O'Kelly, Miss Ober, Mrs. Nethel McDermott, Mrs. Elizabeth Burdeaux, Mis D'Amico, Miss Alma Terry, Mrs. Bessie Skinner, Miss Swinson, Miss Elizabeth Stenberg, Mrs. Carice King, Mrs. Creasy, Mrs. Laura Slator, Mrs. Flora M. Seaman, Miss Baur, Miss Mary Gene Lea, Mrs. Lyda Gates, Mrs. Inas Guin, Mrs. Marguerite Meek, Mrs. Jewel Wise, Mrs. Mabel Wright, Mrs. Marguerite Williams, Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Holland, Mrs. Helen Luckett, Mrs. Zylpha Wainwright, Mrs. Truett, Mrs. Lucille Mathis, Mrs. Rubie McElroy, Mrs. Myrtle Porter, Mrs. Mae Modes, Miss Bettie Oxford, Mrs. Lela Breard, Mrs. Addie Lou Juneman, Mrs. Ava White, Mrs. Faye Heard, Mrs. Reid, Mrs. Harrell, Mrs. Alma Bushnell, Mrs. Ruth Whatley, Mrs. Poag, Mrs. Wroten and Mr. Gibbs.

STRAIN CUSTARD

It's a good idea to strain custard (cooked on top of the range) after cooking. This way you can get rid of any tiny amount of coagulated white that has clung to the yolks used in the custard.

Fleur de Lis Flower Club Begins Season

The first meeting of the Fleur de Lis Flower Club was held in the home of Mrs. J. K. Mayo with Mrs. Ralph Murphy, the new president, presiding.

Mrs. John Lewis gave out assignments from the book, "Art of Flower & Foliage Arrangement" by Anna Hong Rutt, which will be studied this club year.

Arrangements were brought by each of the members in which they used colors symbolic of the fall season. Mrs. Lewis Young and Mrs. Melton Ford were voted in as new members. The new Year Books were distributed to each member.

Present with Mrs. Lewis were Mrs. Julius Fink, Mrs. E. B. Garrett, Mrs. Velpo Guess, Mrs. Jack McDuffie, Mrs. J. B. Young, Mrs. S. J. Russell, Mrs. Ralph Murphy and Mrs. J. W. Golson.

Cafeteria Setting For P.T.A. Meet

The first meeting of the Fairbanks P.-T. A. was held in the school cafeteria with Mrs. James Saterfiel, presiding.

Various committee chairmen gave their reports. Mrs. Billy Joe Rowe, membership chairman reported 34 members to date. The program chairman reported that her programs for the year were already prepared and that Judge Harper would be the guest speaker at the October meeting. A chicken and spaghetti supper will be held at the school September 29. Plans are being made for the Halloween Carnival. Mrs. Paul Karlowitz was appointed by-laws chairman.

Room award went to the 3rd and 4th grades. Door award was won by Mrs. George Stuart. The hospitality committee served iced drinks and cookies.

Also present were Mrs. W. B. Worley, Mrs. Ramsey Stuart, Mrs. E. B. Walters, Mrs. W. Bearden, Mrs. Karlowitz, Mrs. Harold DeBray, Mrs. Borden Bradley, Mrs. Dock Worley, Mrs. C. F. Lloyd, Mrs. Earl Brimberry, Mrs. B. C. McCaskill, Mrs. Fred Peters, Mrs. Wilbur Rogers, Miss Nancy Johnson and Miss Ada McWilliams.

ROASTING POULTRY

Some cooks like to use a flat rack when roasting poultry. If you do this, tip the bird so one side of the breast rests on the rack, then midway through the roasting period, turn the bird and rest the other side of the breast on the rack.

MR. AND MRS. E. E. CROOKS, of Winnfield, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Carolyn, to Lee Roy Conville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle S. Conville of Hodge. The wedding date to be announced later.

'THEATER NO INVALID'

NEW YORK (AP) — Sherman S. Krelberg scoffs at people who call the theater a fabulous invalid.

"Far from being a dead or decadent institution," he says, "I feel that the theater is flourishing."

Krelberg, for 35 years an investor, theater owner and producer, has formed a new organization with $500,000 of his own money for staging plays.

The main thing needed is a business sense, he adds.

"Shows are often put together with little regard for how much they are capable of earning," he says. His aim is to "gear production to what it is likely to bring in at the boxoffice."

Big Earrings May Be Worn In Comfort

GIRLS WHO LIKE big earrings but dislike sore ears now can wear king-size jewelry with comfort.

Judith McCann has been working on this problem for the last ten years. Her first contribution to the cause of tender ears was the wingback earring, which fitted into the ear on a new principle, enabling the wearing of big earrings without discomfort.

Now she has come up with a new design, the Hoopon, a big hoop earring which rests on the ledge above the earlobe, removing pressure from the lobe.

This, says Judith, is the fifth new principle in earring design in the history of earring fashions, which goes back to the ancient Egyptians. The first earrings required pierced ears, a custom which continued for thousands of years. It was not until the 20th Century that the screw and clip type earrings appeared.

Then came Judith's wingback principle a decade ago and now her Hoopon. The latest design makes it possible to keep a huge hoop earring securely in place without pressure on the ear lobe and without the aid of clasps, hinges or fastenings of any kind. The hoop simply slips onto the ear, resting on the ledge above the lobe.

The new hoop earrings come in all versions, from tailored styles for daytime to bejeweled designs for gala evening wear.

TEL AVIVI, Israel (AP) — Harry Golden, editor of "The Carolina Israelite" and author of best sellers "Only in America" and "For 2c Plain," plans a new book called "Only in Israel." Winding up a three-week visit in Israel, he said he'd be back in December to start writing it.

WAS A DANCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Grant, who co-stars with Jeffrey Lynn in the Broadway comedy hit, "Two For the Seesaw," was once a ballet dancer in Metropolitan Opera. She was forced to give up her ballet career when she was stricken with tuberculosis of the hip.

Her first serious stage role was as the shoplifter in Sidney Kingsley's "Detective Story" which had a long Broadway run in 1949.

Her ballet career began at the age of 6 when she danced in several opera ensembles at the Met

PLAN AHEAD

NEW YORK (AP)—The Broadway hit "Flower Drum Song" is encouraging theater fans to buy their tickets well ahead. The mail order department is accepting applications now through June 30, 1960.

The boxoffice gross on the Rodgers-Hammerstein show recently passed the $2,225,000 mark

You can wear your regular glasses after you get your contact lenses, if you so desire. Some people wear regular glasses during the day and Non-Touching contact lenses in the evening. Others wear them for sports or when they go out, using their glasses otherwise. Most people wear their contact lenses when they want to look their best, and use their glasses when they are at home.

Woodlawn PTA Plans Pageant, Talent Show

"Ouachita Parish is the only parish in the state of Louisiana that has gone out 100 per cent for the plan of a centralized library for elementary schools" stated Mr. J. M. Waldrop, Woodlawn School principal, as he introduced the new part time librarian, Mrs. Genevieve McDonald, who was the speaker for the September meeting of the Woodlawn P.-T. A.

The president, Mrs. Billy Caples, led the business session. She announced a Halloween pageant for Saturday evening, October 31, during which time a king and queen would be announced and a talent show held.

Room count was won by Mrs. Pierce's third grade. Refreshments were served by the hospitality committee, Mrs. Courtney Caples and Mrs. Kennis Hines.

Big Earrings May Be Worn In Comfort

GIRLS WHO LIKE big earrings but dislike sore ears now can wear king-size jewelry with comfort.

Judith McCann has been working on this problem for the last ten years. Her first contribution to the cause of tender ears was the wingback earring, which fitted into the ear on a new principle, enabling the wearing of big earrings without discomfort.

Now she has come up with a new design, the Hoopon, a big hoop earring which rests on the ledge above the earlobe, removing pressure from the lobe.

This, says Judith, is the fifth new principle in earring design in the history of earring fashions, which goes back to the ancient Egyptians. The first earrings required pierced ears, a custom which continued for thousands of years. It was not until the 20th Century that the screw and clip type earrings appeared.

Then came Judith's wingback principle a decade ago and now her Hoopon. The latest design makes it possible to keep a huge hoop earring securely in place without pressure on the ear lobe and without the aid of clasps, hinges or fastenings of any kind. The hoop simply slips onto the ear, resting on the ledge above the lobe.

The new hoop earrings come in all versions, from tailored styles for daytime to bejeweled designs for gala evening wear.

Boeuff River Chapter DAR Host Annual Conference

Boeuf River Chapter of Rayville was hostess of the eleventh annual Conference of the Third District, Louisiana Society, Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Thomas S. Gunby, Regent, opened the meeting with an enjoyable coffee hour in the St. David's Episcopal Church Parish House. Silver trays of Charlotte Armstrong roses and Rose of Montana were used on the coffee table and Mrs. Lasley Richardson poured coffee. Mrs. Shelby Meek, director of the Third District presided over the business session.

Mrs. Thomas S. Gunby welcomed the guests on behalf of Boeuf River chapter and Mrs. Robert L. Bailey, Tallulah chapter, state director and state second vice regent, spoke on the work of the districts.

Mrs. William E. Hicks, vice president, National Society, D. A. R. and a member of Pelican chapter, Shreveport, was introduced and Mrs. James H. Galloway, national vice chairman, of the South Central division for the Children of the American Revolution, was presented to the group. State officers attending were Mrs. Edward D. Schneider, state regent, Mrs. Robert L. Bailey, Jr., state second vice regent, Mrs. John S. Redfield, state recording secretary, Mrs. James B. Shackelford, state organizing secretary and Mrs. J. B. Landreaux, state librarian.

Mrs. Meek introduced the new chapter in the third district which has just been organized in Winnsboro and has been named Oakley chapter, four members from the new chapter were present, Miss Rowena Ramage, Mrs. Louella Snyder, Mrs. Henry Buie and Mrs. Snyder. The following state chairmen were present, Mrs. Oliver Lowery, Boeuf river chapter, junior membership; Mrs. Gail K. Gay, Gen. William Carroll chapter, transportation, and Mrs. James H. Galloway, Les Rapides chapter, attendance at Continental Congress. The third district has two chapters that have made the National Honor Roll each year since the program was inaugurated, Abram Morehouse Chapter of Mer Rouge and Fort Miro chapter of Monroe.

The observance of Constitution Week was stressed. It was decided that the third district would purchase an American flag and a D. A. R. flag to be used by the district. The Tallulah chapter was congratulated on being the only chapter in the state to give a scholarship to a student at the D. A. R. school Tamassee.

Mrs. Edward D. Schneider, Mrs. William E. Hicks and Mrs. James B. Shackelford formed an information panel for the discussion period and much information of value to the chapters was brought out by the answers to the questions submitted. All but one of the eleven chapters in the district were represented and sixty - eight members registered. Mrs. Morgan Walker, regent of Les Rapides chapter was a guest of the district. Mrs. James H. Galloway outlined the plans for the Louisiana Society to attend Continental Congress as a group and stated that she was taking reservations for the trip.

Mrs. Schneider, state regent, addressed the group on aims and purposes that the society hopes to accomplish during the year. She also announced that the president general of the N.S.D.A.R. would make her official visit to the Louisiana society, at the George Washington annual birthday luncheon which is held each year with the Abram Morehouse, Miro chapters as hostesses. Mrs. Ashmeade White, the president general is from Maine, and the third district is delighted that her visit will be with them.

Mrs. Joseph Davenport Jr., regent, Abram Morehouse chapter moved that the district give Mrs. Shelby Meek a rising vote of thanks for her services as director during the past three years.

A delicious luncheon was served to the members by the ladies of the Rayville Presbyterian church in their auditorium.

OFFICERS OF THE BONHOMIE BOOK CLUB looking over the year books outlining the study for the new club year are from the left, Mrs. S. B. Hancock, president, Mrs. Paul Bauer, vice-president, Mrs. James Taylor, corresponding secretary and Mrs. A. J. McCready, historian.

St. Matthews Mother's Club Announce Plans

St. Matthew's Mothers Club held its first meeting of the new school year on Thursday afternoon at 3:00 p.m. in the gym meeting room. The president, Mrs. A. L. Embanato, called the meeting to order and introduced all the faculty members present, as well as the chairmen of the various committees.

The secretary read the minutes of the executive meeting held in the home of Mrs. Embanato during the summer and a budget was read and approved. The treasurer read a financial report of expenses for the ensuing year for the past school year, 1958-1959.

The annual school carnival usually held in October was postponed to a later date and it was decided to have a "Take Home Barbecue" on October 18th.

A city - wide Bazaar for the benefit of the Daughters of the Cross will be held sometime in November.

Sr. Fidelis, principal of the grammar school, thanked all the mothers for their cooperation and asked for their continued support. Sr. Rita, principal of the high school, gave a report on the high school activities.

Room count was won by the first and twelfth grades, and the door prize by Mrs. Audry Inzina.

A social hour followed the meeting.

Yard Of Month Award Given Club President

The Epps Garden Club held its first meeting of the new club year in the recreation hall of the Methodist Church on September 14, at 7:30 p.m. Hostesses for the affair were Mrs. C. W. Gilmore, Mrs. C. L. Hawkins, Jr. and Mrs. R. G. Jarrell.

The flower arrangements were made by Mrs. Pauline Jarmon, Mrs. J. B. McIntoch and Mrs. Sam McIntosh.

Mrs. Hawkins presided over the meeting. Reports were heard from the chairmen of the various committees. Miss Lucy Williamson, club delegate, gave a report on the Short Course held in Baton Rouge in August. The showing of the film, "The Epps Garden Flower Show" by Mrs. Gilmore completed the program.

Members present included Mesdames Karl Cook, Robert Garner, Eulah B. Grigsby, Ledelle Holliday, L. L. Jackson, Pauline Jarmon, Erlene Jones, Willie Le Fevre, J. H. Lusk, W. A. Lusk, J. B. McIntosh, Sam McIntosh, C. L. Miller, S. A. Neal, Ray Tharpe, G. O. Thrower, Randolph Whitaker, Miss Lucy Williamson and the three hostesses.

YARD OF MONTH

Mrs. C. L. Hawkins Jr., president of the Epps Garden Club has had the distinction of having her yard judged "Yard of the Month" for the second time within three consecutive months. The many rich tones of red are displayed in the autumn hues Molten Fire Amaranthus, Mallow Marvel hibiscus, Splendens salvia, combined with the green and white of the Candidum caladiums.

Newcomers Welcome New Members

On Wednesday, the sixteenth of this month, the Catholic Newcomers Club held their monthly meeting at The Town House restaurant. After luncheon the members enjoyed a short but interesting speech by the club's guest, Fr. Falle of St. Mathew's Church. His subject "Mr. Khrushchev's Visit".

The members attending were the mesdames Marvin Blaes, Allan Brinkhaus, Rene Brussard, Maxie Barnes, Alford Fennie, Jack Stephens, Dave Smith, Earl Trabue, Wyle Moore, Joe Reine, Otis Jarnagin, Myrtle Rivas, Geo. Raymond, Wallace Olinde, Frank Marchefski, C. B. McMahon, Cliff Page, Richard Yeager, Troy Frances, Gordon Nunez. The new members introduced at this time were the Mrs. Alfred Fennie, Wallace Olinde, an out of town guest was Mrs. Dew. Blessing of Fort Meyer, Fla.

Membership Tea Given By Women's Group

The American Business Women's Association held their fall "Hand of Friendship" tea September 20 at 2:30 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Eula B. Williamson, 409 North 5th St., West Monroe.

Virginia Wilhite, tea chairman, was assisted in the courtesies by Louise Chapman and Mary Byrd. Greeting the ladies in the receiving line were officers of the A. B. W. A.: Evelyn Pankey, Jane Guthrie, Nell Schanks and the hostess, Eula Williamson.

Other members attending were Eloise Mayo, Eleanor Larsen, Venila Wells, Vera Gaddis, Polly Chapman, Lila Walsworth, and Virginia L. Calhoun.

The guests present were Margie Skipper, Margaret Fryant, Zula Williamson, Myra Overton, Georgia Bradberry, Viola Newsom, Willette Hawkins, Virginia Allison, Giner Burkett, Nethel P. McDermott, Sally Hayes and Barbara Stephenson.

Lunch Program Study For Crosley PTA

Questions of considerable interest about the school lunch program were taken under consideration by the Crosley P. T. A. at their first meeting. Over 100 parents and teachers were present for the session which began with "Open House" giving the parents an opportunity to meet the teachers.

The invocation was given by Mr. J. M. Marshall. Chairman reports were given. A budget for the year was accepted by the unit. Mrs. T. C. Cockerham, actities coordinator, gave a report on activities for the unit. Magazine chairman, Mrs. Raymond Phillips, reported 15 magazines sold. Membership chairman, Mrs. G. C. Bedenbender, reported 201 enrolled this year. Interesting displays of the National Parent-Teacher magazine and Publications was set up by Mrs. John Franks, publications chairman.

Each teacher and officer was presented with a lovely flower by Mrs. W. D. Sawyer, hospitality chairman. Under her direction, attractive refreshments were served by the sixth grade room representatives. Mrs. Avis Armstrong's fifth grade was winner of room count with 29 present.

Mrs. McCoy Talks To P.T.A. Group

Shady Grove Elementary School held its first P.T.A. meeting of the year Thursday September 17.

Mrs. Dan Ryals, president, introduced Mrs. Courtland McCoy. Mrs. McCoy spoke to a large group of parents. She brought out many pertinent points concerning the work of P.T.A. Her discussion led to the realization that the home and the school are indeed a winning combination for working together to achieve common goals for the welfare of children.

A business meeting followed Mrs. McCoy's speech. Projects for the year were discussed and voted on. Plans were made for the annual Carnival. The date selected was Friday October 23, 1959.

Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed by the teachers and parents. Room count was won by Mrs. Judith Robbins, First Grade.

Garden Club Holds Corsage Workshop

The Crystal Ball Room of the Virginia Hotel was the meeting place for the Welcome Garden clubs first lecture of the year.

Mrs. O. O. Cummings, president, called the meeting to order. She reminded each member of the coming fall flower show, "The Magic of Autumn" to be held at the West Monroe High School, Saturday October 24 from 3:30 to 7 p.m.

Mrs. Cummings then introduced Mrs. Roy Davis of Shreveport, an accredited judge and editor of the Louisiana Garden Federation Newsletter.

Mrs. Davis gave an illustrated lecture on festive table arrangements, from breakfast through dinner, buffet, patio and tea tables. Showing how to pick up color from the table appointments and also interchanged with other appointments using the same flowers.

Hostesses for the open meeting were Mrs. R. M. Kettenring, Mrs. E. A. Porter, Mrs. W. G. Haab, Mrs. L. J. Hulin, Mrs. W. T. Ellis, Mrs. Margaret Smith, Mrs. Harry L. Hipp, Mrs. L. N. Copes, Mrs. W. C. Feazel and Mrs. Oscar Harrell.

Girl Scout News

Starting off their second year with fun in the out of doors is Troop 85, which had its first get-together at Bernstein Park. With their leaders, Mrs. Lyda Tolbird and Mrs. N. B. Thurmond, the girls played games under the trees, toured the zoo, of course, and spent some time catching up on summer events and vacation fun. A light rain sent the group under shelter to eat their lunches, but in no way interferred with the fun.

Kathy Baldwin of Troop 66 was a guest. Members of the troop who attended, all third graders at Mitchell School were: Jeannie Bassett, Gloria Boyd, Martha Durham, Frances Green, Carol Hogge, Martha Kay Holliman, Barbara Horn, Maxine McCormick, Peggy Stucky, Jan Thurmond, Suzanne Tolbird, Kay Turner, Deborah Wade, Lanette Beach.

Mrs. Thurmond, who served last year as assistant leader of the troop, is busy organizing a new troop at Ransom School, which her daughter, Jan, now attends. Mr. James Walters, principal, and formerly quite active in Boy Scouting circles, is helping Mrs. Thurmond stir up interest in Girl Scouting. For several years there has been no troop at Ransom, unfortunately. We'll have further news of this troop.

Organizaztion work is underway at Highland School for two new Brownie troops, with prospective leaders and troop committee members attending the training now being offered by the council. Two sessions were held last week and training will continue this week on Tuesday and Thursday mornings at the office at 9:30. All interested adults are welcome without obligation, according to Mrs. Charles Overton, training chairman of the council.

Another troop, and we hope there are many, that is taking advantage of the continued summer weather to have outdoor meetings, is Troop 69, organized last spring at Georgia Tucker school. Meeting last week at Forsythe Park, the girls enjoyed being together in the out of doors, playing games, and started planning the year's activities with their leaders, Mrs. R. R. Wroten, Mrs. John Carso, and Mrs. Vincent Zagone. Leaders took pictures of the girls, who were all in Brownie uniform and wearing their Brownie smiles.

The girls of Troop 12 are to have Mrs. George Houssley as their new leader. The troop, made up of sixth graders at Mitchell School has been under the leadership of Mrs. G. P. Boeuff River Chapter DAR Host Annual Conference

Boeuf River Chapter of Rayville was hostess of the eleventh annual Conference of the Third District, Louisiana Society, Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Thomas S. Gunby, Regent, opened the meeting with an enjoyable coffee hour in the St. David's Episcopal Church Parish House. Silver trays of Charlotte Armstrong roses and Rose of Montana were used on the coffee table and Mrs. Lasley Richardson poured coffee. Mrs. Shelby Meek, director of the Third District presided over the business session.

Mrs. Thomas S. Gunby welcomed the guests on behalf of Boeuf River chapter and Mrs. Robert L. Bailey, Tallulah chapter, state director and state second vice regent, spoke on the work of the districts.

Mrs. William E. Hicks, vice president, National Society, D. A. R. and a member of Pelican chapter, Shreveport, was introduced and Mrs. James H. Galloway, national vice chairman, of the South Central division for the Children of the American Revolution, was presented to the group. State officers attending were Mrs. Edward D. Schneider, state regent, Mrs. Robert L. Bailey, Jr., state second vice regent, Mrs. John S. Redfield, state recording secretary, Mrs. James B. Shackelford, state organizing secretary and Mrs. J. B. Landreaux, state librarian.

Mrs. Meek introduced the new chapter in the third district which has just been organized in Winnsboro and has been named Oakley chapter, four members from the new chapter were present, Miss Rowena Ramage, Mrs. Louella Snyder, Mrs. Henry Buie and Mrs. Snyder. The following state chairmen were present, Mrs. Oliver Lowery, Boeuf river chapter, junior membership, Mrs. Gail K. Gay, Gen. William Carroll chapter, transportation, and Mrs. James H. Galloway, Les Rapides chapter, attendance at Continental Congress. The third district has two chapters that have made the National Honor Roll each year since the program was inaugurated, Abram Morehouse Chapter of Mer Rouge and Fort Miro chapter of Monroe.

The observance of Constitution Week was stressed. It was decided that the third district would purchase an American flag and a D. A. R. flag to be used by the district. The Tallulah chapter was congratulated on being the only chapter in the state to give a scholarship to a student at the D. A. R. school Tamassee.

Mrs. Edward D. Schneider, Mrs. William E. Hicks and Mrs. James B. Shackelford formed an information panel for the discussion period and much information of value to the chapters was brought out by the answers to the questions submitted. All but one of the eleven chapters in the district were represented and sixty - eight members registered. Mrs. Morgan Walker, regent of Les Rapides chapter was a guest of the district. Mrs. James H. Galloway outlined the plans for the Louisiana Society to attend Continental Congress as a group and stated that she was taking reservations for the trip.

Mrs. Schneider, state regent, addressed the group on aims and purposes that the society hopes to accomplish during the year. She also announced that the president general of the N.S.D.A.R. would make her official visit to the Louisiana society, at the George Washington annual birthday luncheon which is held each year with the Abram Morehouse, Miro chapters as hostesses. Mrs. Ashmeade White, the president general is from Maine, and the third district is delighted that her visit will be with them.

Mrs. Joseph Davenport Jr., regent, Abram Morehouse chapter moved that the district give Mrs. Shelby Meek a rising vote of thanks for her services as director during the past three years.

A delicious luncheon was served to the members by the ladies of the Rayville Presbyterian church in their auditorium.

Girl Scout News

Starting off their second year with fun in the out of doors is Troop 85, which had its first get-together at Bernstein Park. With their leaders, Mrs. Lyda Tolbird and Mrs. N. B. Thurmond, the girls played games under the trees, toured the zoo, of course, and spent some time catching up on summer events and vacation fun. A light rain sent the group under shelter to eat their lunches, but in no way interferred with the fun.

Kathy Baldwin of Troop 66 was a guest. Members of the troop who attended, all third graders at Mitchell School were: Jeannie Bassett, Gloria Boyd, Martha Durham, Frances Green, Carol Hogge, Martha Kay Holliman, Barbara Horn, Maxine McCormick, Peggy Stucky, Jan Thurmond, Suzanne Tolbird, Kay Turner, Deborah Wade, Lanette Beach.

Mrs. Thurmond, who served last year as assistant leader of the troop, is busy organizing a new troop at Ransom School, which her daughter, Jan, now attends. Mr. James Walters, principal, and formerly quite active in Boy Scouting circles, is helping Mrs. Thurmond stir up interest in Girl Scouting. For several years there has been no troop at Ransom, unfortunately. We'll have further news of this troop.

Organizaztion work is underway at Highland School for two new Brownie troops, with prospective leaders and troop committee members attending the training now being offered by the council. Two sessions were held last week and training will continue this week on Tuesday and Thursday mornings at the office at 9:30. All interested adults are welcome without obligation, according to Mrs. Charles Overton, training chairman of the council.

Another troop, and we hope there are many, that is taking advantage of the continued summer weather to have outdoor meetings, is Troop 69, organized last spring at Georgia Tucker school. Meeting last week at Forsythe Park, the girls enjoyed being together in the out of doors, playing games, and started planning the year's activities with their leaders, Mrs. R. R. Wroten, Mrs. John Carso, and Mrs. Vincent Zagone. Leaders took pictures of the girls, who were all in Brownie uniform and wearing their Brownie smiles.

The girls of Troop 12 are to have Mrs. George Houssley as their new leader. The troop, made up of sixth graders at Mitchell School has been under the leadership of Mrs. G. P. Jordan for the three years since its organization. The girls of this troop have been especially interested in the out of doors, a high percentage of them having attended day camp each summer. Last summer's day camp at Pine Wood included Dianne Boyington, Joanne Barfield, Judy Cunningham, Pamela Cummings, Barbara Groves, Paige Houssley, Alice Jordan, Nancy Phillips, all of whom declared they had a wonderful time. CLIMATE AND ILLNESSES

Every climate has its compensations. The cool northern air is invigorating and the people are more robust. But the southerner does not burn himself out and is less susceptible to degenerative disease. In this respect, nature has no regional favorites.

There is a correlation between climate and infectious diseases. Rheumatic fever, for example, is more prevalent in the north and in the mountainous areas of this country. It is less so in the more tropical states. Rheumatic fever is preceded by a strep sore throat or an attack of tonsilitis and, as a result, is most prevalent in bad weather — March and April — when it is cold and nasty out of doors.

Other illnesses show a marked seasonal variation. Polio, for example, is most likely to strike in the summer and measles in the late winter and early spring. There is a correlation also between humidity and airborne infections such as influenza and other respiratory infections. In temperate areas, these epidemics are more common in late winter and a month or so after a cold spell.

In the tropics colds are confined to the hot dry season of the year. During these periods the humidity is low, the days are short, and the ventilation indoors is poor. Human resistance is below par and airborne germs live longer. The membranes of the nose and throat become dry when the humidity is low, making them less able to cope with microorganisms. The steam heated apartment in Chicago or the house in Minnesota is as dry in winter as any desert.

The weather also affects our temperament and emotions. When the barometer falls, we tend to be more restless, quarrelsome, frustrated, and emotionally upset. It is more difficult to concentrate. On the other hand there is some evidence that most of our reactions are psychological—a case of mind over matter. We feel better on pleasant days but when it is cold, windy, and wet we tend to feel grumpy.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, addressed envelope accompanies request.

TIRE D HOMEMAKER

Mrs. S. writes: I would like to visit my neighbors during the day and go out with my husband at night, but am too tired after doing the housework and caring for the children. The doctor tells me there is nothing wrong with me. Why can't my body do the things my mind wants to?

REPLY

Because "the flesh is weak." Taking care of the children and the house is a full time job. A woman with energy to burn at the end of a working day is exceptional, or else has not done her best. Why not budget your nights out and limit the backfence gossip to 30 minutes or an hour? The time will come when the responsibilities of home and children will lighten and you will have more time for social life.

GERMS FROM RATS

F. T. writes: In rat bites, what kind of gerws are passed to the victim?

REPLY

Whatever germs are in the mouth of the rat. These might be ordinary staphylococci, streptococci, or those that produce rat bite fever or encephalitis.

MUSCLES AND LABOR

Mrs. L. writes: Is it true that muscular women have more trouble giving birth than those with normal muscular development?

REPLY

Only when the pelvic muscles are enlarged to such an extent that they crowd the birth canal.

THE ARTHRITIS MYSTERY

L. D. writes: Are the cause and cure of arthritis known?

REPLY

No. However, most victims of this disease are able to obtain relief of pain. In many instances there is spontaneous recovery.

FOOD

Yearbook Title To Hold Interest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department Saturday published its 1959 yearbook with a title especially of interest to women—"Food.'

But the editor said he hoped a lot of men would read it too.

"Even though women did much of the planning and writing of this yearbook and women and women-to-be dominated our thinking, it is a book as well for men - to - be," said Alfred Stefferud, who has dited a long series of the annual volumes.

"Food," he explained, "is a big part of a man's world, too. He produces, processes and markets food. He buys, cooks and eats food. He earns daily bread, worries about his waistline and sometimes feels the baby. He is his family's food expert."

The department has published annual volumes of the yearbook for 110 years. In recent years, each volume has been a sort of encyclopedia concentrating on one aspect of agriculture—but written and illustrated in a way that attracts wide readership.

The volumes are widely regarded as the latest and most authoritative document on the subject matter covered.

Pressing the masculine interest theme, Stefferud suggested that no man probably would be interested in all of the 65 chapters covering 736 pages.

He suggested, however, males might read chapters on carbyhydrates, calories and body weight, water, nutritional needs after 25, fish and the fishing industry, what your food money buys, don't be fooled by fads, and feeding 6,280 million.

Students—tomorrow's husbands, wives and parents—will find grist for themes and thought. There are chapters on the story of nutrition, adolescents and young adults, youth learns about food and trade in heights and weights.

The book does not overlook the interests of farmers. There is information about nutritional values of the products they grow.

In a foreword, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said the book reports "much that is new from the research of scientists in vthe department and elsewhere.

"It tells things we all need to know about food," he said. "It is a very important book. But the full measure of its importance depends on how well and widely it is read and how well and widely the information it contains is used."

The book has 36 pages of simple recipes that further the volnume's main theme — for good health, eat some of the basic foods each day.

Most of the contributors to the book hold doctor's degrees and are deans of colleges and top-level administrators.

Mayor Gives Blessing

Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard yesterday gave his official blessing to a Quota Club sponsored safety slogan contest for students of four local high schools. Howard also agreed to be one of the contest judges. Discussing the contest with Howard and showing one of the Quota club posters connected with the contest, is Mrs. Mildred Lomax, chairman of the Monroe Quota Club's safety committee. QUOTA CLUB SPONSORED

Safety Slogan Contest Slated

The Monroe Quota Club today announced that it will sponsor a safety slogan contest for students of four local high schools. The contest will begin Oct. 1 and continue for four weeks, according to Mrs. Mildred Lomax, chairman of the Quota Club Safety Committee.

"We hope to attract wide interest among our high school students through this program," Mrs. Lomax said. Contestants will be drawn from Neville, Ouachita, St. Matthews and West Monroe high schools.

"An award will be made every week for the best entry of the week," according to Mrs. Lomax. "At the end of the four-week entry period," the chairman said, "we will select the grand prize winner."

Judges for the contest will be. Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard, Chief James C. Kelly and Maj. Jack Davis.

The winners will receive cash awards.

Winners will be selected on the basis of slogan they submit. The judges will make their decision based on cleverness, effectiveness and originality of the entries.

Winners will be announced each week. "And, of course, the grand winner will be announced at the end of the four - week contest," Mrs. Lomax said.

The Quota Club spokesman said the prime purpose of the contest was to "develop a spirit of safety among our high school students." So far as could be determined no local club has ever conducted such a campaign.

Entry forms will be distributed to the four schools for the convenience of contestants.

If the initial contest proves successful, the Quota Club expects to make the contest an annual event.

"We have received very encouraging response from the school principals we have contacted with regard to the contest," according to Mrs. Lomax.

"Every indication points to a successful contest," she said.

Weekly award winners will be announced for the following weekly contest periods: Oct. 1-8; Oct. 9-15; Oct. 16-22, and Oct. 23-29.

The grand prize winner will be announced Nov. 1.

ANNOUNCES EXPANSION

NEW YORK (UPI)—Line Star Cement Co. announced plans for a $6,500,000 expansion of its cement plant at Norfolk, Va. Major item in the program is a new kiln, expected to boost plant capacity by about a million barrels a year.

'Blonde' Wants To Be Correct

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — When Joan O'Connor, 32, dyed her hair blonde she changed her auto license statistics from "brown" to "blonde."

That's against the law and when she was stopped by a policeman she got a summons for making the alteration on the license. Friday, she explained in District Court:

"But I'm blonde now, and I wanted to be accurate."

Said Judge Harold Strohsen:

"More than 100 women a day change the color of their hair. If this gets around, there won't be room on the licenses."

Nevertheless, he held there was no criminal intent and dismissed the case. Remarked Mrs. O'Connor to reporters as she left court:

"I used to be a mousy, quiet type, but now that I'm a blonde it has made me a livelier person. I get along better in the world."

LEARNED MEN

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—Moslem ulemas — learned men — in Syria Friday called Islamic and Arab nations to holy war to topple the "anti-Islam, Red regime" in Iraq.

They called Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem a heretic. They charged his regime was "controlled by enemies of Allah," meaning Communists.

Mayor Gives Blessing

Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard yesterday gave his official blessing to a Quota Club sponsored safety slogan contest for students of four local high schools. Howard also agreed to be one of the contest judges. Discussing the contest with Howard and showing one of the Quota club posters connected with the contest, is Mrs. Mildred Lomax, chairman of the Monroe Quota Club's safety committee. Safety Slogan Contest Slated

The Monroe Quota Club today announced that it will sponsor a safety slogan contest for students of four local high schools. The contest will begin Oct. 1 and continue for four weeks, according to Mrs. Mildred Lomax, chairman of the Quota Club Safety Committee.

"We hope to attract wide interest among our high school students through this program," Mrs. Lomax said. Contestants will be drawn from Neville, Ouachita, St. Matthews and West Monroe high schools.

"An award will be made every week for the best entry of the week," according to Mrs. Lomax. "At the end of the four-week entry period," the chairman said, "we will select the grand prize winner."

Judges for the contest will be. Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard, Chief James C. Kelly and Maj. Jack Davis.

The winners will receive cash awards.

Winners will be selected on the basis of slogan they submit. The judges will make their decision based on cleverness, effectiveness and originality of the entries.

Winners will be announced each week. "And, of course, the grand winner will be announced at the end of the four - week contest," Mrs. Lomax said.

The Quota Club spokesman said the prime purpose of the contest was to "develop a spirit of safety among our high school students." So far as could be determined no local club has ever conducted such a campaign.

Entry forms will be distributed to the four schools for the convenience of contestants.

If the initial contest proves successful, the Quota Club expects to make the contest an annual event.

"We have received very encouraging response from the school principals we have contacted with regard to the contest," according to Mrs. Lomax.

"Every indication points to a successful contest," she said.

Weekly award winners will be announced for the following weekly contest periods: Oct. 1-8; Oct. 9-15; Oct. 16-22, and Oct. 23-29.

The grand prize winner will be announced Nov. 1.

ANNOUNCES EXPANSION

NEW YORK (UPI)—Line Star Cement Co. announced plans for a $6,500,000 expansion of its cement plant at Norfolk, Va. Major item in the program is a new kiln, expected to boost plant capacity by about a million barrels a year.

'Blonde' Wants To Be Correct

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — When Joan O'Connor, 32, dyed her hair blonde she changed her auto license statistics from "brown" to "blonde."

That's against the law and when she was stopped by a policeman she got a summons for making the alteration on the license. Friday, she explained in District Court:

"But I'm- blonde now, and I wanted to be accurate."

Said Judge Harold Strohsen:

"More than 100 women a day change the color of their hair. If this gets around, there won't be room on the licenses."

Nevertheless, he held there was no criminal intent and dismissed the case. Remarked Mrs. O'Connor to reporters as she left court:

"I used to be a mousy, quiet type, but now that I'm a blonde it has made me a livelier person. I get along better in the world."

LEARNED MEN

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—Moslem ulemas — learned men — in Syria Friday called Islamic and Arab nations to holy war to topple the "anti-Islam, Red regime" in Iraq.

They called Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem a heretic. They charged his regime was "controlled by enemies of Allah," meaning Communists.

LAST WEEK

14 Shreveport Producers Seen

SHREVEPORT (Special) —Two wildcat oil wells, nine other oil producers and three gas wells were finaled in the Shreveport District during the past week, the Conservation Department announced here.

In Bienville Parish, Jac W. Grigsby's Continental Can Co., S24-16-6, a wildcat, was completed for an open flow potential of 37,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily and 111 barrels daily of desitate. The well was dried to 7,902 feet.

Robert F. Roberts' No. 1 E. B. McEachern, a wildcat in Claiborne Parish drilled to 5,802 feet, S33-23-8, was completed to pump 10.44 barrels of 45.5 gravity oil daily from the Pettit formation.

Forty driling rigs were reported active in the district during the week by C. H. McDuff, manager of the Shreveport office of the Conservation Department.

Six wells were plugged and abandoned during the week.

The field completions are:

CADDO

Caddo Pine Island — Bayou State Oil Corp.'s No. 8 Holmes, s24-22-13, completed to pump 5 barrels of oil daily from the Nacatoch at 1,032 feet.

Ike Appeals For More Bond Buyers

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower appealed to all citizens this week to "buy shares in America"—U. U. savings bonds.

More was behind his anxious plea than appeared on the surface.

The government, which is a huge debt to finance while also trying to curb federal spending and maintain a sound dollar, is in stiff competition with private lenders for the investor's money. The reason is that interest rates on its bonds are so low big investors go where they can get better terms for their cash.

Ike hopes this is not a losing battle that will throw his economy crusade out of gear, increase the national debt, and fuel the inflationary fires with an over-supply of money.

If it turns out that way, he's going to blame the Democratic-controlled Congress which in the past session gave him only authority to raise the interest ceilings on series E and H savings bonds.

What he really wanted was repeal of the 4¼ per cent ceiling on long-term bonds—those maturing after more than five years and on which the Treasury's financial stability depends. This would have enabled the Treasury to go into any money market and outsell banks and other lenders on a long-range basis, thus saving financing costs.

Congress went up the hill and down on the issue. Democrats declared that Eisenhower himself brought about the financial dilemma with his anti-spending and "tight money" policies. They said higher long-term rate would make borrowing too costly for the average businessman and put him out of action while the big bankers flourished.

They argued that banks and other lenders were already taking advantage of the tight-money situation to raise their own interest rates so high that government bonds were made unattractive.

The President and Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson counteced that unless they were permitted to compete with these higher rates, the Treasury would have to fall back on inflationary short-term financing through commercial banks. This they said, would raise its financing costs, thus hurting the taxpayers, and worse still, add to the money supply which is the root evil of inflation.

The basis of their argument was this:

When a non-bank investor buys a government security he pays for it by taking money from his bank. The total money supply is not changed. But when a bank buys bonds it pays for them by setting up accounts for the Treasury. As the Treasury draws on these accounts the pay the government's bills for services, the money supply increases. If the supply grows faster than the supply of goods, the result is "easy-money" and inflation.

Congress finally adopted what it called a compromise. It agreed to allow Ike to raise the interest rate on E and H savings bonds from 3½ to as high as 4¼ per cent. The President took prompt advantage of this but raise the rate to only 3¾ per cent. Bothe he and Congress hoped that this would make these issues more palatable to investors and also discourage cash - ins which have reached alarming proportions.

But the legislotors refused to ease the 4¼ per cent ceiling on long-term issues.

Eisenhower's reaction was bitter. He said it was an act of fiscal irresponsibility which prevented the government from rightfully and properly managing its fisacl problems. He even talked in terms of calling Congress back for a showdown. He decided instead that in the three months until they reconvene "the heat or truth" will penetrate the lawmakers.

The President's point was that the government cannot forever go on living beyond its means; that and cheap money will lead to such fierce inflation the dollar's worth will be reduced to a few cents.

He did, however, happily accept the hike in savings bond interest as a sound contribution toward his objective, and pegged his appeal to the people on that premise. "To my mind," he said, "there is no better way of saving.. . to buy these bonds is to express faith in America."

The interest increase is retroactive on June 1 on all outstanding E and H bonds. Some 40 million people hold them, with 8.500,000 buying or having bought them through payroll savings plans. Ike and Anderson hope sales will be stimulated and that the increase will induce banks and savings and loan associations to offer higher interest to savers.

Money saved doesn't enter the inflationary stream.

In recent times, cash-ins of savings bonds have exceeded new sales by more than 850 million dollars.

Home Loans Squeezed By Tight Money

By EDWARD COWAN

United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tight money is putting the squeeze on government home loan underwriting programs.

But mortgage lending will climb to a historic high this year, a spokesman for lenders predicts. He also forecast a slowdown in housing starts in 1960 and more tight money.

The situation is this:

Applications for mortgage insurance by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) are falling off.

A boost in the maximum interest rate on loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration appears to have failed to pump new life into that long depressed program. Interest rates in general went up at the same time.

Conventional loan costs are in the 6 per cent zone in most parts of the country. Hence, the 5¼ per cent limits on GI and FHA loans prices them out of many markets.

Lenders prefer putting their money where it earns most. Even federal government backing isn't always enough to change their minds.

Moreover, with spending and borrowing in nearly all lines at historic high, home mortgages face stiff competition from other investment outlets for available money.

Recent interest rates hikes and growing tightness of supply are reflected in FHA figures on loan insurance applications. They climbed to a high of 91,581 dwelling units in April, then started casing downward.

(A June spurt to 109,308 was attributed by officials to a last-month rush to beat new, mandatory construction standards for new houses financed through FHA. The new minimum property ceiteria went into effect July 1.)

By July the number of units covered in insurance applications had dropped to 74,707. A further decline in August to 65,700 units made that month the lowest since December 1958.

Meanwhile, a recent one - half point boost in the maximum interest rate on VA - guaranteed home loans to former servicemen did not lead to a hoped for pickup in that program.

On the contrary, the VA reported a drop of 18½ per cent in August in appraisal request for new houses. Appraisal requests on existing housing continued an upward trend.

Despite the increasing money market tightness, an industry official predicted home mortgage writing would set a new record this year of $32,300,000,000. According to Kenneth G. Heisler, managing director of the National League of Insured Savings Assns., this year's total would top 1958 by 18 per cent.

Heisler foresaw a drop of about 4 per cent in mortgage financing next year and thought it would drag housing starts down from about 1,350,000 dwelling units this year to 1,200,000 in 1960.

He also predicted that the present interest rate level—6 per cent most common—will, except for "minor fluctuations, remain at the present level or higher for an indefinite period of time."

EUROPE TODAY

Coal Teetering On Its Throne

By WELLINGTON LONG

United Press International

BONN, Germany (UPI) —King coal is teetering on his throne. Fuel oil is about to topple the old monarch of Europe's economy.

Only a trickle 10 years ago, fuel oil now is moving into Europe in a flood from Saudi Arabia, Iraq and the Persian Gulf.

Consumption of oil in Western Europe has tripled in less than a decade.

With new oil and gas fields opening up in the French Sahara and indeed, all along the Mediterranean North African coast, King Coal is faced with new and extensive sources of cheap energy at Eurpe's very doorstep.

Many French and Belgian mines already have been forced to close as a result of this new competition.

Now the pits in West Germany's Ruhr are faced with the same possibility.

Three years ago, Colliery pithead stocks of coal in the Ruhr rarely amounted to more than three or four days production.

Today they add up to an amount equal to six or seven weeks of production. This is so even though the mining force has been reduced by almost 12 per cent and various government attempts have been made to block oil's advance.

The French and Belgian mine owners and governments already have drawn on the reserves of the European coal and steel community for assistance in transferring miners to new jobs and cities, and in closing marginal pits.

West Germany now seeks similar aid.

In addition, the West German cabinet proposes to levy a tax on all imported fuel oil for the next three years. The tax will amount to about one-third of the present wholesale price.

Middle Eastern oil fields still were relatively undeveloped when the war ended in 1945. Western Europe's recovery was fired by domestic coal.

But once the industrial machine got rolling again, Europe's own mines could no longer meet the demand. American coal and Middle Eastern oil was brought in to fill the gap.

Both American coal and Middle Eastern oil, however, also proved to be considerably cheaper than domestic coal. Partly this was because of better methods of production, partly because European coal sought to take advantage of a buyers' market and hike its own prices.

The end effect was that foreign coal and oil began eating into domestic coal's traditional markets.

Domestic coal sales dropped off.

Every European coal production state is in the same boat, but the most bitter fight is being waged in West Germany.

Coal has always played a special role in Germany. The mine operators have enormous loby influence. The miners themselves represent one-sixth of the organized labor force.

No other branch of industry can make quite as much trouble for a German government as coal.

AS STEEL STRIKE CONTINUES

Market In Fast Trading Session

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The steel strike tightened its grips on the economy this week, but Main Street and Wall Street didn't seem to care.

The stock market snapped out of earlier losses in two fast and furious trading sessions. For the time being anyway, the bulls were in command.

On busy Main Streets and in jam-packed suburban shopping centers, consumers kept on spending with abandon.

Dun & Bradstreet's latest weekly retail survey showed business in the nation's shops and stores up a whopping 7 to 11 per cent over last year when steelworkers were on the job and making money. A prominent banker observed: "This might be called the year of the spender."

But while consumers splurged and bulls roared, the throttling effects of the steel strike were making themselves felt elsewhere.

In Washington, the government's top fiscal experts cautioned that Uncle Sam's budget will be thrown out of whack if the strike drags on much longer.

The government's fiscal year ends next June 30. Expenditures are now estimated at $78,900,000,000—up $1,900,000,000 from what the administration figured just a few months ago. There's still a chance of taking in $78,900,000,000 or a bit more and balancing the budget, fiscal experts said. But, they warned, if the steel strike isn't settled soon, taxes collected from the profits of industry will drop sharply — and Uncle Sam may wind up in the red.

Big General Motors Corp. conceded this week it was feeling the steel pinch but hastened to add that its troubles had been exaggerated.

"We are not in good shape" a spokesman said, "But we aren't ready to close up shop."

Hardest hit of GM's farflung operations were the Columbus, Ohio, and Trenton, N.J., plants of its Ternstedt Division which makes auto body hardware. The Columbus plant is shut down. In the next two weeks, the Trenton plant will lay off 2,700.

Building industry analysts said the steel strike was partly to blame for a sharp drop in dollar volume of construction contracts last month.

John G. Winger, vice president and petroleum economist of the Chase Manhattan Bank, said the steel strike's toehold on industry has curbed petroleum demand.

The railroads started shipping more coal to the strike-bound steel plants — a development interpreted by some observers as signalling a possible end of the strike next month. But as the strike went into its 73rd day, contract negotiations broke down.

"We are going home," said David J. McDonald, the steele union chief. "This farcical filibuster has ended."

The new law contains a variety of pump-priming measures intended to make more money available for construction. It also enables you to pay less cash down on a house financed with an FHA loan and to get a bigger mortgage.

Would the new bill spur another housing boom? Only time would tell. Some building industry leaders said nothing would help very much until tight money conditions loosened up, interest rates declined, and mortgages became easier to get. And from now through next spring, they said, interest rates are likely to rise still more and mortgages will be even harder to come by.

Briefly over the business scene: The Justice Department waved a big stick at an oil industry merger this week. Texaco Inc. and Superior Oil Co. of California abandoned negotiations. . . . Living costs, as measured by the government's consumer price index, retreated one-tenth of one per cent last month from the record set in July. . . . Eisenhower signed a bill authorizing the Treasury to lift interest rates on "E" and "H" savings bonds. Said the President: "To my mind, there is no better way of saving." . . . States collected $3,700,000,000 in sales taxes in the 12 months ended June 30, says Commerce Clearing House of Chicago. Factory sales of home laundry appliances last month were up 14 per cent from a year ago, reports the American Home Laundry Manufacturers Assn. . . . The Pennsylvania Railroad will get 66 new electric locomotives worth 32 million dollars under a long-term lease agreement with General Electric Co. . . . The National Cap & Cloth Hat Institute reports a boom in bright plaid caps, especially among men who wear plain brown and grey fedoras to business. . . . A New York taxi fleet offers its riders free shaves. Twenty - five of its cabs are equipped with electric razors.

Delta Airlmes has brought the jet age to Georgia with the inauguration of the DC-8 jetliner service between Atlanta and New York. The new service falls within weeks of the 30th anniversary of the company's first passenger flight across the South.

Delta is the first airline to put the nearly 600-mile-per-hour Douglas DC-8 into commerical use.

The giant transport which seats 119 passengers and weighs 130 tons contrasts sharply with the 90 mile-per-hour six-passenger Travelaire with which Delta pioneered the trans-Southern route in 1929.

The Twin Cities will be represented at the Orkin Exterminating Company's annual service school by 10 persons on Sept. 28. The ten are Ryder Gore, Harold R. Smith, Don M. Coffey, Marvin Hogan, A. H. Butler, Horace B. Allen, A. G. Brister, Jessie Ivey, Allen Reeves and Claude Davidson.

The meeting will be held in Shreveport with pest control specialists from Orkin's home office in Atlanta conducting the sessions.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. McKenzie, Jr., are attending the annaul convention of the National Association of Insurance Agents in Chicago. The NAIA is an association of local independent insurance agents from 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

McKenzie, a member of McKenzie and Mouk, Inc., is representing the Ouachita Association of Insurance Agents at the convention.

E. J. DeRouen has been named manager of the Public Finance office at 111 North Second street in Monroe. Announcement of the appointment was made by W. E. Kendall of St. Louis, Mo., vice-president of the American Investment Company of Illinois, and executive supervisor of the company's central division. Public Finance is the principal subsidiary of American in this area.

DeRouen comes to Monroe from New Iberia.

LAST WEEK

14 Shreveport Producers Seen

SHREVEPORT (Special) —Two wildcat oil wells, nine other oil producers and three gas wells were finaled in the Shreveport District during the past week, the Conservation Department announced here.

In Bienville Parish, Jac W. Grigsby's Continental Can Co., S24-16-6, a wildcat, was completed for an open flow potential of 37,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily and 111 barrels daily of desitate. The well was dried to 7,902 feet.

Robert F. Roberts' No. 1 E. B. McEachern, a wildcat in Claiborne Parish drilled to 5,802 feet, S33-23-8, was completed to pump 10.44 barrels of 45.5 gravity oil daily from the Pettit formation.

Forty driling rigs were reported active in the district during the week by C. H. McDuff, manager of the Shreveport office of the Conservation Department.

Six wells were plugged and abandoned during the week.

The field completions are:

CADDO

Caddo Pine Island — Bayou State Oil Corp.'s No. 8 Holmes, s24-22-15, completed to pump 5 barrels of oil daily from the Nacatoch at 1,032 feet.

Bill Gary's No. 5 Muslow, s4-20-15, completed to flow 25 barrels of oil daily from perforations in the Chalk at 1,570 feet.

J. M. Leonard's No. 2 R. J. Pace, s7-19-16, completed to flow 32 barrels of oil daily from the Fredericksburg at 2,450 feet.

Hico - Knowles - California's Co.'s No. 2 F. H. Callaway, s11-18-4, completed for 1,821,000 cubic feet of gas and 4 barrels of oil a day from the Upper Hosston at 8,253 feet.

WEBSTER

Shongaloo — Robert F. Roberts' No. A1 P. E. O'Bier, s31-23-9, completed to pump 55.68 barrels of oil daily from the Pettit at 5,684 feet.

Ike Appeals For More Bond Buyers

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower appealed to all citizens this week to "buy shares in America"—U. U. savings bonds.

More was behind his anxious plea than appeared on the surface.

The government, which is a huge debt to finance while also trying to curb federal spending and maintain a sound dollar, is in stiff competition with private lenders for the investor's money. The reason is that interest rates on its bonds are so low big investors go where they can get better terms for their cash.

Ike hopes this is not a losing battle that will throw his economy crusade out of gear, increase the national debt, and fuel the inflationary fires with an over-supply of money.

If it turns out that way, he's going to blame the Democratic-controlled Congress which in the past session gave him only authority to raise the interest ceilings on series E and H savings bonds.

What he really wanted was repeal of the 4¼ per cent ceiling on long-term bonds—those maturing after more than five years and on which the Treasury's financial stability depends. This would have enabled the Treasury to go into any money market and outsell banks and other lenders on a long-range basis, thus saving financing costs.

Congress went up the hill and down on the issue. Democrats declared that Eisenhower himself brought about the financial dilemma with his anti - spending and "tight money" policies. They said higher long-term rate would make borrowing too costly for the average businessman and put him out of action while the big bankers flourished.

They argued that banks and other lenders were already taking advantage of the tight-money situation to raise their own interest rates so high that government bonds were made unattractive.

The President and Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson counteced that unless they were permitted to compete with these higher rates, the Treasury would have to fall back on inflationary short-term financing through commercial banks. This they said, would raise its financing costs, thus hurting the taxpayers, and worse still, add to the money supply which is the root evil of inflation.

The basis of their argument was this:

When a non-bank investor buys a government security he pays for it by taking money from his bank. The total money supply is not changed. But when a bank buys bonds it pays for them by setting up accounts for the Treasury. As the Treasury draws on these accounts the pay the government's bills for services, the money supply increases. If the supply grows faster than the supply of goods, the result is "easy-money" and inflation.

Congress finally adopted what it called a compromise. It agreed to allow Ike to raise the interest rate on E and H savings bonds from 3½ to as high as 4¼ per cent. The President took prompt advantage of this but raise the rate to only 3¾ per cent. Bothe he and Congress hoped that this would make these issues more palatable to investors and also discourage cash - ins which have reached alarming proportions.

But the legislotors refused to ease the 4¼ per cent ceiling on long-term issues.

Eisenhower's reaction was bitter. He said it was an act of fiscal irresponsibility which prevented the government from rightfully and properly managing its fisacl problems. He even talked in terms of calling Congress back for a showdown. He decided instead that in the three months until they reconvene "the heat or truth" will penetrate the lawmakers.

The President's point was that the government cannot forever go on living beyond its means; that and cheap money will lead to such fierce inflation the dollar's worth will be reduced to a few cents.

He did, however, happily accept the hike in savings bond interest as a sound contribution toward his objective, and pegged his appeal to the people on that premise. "To my mind," he said, "there is no better way of saving.. to buy these bonds is to express faith in America."

The interest increase is retroactive on June 1 on all outstanding E and H bonds. Some 40 million people hold them, with 8,500,000 buying or having bought them through payroll savings plans. Ike and Anderson hope sales will be stimulated and that the increase will induce banks and savings and loan associations to offer higher interest to savers.

Money saved doesn't enter the inflationary stream.

In recent times, cash-ins of savings bonds have exceeded new sales by more than 850 million dollars.

Home Loans Squeezed By Tight Money

By EDWARD COWAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tight money is putting the squeeze on government home loan underwriting programs.

But mortgage lending will climb to a historic high this year, a spokesman for lenders predicts. He also forecast a slowdown in housing starts in 1960 and more tight money.

The situation is this:

Applications for mortgage insurance by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) are falling off.

A boost in the maximum interest rate on loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration appears to have failed to pump new life into that long depressed program. Interest rates in general went up at the same time.

Conventional loan costs are in the 6 per cent zone in most parts of the country. Hence, the 5¼ per cent limits on GI and FHA loans prices them out of many markets.

Lenders prefer putting their money where it earns most. Even federal government backing isn't always enough to change their minds.

Moreover, with spending and borrowing in nearly all lines at historic high, home mortgages face stiff competition from other investment outlets for available money.

Recent interest rates hikes and growing tightness of supply are reflected in FHA figures on loan insurance applications. They climbed to a high of 91,581 dwelling units in April, then started casing downward.

(A June spurt to 109,308 was attributed by officials to a last-month rush to beat new, mandatory construction standards for new houses financed through FHA. The new minimum property ceiteria went into effect July 1.)

By July the number of units covered in insurance applications had dropped to 74,707. A further decline in August to 65,700 units made that month the lowest since December 1958.

Meanwhile, a recent one - half point boost in the maximum interest rate on VA - guaranteed home loans to former servicemen did not lead to a hoped for pickup in that program.

On the contrary, the VA reported a drop of 18½ per cent in August in appraisal request for new houses. Appraisal requests on existing housing continued an upward trend.

Despite the increasing money market tightness, an industry official predicted home mortgage writing would set a new record this year of $32,300,000,000. According to Kenneth G. Heisler, managing director of the National League of Insured Savings Assns., this year's total would top 1958 by 18 per cent.

Heisler foresaw a drop of about 4 per cent in mortgage financing next year and thought it would drag housing starts down from about 1,350,000 dwelling units this year to 1,200,000 in 1960.

He also predicted that the present interest rate level—6 per cent most common—will, except for "minor fluctuations, remain at the present level or higher for an indefinite period of time."

EUROPE TODAY

Coal Teetering On Its Throne

By WELLINGTON LONG
United Press International

BONN, Germany (UPI) —King coal is teetering on his throne. Fuel oil is about to topple the old monarch of Europe's economy.

Only a trickle 10 years ago, fuel oil now is moving into Europe in a flood from Saudi Arabia, Iraq and the Persian Gulf.

Consumption of oil in Western Europe has tripled in less than a decade.

With new oil and gas fields opening up in the French Sahara and indeed, all along the Mediterranean North African coast, King Coal is faced with new and extensive sources of cheap energy at Eurpe's very doorstep.

Many French and Belgian mines already have been forced to close as a result of this new competition.

Now the pits in West Germany's Ruhr are faced with the same possibility.

Three years ago, Colliery pithead stocks of coal in the Ruhr rarely amounted to more than three or four days production.

Today they add up to an amount equal to six or seven weeks of production. This is so even though the mining force has been reduced by almost 12 per cent and various government attempts have been made to block oil's advance.

The French and Belgian mine owners and governments already have drawn on the reserves of the European coal and steel community for assistance in transferring miners to new jobs and cities, and in closing marginal pits.

West Germany now seeks similar aid.

In addition, the West German cabinet proposes to levy a tax on all imported fuel oil for the next three years. The tax will amount to about one-third of the present wholesale price.

Middle Eastern oil fields still were relatively undeveloped when the war ended in 1945. Western Europe's recovery was fired by domestic coal.

But once the industrial machine got rolling again, Europe's own mines could no longer meet the demand. American coal and Middle Eastern oil was brought in to fill the gap.

Both American coal and Middle Eastern oil, however, also proved to be considerably cheaper than domestic coal. Partly this was because of better methods of production, partly because European coal sought to take advantage of a buyers' market and hike its own prices.

The end effect was that foreign coal and oil began eating into domestic coal's traditional markets.

Domestic coal sales dropped off.

Every European coal production state is in the same boat, but the most bitter fight is being waged in West Germany.

Coal has always played a special role in Germany. The mine operators have enormous loby influence. The miners themselves represent one-sixth of the organized labor force.

No other branch of industry can make quite as much trouble for a German government as coal.

AS STEEL STRIKE CONTINUES

Market In Fast Trading Session

By WALTER BREEDE JR.
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The steel strike tightened its grips on the economy this week, but Main Street and Wall Street didn't seem to care.

The stock market snapped out of earlier losses in two fast and furious trading sessions. For the time being anyway, the bulls were in command.

On busy Main Streets and in jam-packed suburban shopping centers, consumers kept on spending with abandon.

Dun & Bradstreet's latest weekly retail survey showed business in the nation's shops and stores up a whopping 7 to 11 per cent over last year when steelworkers were on the job and making money. A prominent banker observed: "This might be called the year of the spender."

But while consumers splurged and bulls roared, the throttling effects of the steel strike were making themselves felt elsewhere.

In Washington, the government's top fiscal experts cautioned that Uncle Sam's budget will be thrown out of whack if the strike drags on much longer.

The government's fiscal year ends next June 30. Expenditures are now estimated at $78,900,000,000—up $1,900,000,000 from what the administration figured just a few months ago. There's still a chance of taking in $78,900,000,000 or a bit more and balancing the budget, fiscal experts said. But, they warned, if the steel strike isn't settled soon, taxes collected from the profits of industry will drop sharply — and Uncle Sam may wind up in the red.

Big General Motors Corp. conceded this week it was feeling the steel pinch but hastened to add that its troubles had been exaggerated.

"We are not in good shape" a spokesman said, "But we aren't ready to close up shop."

Hardest hit of GM's farflung operations were the Columbus, Ohio, and Trenton, N.J., plants of its Ternstedt Division which makes auto body hardware. The Columbus plant is shut down. In the next two weeks, the Trenton plant will lay off 2,700.

Building industry analysts said the steel strike was partly to blame for a sharp drop in dollar volume of construction contracts last month.

John G. Winger, vice president and petroleum economist of the Chase Manhattan Bank, said the steel strike's toehold on industry has curbed petroleum demand.

The railroads started shipping more coal to the strike-bound steel plants — a development interpreted by some observers as signalling a possible end of the strike next month. But as the strike went into its 73rd day, contract negotiations broke down.

"We are going home," said David J. McDonald, the steele union chief. "This farcical filibuster has ended."

The new law contains a variety of pump-priming measures intended to make more money available for construction. It also enables you to pay less cash down on a house financed with an FHA loan and to get a bigger mortgage.

Would the new bill spur another housing boom? Only time would tell. Some building industry leaders said nothing would help very much until tight money conditions loosened up, interest rates declined, and mortgages became easier to get. And from now through next spring, they said, interest rates are likely to rise still more and mortgages will be even harder to come by.

Briefly over the business scene: The Justice Department waved a big stick at an oil industry merger this week. Texaco Inc. and Superior Oil Co. of California abandoned negotiations. . . .Living costs, as measured by the government's consumer price index, retreated one-tenth of one per cent last month from the record set in July. . . . Eisenhower signed a bill authorizing the Treasury to lift interest rates on "E" and "H" savings bonds. Said the President: "To my mind, there is no better way of saving." . . . States collected $3,700,000,000 in sales taxes in the 12 months ended June 30, says Commerce Clearing House of Chicago. Factory sales of home laundry appliances last month were up 14 per cent from a year ago, reports the American Home Laundry Manufacturers Assn. . . . The Pennsylvania Railroad will get 66 new electric locomotives worth 32 million dollars under a long-term lease agreement with General Electric Co. . . . The National Cap & Cloth Hat Institute reports a boom in bright plaid caps, especially among men who wear plain brown and grey fedoras to business. . . . A New York taxi fleet offers its riders free shaves. Twenty - five of its cabs are equipped with electric razors.

Delta Airlmes has brought the jet age to Georgia with the inauguration of the DC-8 jetliner service between Atlanta and New York. The new service falls within weeks of the 30th anniversary of the company's first passenger flight across the South.

Delta is the first airline to put the nearly 600-mile-per-hour Douglas DC-8 into commerical use.

The giant transport which seats 119 passengers and weighs 130 tons contrasts sharply with the 90 mile-per-hour six-passenger Travelaire with which Delta pioneered the trans-Southern route in 1929.

The Twin Cities will be represented at the Orkin Exterminating Company's annual service school by 10 persons on Sept. 28. The ten are Ryder Gore, Harold R. Smith, Don M. Coffey, Marvin Hogan, A. H. Butler, Horace B. Allen, A. G. Brister, Jessie Ivey, Allen Reeves and Claude Davidson.

The meeting will be held in Shreveport with pest control specialists from Orkin's home office in Atlanta conducting the sessions.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. McKenzie, Jr., are attending the annaul convention of the National Asscciation of Insurance Agents in Chicago. The NAIA is an association of local independent insurance agents from 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

McKenzie, a member of McKenzie and Mouk, Inc., is representing the Ouachita Association of Insurance Agents at the convention.

Planting Time For Daffodils

By AUDREY DAWSON

October is the time to plant daffodils. Order your bulbs in advance to be sure of having them by planting time and also to help insure obtaining what you want.

The size of bulbs will vary considerably between varieties. The type of bulbs that are generally sold as of blooming size is either round or double nosed. The round bulbs have one growing point and the double nosed have two. The double nosed bulbs should produce more flowers. But be sure to buy the best quality of bulbs.

We have a bulletin, "Daffodils for the Yard" which you may have by calling our office FA 3-2251.

It is time to feed your chrysanthemums. Our specialist recommends using 4 lbs. of 8-8-8 per 100 feet row. For large flower heads disbud all buds that appear except the center bud of each cluster.

HINTS TO HOMEMAKERS

Starch baby's white shoe strings after washing - they will stay tied better.

To keep baby occupied so you can make an undisturbed phone call, place each of baby's toys in a cloth bag (not plastic) or box for him to open. Each surprise will hold his attention a few minutes.

Shower curtains with permanent magnets in the hem keeps curtains clinging to inside of tub and keeps water in tub not on the bathroom floor.

A plastic belt will not stretch or tear at the eyelets if you paste mystic tape on the underside - punch holes with awe or ice pick.

Yeast dough is double in bulk when the impression made by two fingers in top of a ball of risen dough remains there instead of filling up again.

If hand-me-down paamas are too long, insert elastic strips from bottom and make clown pajamas until Johnny grows into them.

If your woodwork mildews, wipe it with a cloth dipped in a mixture of water and a little kerosene.

HOUSEWORK

Few homemakers realize that every move they make - sitting, walking, standing or climbing or reaching affects their posture and entire body for better or worse. So you, Mrs. Homemaker, remember these tips. Mopping or sweeping the floor will be less tiring if you bend forward from hips keeping back and shoulders in straight line. When you bend forward, bend from hips. When lifting whether it's a baby or a heavy box, let your leg muscles do the work. Don't bend from the waist. Bend your knees and keep your back straight. Gradually straighten legs and the leg muscles do the lifting.

Homemakers complain about climbing stairs, but it is actually good exercise. Keep head erect, chest high and stomach muscles tight.

WINTER COTTONS

Fall and winter cottons are the medium and heavier weights such as tweeds, knits, corduroys and velveteens which are ideal for the coming months. These fall cottons appear in dark autumn colors and are ideal for between season weather. Have you, Mrs. Homemaker, been in the stores these past few weeks? If so, I know you agree that the colors are beautiful. Improved styling, comfort and dependability have established cotton as a big seller in the fall and winter seasons. These cottons may be washed or dry cleaned. Do not bleach dark cottons and no starch is needed. Be sure to read the tags for special instructions on ironing cottons with textured surfaces.

Better Care Saves Extra Bulb Setting

By CYNTHIA TOWERY

CHAPPAQUA, N. Y. — "Gardeners of all ages," says Elizabeth Lawrence, "are much more eager to plant flowers than to take care of them afterward. This must be the reason for the popularity of the little bulbs."

I hate to disagree with my betters — Miss Lawrence is a superb gardener and a fine garden writer but the main reason I take special care of my bulbs is just so I won't have to plant many more of them.

Sometimes however, I wonder if the food I provide them doesn't do the fertilizer manufactureres more good than it does the bulbs. The crocuses and the grape hyacinths I planted years ago on my back bank, and left to fight out survival with the tree roots and the honeysuckle, have spread far beyond the original plantings. They have thrived beautifully, each spring enchanting me with a bright carpet of color — first white, yellow and deep purple from the crocuses, followed by the rich blue and delicate white of the muscari.

But when fall comes, in spite of invigorating weather, I'm tired of digging and the prospect of spading up a big area for new daffodils, tulips and all the smaller bulbs is greeted with something less than enthusiasm. But each fall I address myself to the chore, knowing full well that by late winter and early spring I'll be hungry for the sight of the snowdrops, the scilla, the chionodoxa, the jonquils and all the rest.

Although tulips, it seems to me, are most rewarding if arranged in formal plantings, most of the other spring bulbs look best and grow best if they can be naturalized, tucked away in corners where the mower need not penetrate, massed in and around deciduous trees where they can benefit from sunshine reaching them through temporarily leafless boughs and branches.

Yet bulbs which will each year put forth their welcome bloom must be happily situated — in soil which provides food, adequate moisture and air, and they must be given time after blooming to manufacture next year's bloom. And giving them this, usually, means digging, improving soil with humus, sometimes sand, sometimes peat. If you are planting a lot of bulbs in one area, it is better to dig over the whole area deeply — so deep that there is good soil for a few inches below the bulb in which it can put out roots. Replace some of the improved soil and set in the bulbs and then proceed to fill in over them. Set them far enough apart —depending on the type and size of the bulbs — so they have room to multiply. Then the only need you'll have to dig them up again is when they become so crowded they cease blooming. I have some bulb plantings which have not been touched for 15 years — and they are more handsome now than ever.

I give my bulbs minimum care —an annual feeding of bone meal when they have finished blooming. However, last spring when I was helping to recover a lost perennial garden ignored an untended for perhaps 20 years and overgrown with Virginia creeper and poison ivy, I found all sorts of bulbs thrusting up healthily and happily — crocus, daffodils, even lilies, along with phlox, iris, perennial sweet peas, peonies and Dorothy Perkins roses, It made me wonder how much of my fertilizing activity isn't really just good exercise for me.

Talk About Exposure

These student photographers don't stop even in the shower. This is one of a series by John C. Fuller of Rochester Institute of Technology.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

With school sessions in full swing again, photography can play an important part in a student's life. It can mean fun, fellowship, money for school expenses or preliminary career training depending on the teenage fan's interest, ability and camera equipment.

Beginners can start with inexpensive cameras to record classmates, teachers, school buildings and activities. These are precious memories for home albums, especially for parents of students at out - of - town schools. They also reduce the burden of letter writing if each picture is worth a thousand words.

With more experience, increased ability and a better camera, photography in school can really pay off. A case in point is John C. Fuller, now starting his second year of photography courses at Rochester Institute of Technology.

I've corresponded with and followed John's work ever since he was an eighth grader in Glens Falls, N. Y. He was a school staff photographer in junior high and in high school, worked summers as an assistant to a local photographer and won several awards in Kodak High school photo contests. When he went into service at 18, his hobby was not ignored.

He became photographer on the base newspaper.

This past summer John spent the vacation period taking pictuses for Kodak's photo illustration division. He started one assignment last term, photographing the social and school life of a fellow student photographer at R. I. T. This series will form a special section with this year's traveling National High School Awards exhibit and will be seen in high school, colleges, libraries and camera clubs.

How do youngsters get started on school photography?

"Real photo enthusiasts will find many angles of their school life interesting and photogenic," John says. "These can be used to apply for a staff job on a student publication. Pick only the best and sharpest examples of your photography, have some enlargements made and show them to the faculty advisor or editor.

"A student staff photographer isn't generally paid for his work, but the supplies, usually, are furnished. He should have his own camera. In most cases he is permitted to sell reprints of pictures published. This may not amount to much unless he happens to get a good, clear crowd shot at an athletic meet or school affair.

"A staff photographer's job, however, gives him entrance to most school activities and there are many opportunities and events at which he can take pictures to earn extra money. Take a prom or fraternity dance, for instance. The boys and girls are dressed up and delighted to have their pictures taken.

"A ballroom corner can become an impromptu studio. You can shoot individuals, couples or groups but groups are the most profitable because you can sell many prints from one negative. At $2 for an 8x10 inch print, it is not unusual to gross about $100 at one dance."

The student photographer can generally use the school darkroom facilities which eliminates the problem of finding the space and the expense of buying the necessary equipment.

A small item but an important one for every student photographer is a rubber stamp with his name and address. It will identify every picture he makes, bring him print re-orders and possibly lead to other photo assignments.

Student photographers asked to do off - campus photo jobs should be sure it is within their scope, otherwise it should be turned over to a professional photographer who is equipped to handle it.

"It's all right to earn some extra money around the campus with the camera," Fuller adds, "but the photographer shouldn't forget that photography is an expressive art. He should keep in mind more meaningful aspects of school life and use imagination to capture them on film. These might be sutiable for newspaper or magazine use or could be entered in photo contests. When you come up with a winner, then you know the satisfaction of being a photographer."

Local Walnut Tree Bearing

By MILDRED SWIFT

At 3800 Harrison Street, there's an English walnut tree bearing nuts for the first time. This is quite unusual — a walnut tree in this area. Mrs. W. S. Vincent will be happy for you to come by (on the South College Street side) and view this tree. You can see it from the street.

Mrs. Vincent says the plant is about 30 or 40 feet high, has large leaves and the trunk bears a grayish bark. The walnuts are now opening their shells. The tree is about eight or 10 years old.

Don't expect the nuts to be the same color as the English walnuts in the stores. Those coming from California are bleached before they're sent to market. Teachers may want to bring their pupils by to see this tree.

Mrs. Eunice Boddie, 908 Alabama, Monroe, writes me that she has a cactus growing in her garden that has bloomed five times. She says it is very pretty. The bloom is shaped like a star. The blossom only last two days so I didn't get by to see this last one.

PLANTS

When selecting plants for your garden this winter, remember those that have variegated and grayish foliage. They give so much interest in the garden and are so very beautiful in the house.

There's the variegated ligustrum. To get it's most beautiful variegation, plant in full sun. It has all the properties of the common plant and all the glamor of the green and white foliage, instead of the solid green.

Then there's the variegated privet, that can be planted in sun or semi-shade. Do lots of spring pruning as the new growth is yellow and so very gorgeous. This plant will eventually grow as tall as the common privet but you'll never let it get that big. It's too much fun cutting back and seeing the yellow foliage put out.

Then you have the family of Aucubas that wants full shade. There are the green ones and several variegated varieties. These plants will grow to about four feet in height. You can control the height, though, by pruning.

The large family of Euonymus will give you many variegated plants. They'll grow in semi-shade. Watch for white fly and scale on these plants. Spray the same as for camellias. Malathion is best at this time of year.

For a geogeous vine there's the variegated Confederate Jasmine. It's a little on the tender side, so plant where it can get some protection from winter cold. This will grow in shade or sun. And — there are a number of different varieties of this jasmine. One is typically a ground cover. Very green and doesn't bloom. A vine with variegated foliage is a thing of beauty. I love the green and white leafed ivy but have had no success with it, so now I'm trying the variegated jasmine.

A lovely small plant (grows 3 feet high) is the cottoneaster. The foliage is very small and dainty and has the prettiest gray color. This is a nice plant for brick planters as it doesn't grow very large. I saw some of this cottoneaster planted against a pink brick house and it was outstanding.

GOOD READING

One of the most charming books I've read in years is "Garden Housekeeping" by Mary Deputy Lamson. She says, "For years, home magazines, books, lecturers to women's clubs and brides' school, and even college with the servantless house, its plan and housekeeping. No one, except occasionally the plaintive owner, worries much about the gardenerless grounds. The problems of housekeeping outdoors are still on the hit-or-miss basis of weekly attack by the family or an untrained man by the day."

Mrs. Lamson stated what many of us have found from experience — well placed hard-surfaced patios and walks make for ease of garden upkeep. They also give a means of transporting equipment and wheel barrows of fertilizer and soil, from one part of the garden to another.

FOR POSTERITY

Our forefathers left us a highly productive soil, rich with humus. We've minded that soil. Even if we're not interested in keeping our garden soil in good condition, it is our duty to the coming generation to continually add humus to our soils. This you can easily do with a compost pen, large or small, depending on the amount of material you will have.

When reading about retention of moisture in the soil, the answer was more humus. When reading about proper drainage the answer was more humus. When reading about plant nutrition, the answer was more humus.

When this country was young, nature was able to take care of its own humus requirements. Leaves decomposed into a rich blanket of life-giving humus.

Now, we rake off all that potential humus, but we can compost it and return it to the soil. The time is gone when you can go to the woods and get rich leafmold. You must make your own. We've talked about how to make this compost pen so I won't repeat that.

In the South, soils are decidedly lacking in humus. This organic material has its beneficial effect in both light and heavy soils. Should your soil be light and sandy, humus will give it bulk and weight and will make it capable of holding more food, moisture and necessary bacterial life.

Should your soil be heavy and stiff (clay or gumbo type) humus will open it up, allow proper aeration, supply better drainage and at the same time hold moisture and plant foods for a longer time so that plants will have a more continuous use of these life giving elements.

HINTS

Sometimes it's a little thing like a belt that can limit the life of your dress. Look for the wording, "drycleanable" stamped on the back of the belt. Sometimes this backing is cardboard, imitation leather or even paper. This comes apart in the cleaning.

There are clever little dress tricks which will help you minimize certain faults in your appearance. For instance, simple necklines are most becoming to the short necked person. Collarless necklines cut below the base of the neck or forming various versions of the V, give the illusion of length. A deep V which carries the eye downward also is satisfactory. And, if your neck is short, remember to avoid fuzzy trims, frilly collars or flowers at the neck area.

Today's beauty hint has to do with perfect grooming. Unfortunately many are otherwise well groomed. Women may be unknowing as to the sorry state of their elbows. Back up to the mirrir and take a look at your own elbows. Each time you use cleansing cream or night cream on the face, cover the elbows. Each time you put use hand cream, cover the elbows. Soon you'll have them looking well groomed instead of rough and "scaly".

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Audrey Dawson will show you how to score yourself to be smartly dressed; Tuseday, Kathryn Hoyt will make Bosco the Clown (repeat, program by request from many of you); Wednesday, Mrs. Jardine and flower arrangements; Thursday and Friday, Marketing with Mildred. See you next Sunday.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Wild Grapes Of Old South

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In some parts of the south, this is a big muscadine year. The woods are full of vines that are spilling their purple fruits over the ground.

Nothing is quite like muscadines and scuppernongs; their flavor and their musky odor belong to early autumn. When the Spanish, French and English first landed on our southern shores, they were astounded at the great abundance of grapes of all kinds. All of the early accounts of the new America are full of ecstatic descriptions of the wild fruit. It is no wonder that these people thought they had discovered a paradise.

GRAPES APLENTY

Our southern woods are still full of grapes: wild bunch grapes, fox grapes, muscadines and scuppernongs. Wherever forest fires and bulldozers have left them alone, the vines climb high into the trees.

Experiment stations in the southern states, especially in North Carolina and Georgia, have for some years been discovering and producing named varieties of muscadines and scuppernongs. The catalogues of southern nurserymen list these kinds. All of them produce larger and sweeter crops than the ordinary wild varieties in the woods.

In the woods, you will find male and female vines, and, of course, the males produce only pollen. In order to be sure that the female vines you grow get their flowers pollenated when they bloom in the spring, it is well to buy a male vine from your nurseryman and plant it close to the named variety. You may now buy several varieties which produce their own male flowers along with the female ones on the same vine, if you wish, too.

CROP FAILURES

In some years, the grape crop fails entirely. This is usually caused by heavy rains which persist during the blooming of the tiny grape flowers in the spring. The pollen from the male flowers simply gets drowned out and never reaches the female flowers. In such years, you are more likely to get grapes if you have a male vine planted very near your bearing females than if you do not. When we have a bumper crop of grapes like the one this year, we know that conditions were just right for fertilization last spring.

There are all sorts of places where you can grow muscadines and scuppernongs besides on an arbor. Even if you have limited space and cannot give up the room for a large arbor, you may let your vine go up a tree or along a fence. Your vine need not take the place, either. It can be pruned back in the dead of winter to fit the room you do have for it. Birds will like the grapes you cannot reach up high in the trees, and you may get all you want by shaking the grapes down onto a blanket. To be without muscadines or scuppernongs in the fall is very unsouthern!

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Highland Park Stages Show

By MARY JARDINE

Mrs. L. L. Robinson, Fourth District Director of the Louisiana Garden Club Federation, cordially invites all flower lovers in this section of Louisiana to attend their Fourth District meeting in Shreveport on Thursday, October 1 at the East Ridge Country Club. Time 9:30 a.m. Mrs. Robert E. Creighton of Chattanooga will be guest speaker on Japanese Flower Arrangements in the afternoon. Lessons in the morning include a telephone lecture by Mrs. J. Gordon Gose of Seattle, Washington, 2nd vice president of National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc. She will talk on the value of Federation for local clubs. Send reservation of $3.50 to Mrs. Melvin W. Ransom, 356 Leland Drive, Shreveport.

SHOW OF WEEK

Highland Park Garden Club members of Monroe staged the flower show of the week. Interesting horticulture, all in the blue ribbon class, was a feature of the show. The ribbons were awarded as follows: Mrs. Monroe Dunlap for Chlorophytum-vittatum (Airplane Plant), Mrs. W. B. Hollingsworth for a large Pedilanthus plant, Mrs. W. A. Lewis Jr. for Golden Rain tree (Koelreuteria bipinnata). (Note! When buying golden-rain trees for this area the hardy K. Paniculata is more desirable.)

In the arrangement section, Mrs. Jack O'Neal was awarded top score. Mrs. O'Neal selected a black rectangular container for her triangular line mass arrangement. Line materials in the background were of bottle brush foliage with the new growth of lighter green pittoeporum rosettes used as filler material. The pattern was accented with small white chrysanthemums symbol of autumn. This was staged against a soft green background, would be suitable for any wall color.

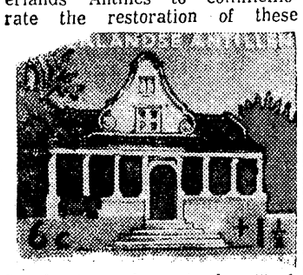
Mrs. William Kelly was awarded second place for her all green arrangement. A long, low bowl of black was selected for this design. The effect of sails was achieved with folded banana leaves placed in a right-angle triangle pattern. Smaller banana leaves were placed low with a cluster of tiny green bananas as a center of interest. Very distinctive. Unusual handling of everyday materials.

Mrs. P. L. Pace tied in score with Mrs. Kelly for second place. A color harmony of red - violet colors was the theme of Mrs. Pace's arrangement. We staged this against a soft rose pink wall. Background materials for the symmetrical pattern were dark red barberry foliage with violet flowers of false - dragonhead as secondary placements. For a center of interest the delicate flowers of the pineapple - ginger lily were grouped and surrounded with clusters of the deeper-toned false dragon-head. The color and combination of flowers was most appealing.

Also on display was the Red Passion Flower (Passiflora coccinea) collected in Bolivia by Ira S. Nelson in 1954. The flowers are a spectacular red with a dazzling red prianth surmounted by an outer crown of dark red-violet, and an inner crown of snow white at the base of a gold and red central column. In North Louisiana the plant is killed back by the winter frosts but sprouts from below ground during the spring as does our Maypop. Now available in the trade from Louisiana nurseries. It is well worth growing as a garden or greenhouse plant because of its ease of cultivation and its spectacular appearance. Call the Garden Center for more information.

STAMPS

Five old Curacao homes are pictured on a new series of postage stamps issued by the Netherlands Antilles to commemorate the restoration of these



Dutch type homesteads. Each stamp shows a different home.

The four - colored stamps carry a surcharge in behalf of "Monumentenzorg," the foundation that is preserving the historical monuments. The values are 6-c plus 1½-c, 7½-c plus 2½-c, 15-c plus 5-c, 22½ - c plus 7½c, 25-c plus-7½ c.

The new Pony Express stamp will be issued on July 19, 1960, Arthur E. Summerfield. The commemorative stamp honors the 100th anniversary of the establishment of the Pony Express. The date of issuance was changed to coincide with the reenactment of the Pony Express run next year under auspices of the National Pony Express Association.

Chile will issue two new stamps to commemorate the Juan, Ladrillero Expedition of 1557. One stamp will be for regular mail and the other airmail. The design will feature a map of the Strait of Magellan.

From Morocco comes word that three stamps have been issued to celebrate the 50th anniversary of S. M. Mohammed V. the 15-franc red, 25-f blue and 45-f green have the same design — S. M. Mohammed V on horseback and a native holding an umbrella over him.

New designs for the 10-cent and 25-cent international air mail stamps featuring the Liberty Bell and the head of Abraham Lincoln are being prepared by the artists under commission of the U. S. Post Office Department. These stamps and the 15-center will replace the international airmail series of the same denominations first issued in 1947.

Planting Time For Daffodils

By AUDREY DAWSON

October is the time to plant daffodils. Order your bulbs in advance to be sure of having them by planting time and also to help insure obtaining what you want.

The size of bulbs will vary considerably between varieties. The type of bulbs that are generally sold as of blooming size is either round or double nosed. The round bulbs have one growing point and the double nosed have two. The double nosed bulbs should produce more flowers. But be sure to buy the best quality of bulbs.

We have a bulletin, "Daffodils for the Yard" which you may have by calling our office FA 3-2251.

It is time to feed your chrysanthemums. Our specialist recommends using 4 lbs. of 8-8-8 per 100 feet row. For large flower heads disbud all buds that appear except the center bud of each cluster.

HINTS TO HOMEMAKERS

Starch baby's white shoe strings after washing - they will stay tied better.

To keep baby occupied so you can make an undisturbed phone call, place each of baby's toys in a cloth bag (not plastic) or box for him to open. Each surprise will hold his attention a few minutes.

Shower curtains with permanent magnets in the hem keeps curtains clinging to inside of tub and keeps water in tub not on the bathroom floor.

A plastic belt will not stretch or tear at the eyelets if you paste mystic tape on the underside - punch holes with awe or ice pick.

Yeast dough is double in bulk when the impression made by two fingers in top of a ball of risen dough remains there instead of filling up again.

If hand-me-down paamas are too long, insert elastic strips from bottom and make clown pajamas until Johnny grows into them.

If your woodwork mildews, wipe it with a cloth dipped in a mixture of water and a little kerosene.

HOUSEWORK

Few homemakers realize that every move they make - sitting, walking, standing or climbing or reaching affects their posture and entire body for better or worse. So you, Mrs. Homemaker, remember these tips. Mopping or sweeping the floor will be less tiring if you bend forward from hips keeping back and shoulders in straight line. When you bend forward, bend from hips. When lifting whether it's a baby or a heavy box, let your leg muscles do the work. Don't bend from the waist. Bend your knees and keep your back straight. Gradually straighten legs and the leg muscles do the lifting.

Homemakers complain about climbing stairs, but it is actually good exercise. Keep head erect, chest high and stomach muscles tight.

WINTER COTTONS

Fall and winter cottons are the medium and heavier weights such as tweeds, knits, corduroys and velveteens which are ideal for the coming months. These fall cottons appear in dark autumn colors and are ideal for between season weather. Have you, Mrs. Homemaker, been in the stores these past few weeks? If so, I know you agree that the colors are beautiful. Improved styling, comfort and dependability have established cotton as a big seller in the fall and winter seasons. These cottons may be washed or dry cleaned. Do not bleach dark cottons and no starch is needed. Be sure to read the tags for special instructions on ironing cottons with textured surfaces.

A THOUGHT

Among the footprints on the sands of time some people leave only the marks of a heel.

Better Care Saves Extra Bulb Setting

By CYNTHIA TOWERY

CHAPPAQUA, N. Y. — "Gardeners of all ages," says Elizabeth Lawrence, "are much more eager to plant flowers than to take care of them afterward. This must be the reason for the popularity of the little bulbs."

I hate to disagree with my betters — Miss Lawrence is a superb gardener and a fine garden writer but the main reason I take special care of my bulbs is just so I won't have to plant many more of them.

Sometimes however, I wonder if the food I provide them doesn't do the fertilizer manufactureres more good than it does the bulbs. The crocuses and the grape hyacinths I planted years ago on my back bank, and left to fight out survival with the tree roots and the honeysuckle, have spread far beyond the original plantings. They have thrived beautifully, each spring enchanting me with a bright carpet of color — first white, yellow and deep purple from the crocuses, followed by the rich blue and delicate white of the muscari.

But when fall comes, in spite of invigorating weather, I'm tired of digging and the prospect of spading up a big area for new daffodils, tulips and all the smaller bulbs is greeted with something less than enthusiasm. But each fall I address myself to the chore, knowing full well that by late winter and early spring I'll be hungry for the sight of the snowdrops, the scilla, the chionodoxa, the jonquils and all the rest.

Although tulips, it seems to me, are most rewarding if arranged in formal plantings, most of the other spring bulbs look best and grow best if they can be naturalized, tucked away in corners where the mower need not penetrate, massed in and around deciduous trees where they can benefit from sunshine reaching them through temporarily leafless boughs and branches.

Yet bulbs which will each year put forth their welcome bloom must be happily situated — in soil which provides food, adequate moisture and air, and they must be given time after blooming to manufacture next year's bloom. And giving them this, usually, means digging, improving soil with humus, sometimes sand, sometimes peat. If you are planting a lot of bulbs in one area, it is better to dig over the whole area deeply — so deep that there is good soil for a few inches below the bulb in which it can put out roots. Replace some of the improved soil and set in the bulbs and then proceed to fill in over them. Set them far enough apart —depending on the type and size of the bulbs — so they have room to multiply. Then the only need you'll have to dig them up again is when they become so crowded they cease blooming. I have some bulb plantings which have not been touched for 15 years — and they are more handsome now than ever.

I give my bulbs minimum care —an annual feeding of bone meal when they have finished blooming. However, last spring when I was helping to recover a lost perennial garden ignored an untended for perhaps 20 years and overgrown with Virginia creeper and poison ivy, I found all sorts of bulbs thrusting up healthily and happily — crocus, daffodils, even lilies, along with phlox, iris, perennial sweet peas, peonies and Dorothy Perkins roses, It made me wonder how much of my fertilizing activity isn't really just good exercise for me.

Talk About Exposure

These student photographers don't stop even in the shower. This is one of a series by John C. Fuller of Rochester Institute of Technology.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

With school sessions in full swing again, photography can play an important part in a student's life. It can mean fun, fellowship, money for school expenses or preliminary career training depending on the teenage fan's interest, ability and camera equipment.

Beginners can start with inexpensive cameras to record classmates, teachers, school buildings and activities. These are precious memories for home albums, especially for parents of students at out - of - town schools. They also reduce the burden of letter writing if each picture is worth a thousand words.

With more experience, increased ability and a better camera, photography in school can really pay off. A case in point is John C. Fuller, now starting his second year of photography courses at Rochester Institute of Technology.

I've corresponded with and followed John's work ever since he was an eighth grader in Glens Falls, N. Y. He was a school staff photographer in junior high and in high school, worked summers as an assistant to a local photographer and won several awards in Kodak High school photo contests. When he went into service at 18, his hobby was not ignored.

He became photographer on the base newspaper.

This past summer John spent the vacation period taking pictuses for Kodak's photo illustration division. He started one assignment last term, photographing the social and school life of a fellow student photographer at R. I. T. This series will form a special section with this year's traveling National High School Awards exhibit and will be seen in high school, colleges, libraries and camera clubs.

How do youngsters get started on school photography?

"Real photo enthusiasts will find many angles of their school life interesting and photogenic," John says. "These can be used to apply for a staff job on a student publication. Pick only the best and sharpest examples of your photography, have some enlargements made and show them to the faculty advisor or editor.

"A student staff photographer isn't generally paid for his work, but the supplies, usually, are furnished. He should have his own camera. In most cases he is permitted to sell reprints of pictures published. This may not amount to much unless he happens to get a good, clear crowd shot at an athletic meet or school affair.

"A staff photographer's job, however, gives him entrance to most school activities and there are many opportunities and events at which he can take pictures to earn extra money. Take a prom or fraternity dance, for instance. The boys and girls are dressed up and delighted to have their pictures taken.

"A ballroom corner can become an impromptu studio. You can shoot individuals, couples or groups but groups are the most profitable because you can sell many prints from one negative. At $2 for an 8x10 inch print, it is not unusual to gross about $100 at one dance."

The student photographer can generally use the school darkroom facilities which eliminates the problem of finding the space and the expense of buying the necessary equipment.

A small item but an important one for every student photographer is a rubber stamp with his name and address. It will identify every picture he makes, bring him print re-orders and possibly lead to other photo assignments.

Student photographers asked to do off - campus photo jobs should be sure it is within their scope, otherwise it should be turned over to a professional photographer who is equipped to handle it.

"It's all right to earn some extra money around the campus with the camera," Fuller adds, "but the photographer shouldn't forget that photography is an expressive art. He should keep in mind more meaningful aspects of school life and use imagination to capture them on film. These might be sutiable for newspaper or magazine use or could be entered in photo contests. When you come up with a winner, then you know the satisfaction of being a photographer."

Local Walnut Tree Bearing

By MILDRED SWIFT

At 3800 Harrison Street, there's an English walnut tree bearing nuts for the first time. This is quite unusual — a walnut tree in this area. Mrs. W. S. Vincent will be happy for you to come by (on the South College Street side) and view this tree. You can see it from the street.

Mrs. Vincent says the plant is about 30 or 40 feet high, has large leaves and the trunk bears a grayish bark. The walnuts are now opening their shells. The tree is about eight or 10 years old.

Don't expect the nuts to be the same color as the English walnuts in the stores. Those coming from California are bleached before they're sent to market. Teachers may want to bring their pupils by to see this tree.

Mrs. Eunice Boddie, 908 Alabama, Monroe, writes me that she has a cactus growing in her garden that has bloomed five times. She says it is very pretty. The bloom is shaped like a star. The blossom only last two days so I didn't get by to see this last one.

PLANTS

When selecting plants for your garden this winter, remember those that have variegated and grayish foliage. They give so much interest in the garden and are so very beautiful in the house.

There's the variegated ligustrum. To get it's most beautiful variegation, plant in full sun. It has all the properties of the common plant and all the glamor of the green and white foliage, instead of the solid green.

Then there's the variegated privet, that can be planted in sun or semi-shade. Do lots of spring pruning as the new growth is yellow and so very gorgeous. This plant will eventually grow as tall as the common privet but you'll never let it get that big. It's too much fun cutting back and seeing the yellow foliage put out.

Then you have the family of Aucubas that wants full shade. There are the green ones and several variegated varieties. These plants will grow to about four feet in height. You can control the height, though, by pruning.

The large family of Euonymus will give you many variegated plants. They'll grow in semi-shade. Watch for white fly and scale on these plants. Spray the same as for camellias. Malathion is best at this time of year.

For a geogeous vine there's the variegated Confederate Jasmine. It's a little on the tender side, so plant where it can get some protection from winter cold. This will grow in shade or sun. And — there are a number of different varieties of this jasmine. One is typically a ground cover. Very green and doesn't bloom. A vine with variegated foliage is a thing of beauty. I love the green and white leafed ivy but have had no success with it, so now I'm trying the variegated jasmine.

A lovely small plant (grows 3 feet high) is the cottoneaster. The foliage is very small and dainty and has the prettiest gray color. This is a nice plant for brick planters as it doesn't grow very large. I saw some of this cottoneaster planted against a pink brick house and it was outstanding.

GOOD READING

One of the most charming books I've read in years is "Garden Housekeeping" by Mary Deputy Lamson. She says, "For years, home magazines, books, lecturers to women's clubs and brides' school, and even college with the servantless house, its plan and housekeeping. No one, except occasionally the plaintive owner, worries much about the gardenerless grounds. The problems of housekeeping outdoors are still on the hit-or-miss basis of weekly attack by the family or an untrained man by the day."

Mrs. Lamson stated what many of us have found from experience — well placed hard-surfaced patios and walks make for ease of garden upkeep. They also give a means of transporting equipment and wheel barrows of fertilizer and soil, from one part of the garden to another.

FOR POSTERITY

Our forefathers left us a highly productive soil, rich with humus. We've minded that soil. Even if we're not interested in keeping our garden soil in good condition, it is our duty to the coming generation to continually add humus to our soils. This you can easily do with a compost pen, large or small, depending on the amount of material you will have.

When reading about retention of moisture in the soil, the answer was more humus. When reading about proper drainage the answer was more humus. When reading about plant nutrition, the answer was more humus.

When this country was young, nature was able to take care of its own humus requirements. Leaves decomposed into a rich blanket of life-giving humus.

Now, we rake off all that potential humus, but we can compost it and return it to the soil. The time is gone when you can go to the woods and get rich leafmold. You must make your own. We've talked about how to make this compost pen so I won't repeat that.

In the South, soils are decidedly lacking in humus. This organic material has its beneficial effect in both light and heavy soils. Should your soil be light and sandy, humus will give it bulk and weight and will make it capable of holding more food, moisture and necessary bacterial life.

Should your soil be heavy and stiff (clay or gumbo type) humus will open it up, allow proper aeration, supply better drainage and at the same time hold moisture and plant foods for a longer time so that plants will have a more continuous use of these life giving elements.

HINTS

Sometimes it's a little thing like a belt that can limit the life of your dress. Look for the wording, "drycleanable" stamped on the back of the belt. Sometimes this backing is cardboard, imitation leather or even paper. This comes apart in the cleaning.

There are clever little dress tricks which will help you minimize certain faults in your appearance. For instance, simple necklines are most becoming to the short necked person. Collarless necklines cut below the base of the neck or forming various versions of the V, give the illusion of length. A deep V which carries the eye downward also is satisfactory. And, if your neck is short, remember to avoid fuzzy trims, frilly collars or flowers at the neck area.

Today's beauty hint has to do with perfect grooming. Unfortunately many are otherwise well groomed. Women may be unknowing as to the sorry state of their elbows. Back up to the mirrir and take a look at your own elbows. Each time you use cleansing cream or night cream on the face, cover the elbows. Each time you put use hand cream, cover the elbows. Soon you'll have them looking well groomed instead of rough and "scaly".

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Wild Grapes Of Old South

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In some parts of the south, this is a big muscadine year. The woods are full of vines that are spilling their purple fruits over the ground.

Nothing is quite like muscadines and scuppernongs; their flavor and their musky odor belong to early autumn. When the Spanish, French and English first landed on our southern shores, they were astounded at the great abundance of grapes of all kinds. All of the early accounts of the new America are full of ecstatic descriptions of the wild fruit. It is no wonder that these people thought they had discovered a paradise.

GRAPES APLENTY

Our southern woods are still full of grapes: wild bunch grapes, fox grapes, muscadines and scuppernongs. Wherever forest fires and bulldozers have left them alone, the vines climb high into the trees.

Experiment stations in the southern states, especially in North Carolina and Georgia, have for some years been discovering and producing named varieties of muscadines and scuppernongs. The catalogues of southern nurserymen list these kinds. All of them produce larger and sweeter crops than the ordinary wild varieties in the woods.

In the woods, you will find male and female vines, and, of course, the males produce only pollen. In order to be sure that the female vines you grow get their flowers pollenated when they bloom in the spring, it is well to buy a male vine from your nurseryman and plant it close to the named variety. You may now buy several varieties which produce their own male flowers along with the female ones on the same vine, if you wish, too.

CROP FAILURES

In some years, the grape crop fails entirely. This is usually caused by heavy rains which persist during the blooming of the tiny grape flowers in the spring. The pollen from the male flowers simply gets drowned out and never reaches the female flowers. In such years, you are more likely to get grapes if you have a male vine planted very near your bearing females than if you do not. When we have a bumper crop of grapes like the one this year, we know that conditions were just right for fertilization last spring.

There are all sorts of places where you can grow muscadines and scuppernongs besides on an arbor. Even if you have limited space and cannot give up the room for a large arbor, you may let your vine go up a tree or along a fence. Your vine need not take the place, either. It can be pruned back in the dead of winter to fit the room you do have for it. Birds will like the grapes you cannot reach up high in the trees, and you may get all you want by shaking the grapes down onto a blanket. To be without muscadines or scuppernongs in the fall is very unsouthern!

APPROVE STOCK SPLIT

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Piedmont Natural Gas Co., Inc. announced its stockholders have approved a proposed 2-for-1 split of the company's common stock, effective Friday. The company also announced plans to issue $3,500,000 of convertible preferred later this fall to finance a construction program.

REVISES FORECAST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Department of Agriculture Friday revised upward its coffee production forecast for the 1959-60 season to a record 57,500,000 bags available for export. USDA's original estimate was 1,400,000 bags lower.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Highland Park Stages Show

By MARY JARDINE

Mrs. L. L. Robinson, Fourth District Director of the Louisiana Garden Club Federation, cordially invites all flower lovers in this section of Louisiana to attend their Fourth District meeting in Shreveport on Thursday, October 1 at the East Ridge Country Club. Time 9:30 a.m. Mrs. Robert E. Creighton of Chattanooga will be guest speaker on Japanese Flower Arrangements in the afternoon. Lessons in the morning include a telephone lecture by Mrs. J. Gordon Gose of Seattle, Washington, 2nd vice president of National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc. She will talk on the value of Federation for local clubs. Send reservation of $3.50 to Mrs. Melvin W. Ransom, 356 Leland Drive, Shreveport.

SHOW OF WEEK

Highland Park Garden Club members of Monroe staged the flower show of the week. Interesting horticulture, all in the blue ribbon class, was a feature of the show. The ribbons were awarded as follows: Mrs. Monroe Dunlap for Chlorophytum-vittatum (Airplane Plant), Mrs. W. B. Hollingsworth for a large Pedilanthus plant, Mrs. W. A. Lewis Jr. for Golden Rain tree (Koelreuteria bipinnata). (Note! When buying golden-rain trees for this area the hardy K. Paniculata is more desirable.)

In the arrangement section, Mrs. Jack O'Neal was awarded top score. Mrs. O'Neal selected a black rectangular container for her triangular line mass arrangement. Line materials in the background were of bottle brush foliage with the new growth of lighter green pittoeporum rosettes used as filler material. The pattern was accented with small white chrysanthemums symbol of autumn. This was staged against a soft green background, would be suitable for any wall color.

Mrs. William Kelly was awarded second place for her all green arrangement. A long, low bowl of black was selected for this design. The effect of sails was achieved with folded banana leaves placed in a right-angle triangle pattern. Smaller banana leaves were placed low with a cluster of tiny green bananas as a center of interest. Very distinctive. Unusual handling of everyday materials.

Mrs. P. L. Pace tied in score with Mrs. Kelly for second place. A color harmony of red - violet colors was the theme of Mrs. Pace's arrangement. We staged this against a soft rose pink wall. Background materials for the symmetrical pattern were dark red barberry foliage with violet flowers of false - dragonhead as secondary placements. For a center of interest the delicate flowers of the pineapple - ginger lily were grouped and surrounded with clusters of the deeper-toned false dragon-head. The color and combination of flowers was most appealing.

Also on display was the Red Passion Flower (Passiflora coccinea) collected in Bolivia by Ira S. Nelson in 1954. The flowers are a spectacular red with a dazzling red prianth surmounted by an outer crown of dark red-violet, and an inner crown of snow white at the base of a gold and red central column. In North Louisiana the plant is killed back by the winter frosts but sprouts from below ground during the spring as does our Maypop. Now available in the trade from Louisiana nurseries. It is well worth growing as a garden or greenhouse plant because of its ease of cultivation and its spectacular appearance. Call the Garden Center for more information.

STAMPS

Five old Curacao homes are pictured on a new series of postage stamps issued by the Netherlands Antilles to commemorate the restoration of these

Dutch type homesteads. Each stamp shows a different home.

The four - colored stamps carry a surcharge in behalf of "Monumentenzorg," the foundation that is preserving the historical monuments. The values are 6-c plus 1½-c, 7½-c plus 2½-c, 15-c plus 5-c, 22½ - c plus 7½c, 25-c plus-7½ c.

The new Pony Express stamp will be issued on July 19, 1960, Arthur E. Summerfield. The commemorative stamp honors the 100th anniversary of the establishment of the Pony Express. The date of issuance was changed to coincide with the reenactment of the Pony Express run next year under auspices of the National Pony Express Association.

Chile will issue two new stamps to commemorate the Juan, Ladrillero Expedition of 1557. One stamp will be for regular mail and the other airmail. The design will feature a map of the Strait of Magellan.

From Morocco comes word that three stamps have been issued to celebrate the 50th anniversary of S. M. Mohammed V. the 15-franc red, 25-f blue and 45-f green have the same design — S. M. Mohammed V on horseback and a native holding an umbrella over him.

New designs for the 10-cent and 25-cent international air mail stamps featuring the Liberty Bell and the head of Abraham Lincoln are being prepared by the artists under commission of the U. S. Post Office Department. These stamps and the 15-center will replace the international airmail series of the same denominations first issued in 1947.

CALL TOLL

Student Center At Tech Active

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech's modernistic $750,000 Student Center building, with 42,000 square feet of air conditioned space available to students, faculty, alumni and others, is fast becoming the center of activity at the college here.

Housing a fountain and grill, barber shop, recreation parlor, student store, bookstore, a 3,100 square feet lounge and other useful and enjoyable services, the center has done much to add to the pleasantness of life on the campus.

At present, some of the operations of the center are hampered by lack of supplies but within six weeks service will be practically normal. For instance, a public address system which will expedite grill and fountain service will be ready for use, according to Clifford Meek, director of the Center.

In addition, chairs and tables are now being set up in the fountain and grill room. Work is also underway to complete the cafeteria.

A brochure, outlining in detail the many services and functions of the Student Center, may be obtained at the center's office. This includes information on the fountain and grill, cafeteria, catering service, lounge, phones, information booth, rest rooms, patios, barber shop, recreation parlor, student store, check cashing, mail order service, and the bookstore of the two-story building.

Spiritual Head Dies Following Short Illness

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—The Rev. James Joseph Wallace, spiritual father of the Jesuit community at Spring Hill College, died in a hospital Saturday after a short illness. He was 80.

A native of New Orleans, he was ordained in St. Louis. He taught at St. Johns High School in Shreveport, La., was principal of Spring Hill High School here, served missions in north Alabama and East Texas, and was regent of the dental school at Loyola University in New Orleans.

From 1942 to 1956, he did parish work in Augusta, Ga., and New Orleans, and retreat work at Convent, La.

(2) Card Of Thanks

WE, THE Mrs. Lou Jones Family, would like to express our appreciation for the many kindnesses extended us in the death of our dear mother and grandmother. We would especially like to thank Dr. Doyle R. Hamilton, the Sisters and nurses at the St. Francis Hospital, the Kilpatrick Funeral Home, Rev. Connie E. Ward and the choir of New Chapel Hill Baptist Church, and to our many friends and relatives for their kind offerings. They each have our everlasting gratitude.
MR. Sam Jones, Mr. Hallie Jones, Mrs. Annie Paschal, Mrs. Pattie Lou Blankenship, and all the Grandchildren.

WE wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy, and beautiful floral offerings received during our recent bereavement in the loss of our beloved husband and father MR. JOHN (JACK) W. BURSON. We especially thank the Rev. Spencer Wren, doctors, nurses at St. Francis Hospital and the pallbearers.

Nothing Succeeds
Like Success

The happiest, most successful individual is one who operates and owns his own business. We strongly urge you to investigate the possibilities of this 2-story building in its setting of an entire city block. There are 10 spacious rooms and 2 porches as well as 2 baths. The location and size is ideal for a doctor's clinic, convalescent home, or funeral home, to mention a few. The successful man is the one who launches out to attain the facilities he needs for his business, including the right building in the right location.

Nothing Succeeds
Like Success

The happiest, most successful individual is one who operates and owns his own business. We strongly urge you to investigate the possibilities of this 2-story building in its setting of an entire city block. There are 10 spacious rooms and 2 porches as well as 2 baths. The location and size is ideal for a doctor's clinic, convalescent home, or funeral home, to mention a few. The successful man is the one who launches out to attain the facilities he needs for his business, including the right building in the right location.

How Is Property Selling?

That's a question we are asked every day. Frankly, the way a property "moves" when it is for sale depends to a great extent on how it is handled. For this reason, we suggest that you discuss your needs with our twenty-year-old firm.

We don't claim to work miracles, we just have our complete and competent sales staff work hard, advertise more, make more phone calls, write more letters, find more mortgage money, make more connections with investors and we start off on the right foot by putting the proper price on your home. If you feel there's no substitute for experience, integrity, and RESULTS, contact us today for a free appraisal and consultation on your home.

How Is

Property Selling?

That's a question we are asked every day. Frankly, the way a property "moves" when it is for sale depends to a great extent on how it is handled. For this reason, we suggest that you discuss your needs with our twenty-year-old firm.

We don't claim to work miracles, we just have our complete and competent sales staff work hard, advertise more, make more phone calls, write more letters, find more mortgage money, make more connections with investors and we start off on the right foot by putting the proper price on your home. If you feel there's no substitute for experience, integrity, and RESULTS, contact us today for a free appraisal and consultation on your home.

Individually Different Homes
For That Particular Individual

ALL CLOUDS DO NOT RAIN

It is still possible to buy an inexpensive home with approximately an acre lot just outside the city limits. This neat 2 bedroom home has heart appeal as well as eye appeal. There's a comfortable living room that is large enough for all your furniture and yet small enough for a homey air. The pine paneled kitchen is so very attractive with its china cabinets (with sliding glass doors) above the breakfast bar. There's a kid proof bath with ceramic tile floor requiring little cleaning effort. One of the bedrooms is pine paneled and would be ideal for the children's "private domain". Cyclone fencing around the yard safeguards your children and their pets. One glimpse of this attractive home will win your heart completely.

SECLUSION—VIEW

This spacious and sunny 3 bedroom home is located just outside Sterlington. Its 1.3 acre hillcrest setting is unbelievably beautiful and the entire yard is fenced for privacy and protection of younger children. There's no rush for the school bus, office, or factory in the mornings because there are 2 baths (each with shower). Mom will love to entertain in her attractively carpeted living room. The older children will enjoy the small study for private lesson preparation. Use your GI loan on this—no down payment, just pay closing costs.

RAYVILLE

Don't pass up the chance to own this 3 bedroom home with its attractive brick front. There's an appealing pine paneled kitchen and dining area. The house will be comfortably warm this winter with the wall furnaces. A little soap and water will go a long way toward giving this home a brighter look. Never before could you buy such a compact, conveniently located, home for such a small price.

COUNTRY LIVING

This spacious 4 bedroom home has a perfect natural setting amidst its tree covered acreage. The children will have more free time in the morning because there's no "waiting in line" with the 2 tile baths (one with shower stall). Mom will be pleased with her large, step-saver kitchen. If the breezes from "the wide open spaces" aren't sufficient to cool the approximately 1700 sq. ft. in this home, there's an extra large attic fan that will. For uncrowded country living at its best this home will not be surpassed.

TRIP AND FALL

Take a trip to see this gracious 2 bedrom home and you are sure to fall in love with the area. There's a separate dining room for winter's formal dinners and after dinner coffee will then be enjoyed before the open wood burning fireplace in the living room. Mom can save her lovely dining room, however, because she'll have the breakfast room just off the kitchen for family meals or informal entertaining. Mom and the girls will be the envy of their friends with the long, walk-in closet in the hall. There's no prevention for falling in love with this charming home, but we do have an inexpensive cure—just $400 and closing will make you a proud home owner.

HOW TO GET YOUR SALARY RAISED

Or the equivalent, by paying less than half your house note each month. Here's the plan: by investing $400 you can live in the comfortable 2 bedroom Northside home while you receive approximately $50 a month from the rent of the garage apartment. We'll confess the home would be more livable with a little fresh paint and some minor repairs, but the price has just been reduced. $500 to more than adequately cover that expense. He who hesitates on this is lost because this home won't remain empty long at this bargain price.

Warm as Toast

High water and winter's winds won't bother you for you'll be warm and cozy in this new 3 bedroom brick home. It won't matter if the children "dilly and dally" while getting dressed for school because there are 1½ baths to speed the family on their way. Mom, you can't imagine more convenience than this kitchen offers with its more than ample birch cabinets and vent-a-hood. Dad will be quick to recognize the value of this double carport. Mom won't have to "taxi" the children to school during the bad winter days because the school is just across the street. This home will indeed be a warm and friendly home when it's filled with the laughter of its happy, contented new family.

Waiting for a Bargain?

Disgusted at looking at shoe-box-sized rooms covered by a big mortgage? This 3 bedroom older home is conveniently located (on buslines and just 6 blocks to school). The 3 unusually large bedrooms are carpeted, as is the living room. The 2 baths will be of invaluable assistance in the morning in getting the family off to work, school, or play. For Mom's relaxing moments of sewing or reading, there's a comfortable den. If comfort, roominess, and convenience are important, then you'll agree this home is the number one bargain, as it's priced below $8,000.

Waiting for a Bargain?

Disgusted at looking at shoe-box-sized rooms covered by a big mortgage? This 3 bedroom older home is conveniently located (on busines and just 6 blocks to school). The 3 unusually large bedrooms are carpeted, as is the living room. The 2 baths will be of invaluable assistance in the morning in getting the family off to work, school, or play. For Mom's relaxing moments of sewing or reading, there's a comfortable den. If comfort, roominess, and convenience are important, then you'll agree this home is the number one bargain, as it's priced below $8,000.

Individually Different Homes
For That Particular Individual

ALL CLOUDS DO NOT RAIN

It is still possible to buy an inexpensive home with approximately an acre lot just outside the city limits. This neat 2 bedroom home has heart appeal as well as eye appeal. There's a comfortable living room that is large enough for all your furniture and yet small enough for a homey air. The pine paneled kitchen is so very attractive with its china cabinets (with sliding glass doors) above the breakfast bar. There's a kid proof bath with ceramic tile floor requiring little cleaning effort. One of the bedrooms is pine paneled and would be ideal for the children's "private domain". Cyclone fencing around the yard safeguards your children and their pets. One glimpse of this attractive home will win your heart completely.

SECLUSION—VIEW

This spacious and sunny 3 bedroom home is located just outside Sterlington. Its 1.8 acre hillcrest setting is unbelievably beautiful and the entire yard is fenced for privacy and protection of younger children. There's no rush for the school bus, office, or factory in the mornings because there are 2 baths (each with shower). Mom will love to entertain in her attractively carpeted living room. The older children will enjoy the small study for private lesson preparation. Use your GI loan on this—no down payment. Just pay closing costs.

RAYVILLE

Don't pass up the chance to own this 3 bedroom home with its attractive brick front. here's an appealing pine paneled kitchen and dining area. The house will be comfortably warm this winter with the wall furnaces. A little soap and water will go a long way toward giving this home a brighter look. Never before could you buy such a compact, conveniently located, home for such a small price.

COUNTRY LIVING

This spacious 4 bedroom home has a perfect natural setting amidst its tree covered acreage. The children will have more free time in the morning because there's no "waiting in line" with the 2 tile baths (one with shower stall). Mom will be pleased with her large, step-saver kitchen. If the breezes from "the wide open spaces" aren't sufficient to cool the approximately 1700 sq. ft. in this home, there's an extra large attic fan that will. For uncrowded country living at its best this home will not be surpassed.

TRIP AND FALL

Take a trip to see this gracious 2 bedrom home and you are sure to fall in love with the area. There's a separate dining room for winter's formal dinners and after dinner coffee will then be enjoyed before the open wood burning fireplace in the living room. Mom can save her lovely dining room, however, because she'll have the breakfast room just off the kitchen for family meals or informal entertaining. Mom and the girls will be the envy of their friends with the long, walk-in closet in the hall. There's no prevention for falling in love with this charming home, but we do have an inexpensive cure—just $400 and closing will make you a proud home owner.

HOW TO GET YOUR SALARY RAISED

Or the equivalent, by paying less than half your house note each month. Here's the plan: by investing $400 you can live in the comfortable 2 bedroom Northside home while you receive approximately $50 a month from the rent of the garage apartment. We'll confess the home would be more livable with a little fresh paint and some minor repairs, but the price has just been reduced $500 to more than adequately cover that expense. He who hesitates on this is lost because this home won't remain empty long at this bargain price.

Warm as Toast

High water and winter's winds won't bother you for you'll be warm and cozy in this new 3 bedroom brick home. It won't matter if the children "dilly and dally" while getting dressed for school because there are 1½ baths to speed the family on their way. Mom, you can't imagine more convenience than this kitchen offers with its more than ample birch cabinets and vent-a-hood. Dad will be quick to recognize the value of this double carport. Mom won't have to "taxi" the children to school during the bad winter days because the school is just across the street. This home will indeed be a warm and friendly home when it's filled with the laughter of its happy, contented new family.

WANT-AD WONDERS...True Story

Want Ads Find Old Tunes For Publisher's Book

George Goodwin now has the world's largest collection of singable songs. He placed Want Ads in newspapers all over the world asking readers to send old music to Box 49, N.Y.

Over a period of time over 1 million pieces of music came to Box 49, and it took Goodwin 6 years to sort them and select those that appear in his book, Treasury of Humorous and Nostalgic Songs.

$5 to first sender of each true newspaper Classified Advertising result story we accept. Howard Parish Associates, P. O. Box 126, N. W. Br., Miami 47, Fla.

WANT-AD WONDERS...Work

Want Ads Find Old Tunes For Publisher's Book

George Goodwin now has the world's largest collection of singable songs. He placed Want Ads in newspapers all over the world asking readers to send old music to Box 49, N. Y.

Over a period of time over 1 million pieces of music came to Box 49, and it took Goodwin 6 years to sort them and select those that appear in his book, Treasury of Humorous and Nostalgic Songs.

SELMAN DRIVE. 3 bedroom, 2 bath brick. Assumption. Monthly notes $82, including taxes and insurance. Ph. FA 5-1869 or FA 2-3202.

1504 FILHIOL — Extra nice 2-bedroom home on well landscaped and tree planted lot. This home is in excellent condition inside and out, plumbed for washer, and has loads and loads of storage space. Priced low to go at only $10,500.00. Easy financing available.

HIGHWAY 80 — WEST—A good substantial 3-bedroom home on 2 acres of ground, less than ten minutes from downtown. Near school and church. Only $12,500.00 with good financing available.

3600 HARRISON — COLLEGE AREA—Large roomy house situated on a lot 115'x175'x225' with plenty of shade trees. Living room, separate dining room, 2-bedrooms, new porch. There is an electric dishwasher in the kitchen, breakfast room and utility room. Lifetime slate roof. Only 3 blocks from the college. Vacant. Priced at only $14,500.00.

1303 NORTH 4TH — Make an offer on this charming colonial cottage. Newly redecorated inside and out, the spaciousness of this home makes it an ideal family home. Ideally situated between Neville and Georgia Tucker and only a block from the bus line. Excellent financing available.

412 SMITH STREET, West Monroe — Some cagey investor is going to latch on to this one! Right near Olin, this two bedroom home on ½ acre of ground is completely furnished and is an ideal buy as either a home or for rent property. The price is only $7,750.00 and financing is available.

1710 COLE — On the market for the first time is this three bedroom home on a quiet shady street. The rooms are good sized, there is a separate dining room, a big kitchen with a roomy pantry and excellent closets. Washer plumbed, and heated by floor furnaces. It's only a couple of blocks to the bus line too. The price is right, $9,500.00. May we show you today?

807 S. 5TH STREET, West Monroe—Here is a good roomy home, right across the street from Mitchell School, that is perfect for a growing family. Three large bedrooms, living room and dining room, combination den, and huge kitchen with a world of cabinets. Central heating and plumbed for a washer. Double carport with good storage. Call us for an appointment.

305 MITCHELL LANE, West Monroe — A nifty for the thrifty! At only $9,500.00 with eye opening terms too, two large bedrooms, living room, separate dining room and roomy kitchen. Large lot with beautiful shade trees. Convenient to school and transportation.

WANT-AD WONDERS...

Want Ads Find Old Tunes For Publisher's Book

George Goodwin now has the world's largest collection of singable songs. He placed Want Ads in newspapers all over the world asking readers to send old music to Box 49, N.Y.

Over a period of time over 1 million pieces of music came to Box 49, and it took Goodwin 6 years to sort them and select those that appear in his book, Treasury of Humorous and Nostalgic Songs.

GOSH, KNOBBY— IT'S A BIG THRILL TO VISIT OUR HOME TOWN!

SURE IS, JOE... IT BRINGS BACK SOME GREAT BOYHOOD MEMORIES!

WOW! HERE'S TH' OL' SWIMMIN' HOLE... BOY! WHAT LAUGHS... HAW-HAW!

HA-HA...WHENEVER WE KIDS WENT SWIMMIN'— WALDO WUMP WAS MY REG'LAR FALL GUY...HAW-HAW!

I'D ALWAYS TIE WALDO'S CLOTHES INTO KNOTS AN' TH' POOR SAP COULD NEVER UNDO 'EM! HA-HA-HA!

DIDN'T HE GET FURIOUS?

HO-HO... AN' HOW! BUT HE DIDN'T KNOW IT WAS ME?

BOY! DID HE LOOK SILLY COMIN' HOME LATE AT NIGHT WEARIN' TH' BARREL I ALWAYS LEFT FER HIM!

I CAN'T RESIST IT, JOE! GO ON BACK TO TH' HOTEL...I'M GOIN' FER A DIP!

OKAY, PAL. SEE YOU LATER!

LAST ONE IN IS A ROTTEN EGG...YOW! THEM WERE TH' DAYS ...YIPEEE!

SPLASH!

☆GLUB☆ HEY! MY CLOTHES ARE IN KNOTS... I'LL NEVER GET 'EM UNTIED

IT'S LATE ENOUGH... NOW I CAN SNEAK BACK TO THE HOTEL...LUCKY THIS BARREL IS HERE.

OH, WALDO WUMP— HAVE YOU SEEN KNOBBY? I'VE BEEN WAITING AT THE HOTEL FOR HIM!

HEH-HEH... I WAITED 30 YEARS FOR HIM...

HAW-HAW HERE HE COMES NOW!

THAT MECHANICAL BRAIN, THAT KNOWS EVERY DIRTY FINANCIAL TRICK I KNOW, IS IN THE HANDS OF MY ENEMIES!!

IT'LL BE USED TO TAKE SOMETHING VALUABLE FROM ME—BUT— WHAT?

WHY WORRY, BIG DADDY? YOU'LL ALWAYS HAVE ME!!

MEANWHILE—BIG STANISLOUSE—

YOU SAY I CAN GET BIM BOVAK AWAY FROM BULLMOOSE, BY MAKIN' HER A BROADWAY STAR?

YOU HEARD ME, KNUCKLE-HEAD!!

BUT "BRAIN"— I AIN'T GOT NO BROADWAY SHOW, TO MAKE HER A STAR OF!!—

YOU'VE GOT ME, YOU CHEAP, UNIMAGINATIVE CREEP!!

LISTEN!!—A NEW BROADWAY SHOW, "KISS ME NATE" OPENS NEXT WEEK!! PHONE THE PRODUCER!!—OFFER TO BUY IT, NOW—FOR A MILLION IN CASH!!

A MILLION?— IT'S A DEAL!! SEND THE CASH OVER, NOW!!

N-NOW? Y-YES, SIR.

OKAY, WISE-GUY —HOW DO I GET THE DOUGH?

GET ME THE BULLMOOSE BANK ON THE PHONE, STUPID!!

I'M SENDING A BOY OVER, FOR A MILLION IN CASH— HAVE IT READY!!— GOODBYE!!—

IT'S BULL-MOOSE'S VOICE!!

THAT WAS THE B-BOSS' VOICE, ALL R-RIGHT!!

I'M THE BOY BULL-MOOSE SENT. (—IT DON'T SEEM ETHICAL, STEALIN' MONEY FROM A BANK, WIT'OUT A GUN!!—)

9-17

BIG STANISLOUSE RUSHES TO THE PRODUCER—

THE SHOW IS YOURS!!—ANY CHANGES?

JUST ONE!!—I'M GONNA PUT IN A NEW STAR!!

—AND NOW, CHOWDERHEAD— GO GET HER!!

A CHEAP CRUMBUM, LIKE ME KIN TAKE AWAY THE GOIL-FRIEND O' TH' WOILD'S RICHEST BILLIONAIRE!!

T'ANKS, BRAIN!!

WELL, WATCH WHERE Y'STEP, AND TAKE A STICK T'POKE INTO TH' GRASS AND BUSHES AHEAD O' YOU!

"DADDY'S" SPENT YEARS AN' YEARS IN JUNGLES, ALL OVER TH' WORLD! HE UNNERSTANDS 'EM AND HE'S NOT SCARED O' ANYTHING! BUT I AM! I GOT GOOSE BUMPS ALL OVER ME!

9-27

HE JUST WALKED INTO THAT THICKET AN' DIS'PEARED. HARDLY MOVED A LEAF! WHAT IF THAT'S TH' LAST WE EVER SEE OF HIM?

OLD CLEARING! JUNGLE SURE COMES BACK FAST. AH! BANANAS! THESE'LL SURE HIT THE SPOT! ANNIE'S LEARNING FAST! SOON AS SHE GETS USED TO IT SHE'LL LOSE HER FEAR OF THE BIG FOREST!

REALLY NOTHING TO WORRY ABOUT IN HERE. FEW MOSQUITOES, ANTS, BUT IN THIS SEASON····· ···EH?

HM·M·M··· THAT'S INTERESTING! SEVEN, EIGHT DAYS OLD, I'D SAY!

AH·H··· AND THE LITTLE BROWN BROTHERS! QUITE A LITTLE DRAMA WRITTEN HERE. PERHAPS A SHORT, SHORT STORY, IF I READ IT CORRECTLY!

GEE! Y'WERE GONE NEARLY TEN MINUTES! IT SEEMED AN HOUR!

OH, COME NOW, ANNIE! JUST TRY ONE OF THESE! EVER SEE ANY FINER?

I SAW Y'STOP BACK THERE! WHAT DIDJA SEE? TRACKS, I BET! WAS IT A PANTHER?

HO! HO! NO, NO, ANNIE! NOTHING LIKE THAT!

W·W·WAS IT ONE O' THOSE POLICEMEN Y'SAID WAS MORE DANGEROUS 'N ANY OTHER KIND O' ANIMAL?

HM·M··· POLICEMAN? OH, I DON'T THINK WE HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT POLICEMEN FOR A WHILE! I'M SURE WE DON'T!
